THREE LITTLE GIRLS BEAT PLAYMATE; NOW SHE IS DEAD.

Blanche Reynolds, 7 Years Old, of Harbor Beach, Mich., Dies from a Pounding Given Her by Companions.

Harbor Beach, Mich., May 16.—[Special.]—Blanche Reynolds, aged 7, died at 11 o'clock last night as a result of a beating administered by three girl playmates, who had a grudge against her because her parents forbade her from associating with them. The Reynolds family is among the best in the town.

The assault took place last Thursday afternoon while Blanche was on her way home from school. The three girls ambushed her and while the older of the three, aged 14, held Blanche, the other two pounded her with a club and a broom stick. Brain fever set in and on Wednesday of this week she became unconscious, remaining so until death came last night.

Last Friday Morse Reynolds, aged 9, her brother, was set upon by the same girls and severely beaten. The father caused the arrest of Hattie Harriman, aged 14, charging her with assault, and her hearing is set for Saturday. The victim in an ante-mortem statement gave the names of her assailants.

GEN. FITZJOHN PORTER DYING.

Famous Soldier Reported in Critical Condition at His Home in New Jersey.

New York, May 16.—Word was received here tonight from Morristown, N. J., that General Fitzjohn Porter, who for three years has been suffering from chronic diabetes, is critically ill, his disease having taken such a serious turn that it is feared he may die at any time. General Porter's son and daughter-in-law are now at his bedside, having been called there from New York because of his serious condition. The General is 80 years of age.

Six Hundred Pound Stone Resting on a Man's Body Falls When Chair Gives Way and Crushes Victim's Head.

Woonsocket, R. I., May 16.—During an exhibition of hypnotism given by Professor Franke Farnsworth and wife of Fitchburg at the opera-house tonight one of the subjects, Thomas Bolton, also of Fitchburg, was killed. Mr. Bolton was resting between two chairs with a 600-pound stone on his body. A local blacksmith, Clifford Trask, attempted to break the stone with a sledge hammer. The chair on which Bolton's head rested gave way and the subject fell to the floor, the stone crushing his head. He died shortly after.

HELD UP IN CROWDED STREET.

W. M. McMillan and Wife Attacked by Two Negroes in Glare of Electric Lights.

In the glare of a number of electric lights, and within half a block of Drexel boulevard, which was crowded with vehicles and pedestrians, W. M. McMillan and his wife were held up by two negroes in Forty-fourth street at 8 o'clock last evening. Before the robbers secured any booty, however, they were frightened away by the screams of Mrs. McMillan. They fired a shot at their intended victims, and then escaped by running north in an alley between Drexel boulevard and Ellis avenue. Mrs. McMillan, who is in poor health, was almost overcome by her experience, and when taken to her house it was necessary tto call a physician to attend her. Mr. McMillan is a member of W. McMillan & Son, proprietors of a stone sawmill at Rockwell street and Ogden avenue. The firm has offices in the Chamber of Commerce Building. He lives at 4403 Berkeley avenue.

CITIZENS SHOT IN ALBANY RIOT.

ONE OF THEM IS DEAD.

MORE TROOPS ORDERED OUT.

Unhappy Encounter Comes Late in Afternoon and Resulted from Stupid Blunders on All Sides.

VICTIMS EXONERATE SOLDIERS.

Albany, N. Y., May 16.—[Special.]—One man dead, two seriously wounded, and several others badly hurt make up the count of disasters laid to the street car strike today.

Another regiment of infantry—the Ninth, commanded by Colonel Morris of New York City, has been called out by General Roe.

The man killed is William Walsh, an ex-Alderman and master plumber, who was shot by militiamen and who had no part in the trouble.

Those Badly Injured.

The injured are:

Hall, Gilbert, non-union motorman, shot by mob.
Marshall, William, non-union motorman, skull fractured.
Rooney, William, shot by militiamen.
Smith, E. Leroy, shot by militiamen.

Dead Men Were Onlookers.

The fatalities were caused by a squad of Company E, Twenty-third Infantry, which fired from an open trolley car on which it was riding at 4:20 o'clock this afternoon, their bullets striking three persons—E. Leroy Smith, head of the shoe manufacturing house of Smith & Herrick, and one of the most noted whist players in the country; ex-Alderman William A. Walsh, boss plumber, and William Rooney, journeyman horseshoer.

Blunders Cause Trouble.

The riot was started by a lack of common sense. The detachment of the Thirty-second Company, Second Regiment, of Hoosic Falls, stationed at the Union Station on Broadway, was partly responsible for the catastrophe. Had it acted promptly and arrested the spark that flamed the riot would have been averted.

Every one in Albany seemed to be taking a holiday, and although during the morning when the cars were run there were some minor disturbances, yet the prompt and businesslike action of the military had prevented any serious acts. The crowds had been kept moving all day long.

But later in the afternoon when it was thought the worst of the day was past the vigilance relaxed. The first cause of people gathering in great numbers was the presence of the Third Signal Corps at the corner of North Pearl and State streets. This is the busiest and common center of travel in the city.

The maneuvering of the "wig waggers" there caused speculation. For over half an hour they sat astride of their horses, and when it was seen that they were guarding a truck it was at once supposed that they were going to the railroad station at Broadway and Stuben after more non-union men. This belief was strengthened at 4 o'clock when a company from the Tenth Battalion fell in behind the truck and the column proceeded up North Pearl.

Thought "Scabs" Were Coming.

The cry "More scabs coming" went about like wildfire and every one in the vicinity made a rush for the Union station. It was just about time for the Lake Shore limited to come in and it was thought the corps and infantry were going to march up Pearl and down Stuben street. But such was not the case, for they were simply going for provisions at a Pearl street store.

But the crowd waited expectantly for the train and for the troopers to arrive at the station. Broadway for two blocks was a sea of humanity. Over 2,000 people were huddled together in that vicinity.

The temper of the people was excited. All that was now necessary to create a riot was some one to start it. The cause for a disturbance soon appeared.

Car No. 152, manned by a non-union crew, was coming up Broadway. The people in that quarter of the city had heretofore contented themselves with yelling "scabs" at the crews and hissing at the soldiers. On board this car was a detachment of ten soldiers from Company E of the Twenty-third Regiment, First Lieutenant J. W. Wilson commanding.

Stupid Boy Provokes Riot.

The car came along at a fair rate of speed without any interference being offered. But just below the new station and in front of the Arcade, where the passengers from the old depot made their exit to the street, a boy on a wagon loaded with furniture and driving a staid old horse was seen on the track. He had another boy on the seat with him. The car gong was sounded for him to leave the track and some one in the crowd yelled:

"Don't let the scabs go by you!"

This was enough for the boy. He would not hurry his horses, neither would he turn out. The boy, who proved to be the main cause that led to the shooting, was cheered. Persons ran out from the sidewalks and patted him on the back. Others stroked his horse. Hats were thrown in the air for this piece of bullheadedness. Lieutenant Wilson looked at the crowd and then at the men from Thirty-second Separate company, who were drawn up in a solid front on the curbing.

Peaceful Means Impossible.

Then the officer in charge took a few men with him and attempted to turn the crowd back. It was now too late to do so by peaceful means. The mob swept by the soldiers as if they were made of paper. The boy continued along on the track. The mob was reinforced from Columbia street. Others came

FRENCH CABINET ON TRIAL

MINISTRY FACES THE CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES TODAY.

Minister of Justice Will Reply to the Charges Made Against His Official Integrity—Count Lur Saluces Likely to Be Arrested—Troubles in Algeria Seem to Increase — Troops Called Home from China—Chicago Woman Lectures in Paris.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune by Grace Corneau.]

PARIS, May 15.—Premier Waldeck-Rousseau has decided that the entire Cabinet will face the Chamber of Deputies tomorrow, with the exception of M. Delcasse, who is on a vacation owing to a slight illness. M. Monis, the Minister of Justice, will reply to the charges against him, the Premier only intervening in the debate if a crisis approaches.

M. Monis is accused of using his authority as a member of the Cabinet to confer upon a German business associate in the manufacture of cognac an exposition medal after the jury on awards had refused to recognize the exhibit.

Will Arrest Lur Saluces.

The action of the government in the case of the Count de Lur Saluces will be decided at the Cabinet meeting tomorrow, after which the Count will probably be arrested. If sent before the high court Lur Saluce's lawyer will maintain that the judgment of the first high court was never served upon the prisoner, the decree of banishment having by mistake been trumpeted before Lur Saluce's mother-in-law's house, instead of before his own residence.

The Count attended mass today and spent the rest of his time in receiving his friends. The government fears that the Royalists may be planning some definite action against the republic, but no alarm is expressed in any quarter.

The military authorities have stopped the production of "L'Aiglon" at the Military club at Dinan, by order of the Minister of War, as it is considered that the play, exploiting the glory of the first Emperor, is not advisable at the present time.

Trouble in Algeria Grows.

Max Regis left Algeria for Paris today to begin a crusade against the existing state of things in that colony.

A long pastoral letter has been addressed to the prelates of Algeria by Mgr. Oury, Archbishop of Paris. Mgr. Oury declares that France is pursuing a mistaken policy in building mosques in Algeria where Arabs are taught hatred for the Christian religion. He declares that the revolt of the Moors is more dangerous than the authorities admit, and that the revolt is entirely due to religious fanaticism. France, the Archbishop declares, would do better in building churches instead of mosques for the natives.

The Algerian situation has forced the government to recall the Algerian battalion of General Bailloud's command in China, as the soldiers are urgently needed in Algeria.

Relations with Portugal Friendly.

The report that diplomatic relations have ceased between France and Portugal is without serious foundation. The French Ambassador to Portugal has been called to Paris, not by the Minister of Foreign Affairs, but on account of the illness of his father. The French government is pressing Portugal to accord to the holders of Portuguese bonds the satisfaction they ask, but relations, nevertheless, are cordial between the two countries.

Hope for Panama Canal.

Financial men in Paris say that J. Pierpont Morgan may bring about a new and more favorable attitude of the American government towards the Panama Canal scheme. The proposition of forming a Franco-American canal company to exploit the Panama waterway is pleasing to the French people, who would subscribe if the Americans joined them in the work.

Miss Locke Lectures on Art.

Miss Locke spoke encouragingly upon the future of art in America and summed up the satisfactory progress in art already made in Chicago.

JUDGE GIBBONS' DOCTORS SAY DEATH IS AT HAND.

Chicago Jurist, Ill in Denver, Cannot Survive Longer than Twenty-four Hours, His Physicians State.

Denver, Colo., May 17.—[Special.]—At 12:30 o'clock this morning Judge Gibbons' physicians declared the Chicago jurist could not live twenty-four hours longer. Judge Gibbons was taken ill with pneumonia and was brought here by his wife. His condition was not considered critical until apoplexy complicated the case.

INTERRUPT HONEYMOON TRIP.

Couple from Chicago Detained Twice by Officers Who Think They Are Too Young to Be Married.

Denver, Colo., May 16.—[Special.]—The honeymoon of Harry Quinn and his wife, Clara Quinn, aged respectively 19 and 16 years, who were married in Chicago a week ago yesterday, has not been one of uninterrupted bliss. After the marriage the couple decided to visit Mr. Quinn's sister, Mrs. J. A. Leonard, who resides in Ogden, Utah. The Pullman conductor throught it strange that two persons so young should be traveling together and questioned them. Mr. and Mrs. Quinn made satisfactory explanations, but when Omaha was reached a policeman held them in the depot matron's quarters, while he telegraphed back to Chicago. He received a favorable answer and the couple were released. When they reached Denver on this morning's train Depot Policeman Clark could not believe they were married. He telegraphed the Leonards in Ogden, and the happy couple were again released and resumed their journey.

A loud report, followed by darkness in all the cars, frightened the passengers in a north-bound South Side "L" train at Thirty-first street at 8:15 last evening. Simultaneously with the report came an electrical display that lighted up the sky for blocks. After a delay of five minutes the train proceeded on its way. The trouble, it is said, was due to faulty connections of the mechanism beneath the motor car.

DOWIE PICTURES A DEATH SCENE.

PRAY AS VICTIM WRITHES

DOORS BARRED TO DOCTORS.

While carriers hawked the "Leaves of Healing" before the door of the undertaking-rooms at 22 Adams street "Dr." John Alexander Dowie and his Zion faced a Coroner's jury yesterday afternoon. It was the inquiry into the death of Mrs. H. Worthington Judd, who, with her newly born infant, was added on Sunday to the victims of Dowieism after suffering sixteen hours without medical attendance.

Even in this dealing with death the spirit of commercialism dominated, and at the inquest every effort was made to sound the "glories" of Zion.

Clad in clothes of black, lined with silk, his feet encased in patent leather shoes, Dowie whirled up in his carriage to be received by the men of his "Zion Guards." His every word was made the object of applause; even the husband of the dead woman paid praise to his power.

Dying Request Would Not Avail.

"Would you have refused the dying request of your wife had she asked that a physician be summoned?" was asked of Disciple Judd, husband of the victim and "general manager of the Zion Land and Investment association."

"Yes, sir, I would," came the answer. "I would have known that she was not in her right mind had she made such a request."

This was the keynote to the defense for not calling medical aid.

"Doctors? They and medicine are of no use at all! The farther away they are, the better," snapped "Dr." Dowie in his turn.

Without the slightest apparent show of feeling, Judd, the husband, told the Coroner's jury how death had relieved his wife's agony after sixteen hours of suffering marked by convulsions. He told how he had "offered prayer" for her, how "Dr." Dowie had prayed for her relief at a call by telephone during the night, and then had gone back to his bed.

With as much emotion as if he were commenting on the weather the man told how he had held his wife in her bed to prevent her breaking her arms in the delirium of pain. He even held a cloth between her teeth to keep her from biting her tongue. The only aid extended to her had been prayer—prayer by himself, by "Deacon" Speicher, by "Dr." Dowie, by other ordained officials of the "Christian Catholic Church in Zion."

Dowie in Flippant Mood.

With a smile and in a sharp voice, as if he were preaching a sermon to his "faithful," Dowie himself told his story. He spoke braggingly of his carriage, of his "personal attendants," of the fact that his horses had carried him over the six miles from Zion to the Judd home in "thirty minutes." He joked about his age; laughed as he gave a jocular description of how his followers kept their health because they "don't believe in secret societies and don't ride goats."

Mr. Judd, too, sought to explain the beliefs of Dowieism. Interrupted once by a juror, he said, with a smile to "General Overseer" Dowie:

"Why, we would just as soon give a lesson now on divine healing, wouldn't we?"

When the afternoon's inquiry had concluded it was held by attorneys present that an opening for the law had been made.

"If those present at the bedside of Mrs. Judd knew that she was in imminent danger of death for any considerable length of time," said Assistant State's Attorney Blair, after looking up the laws, "there may be ground for criminal action."

"Dr." Dowie himself admitted that the woman was in a critical condition when he visited her. Mr. Judd asserted his belief that his wife was ill unto death.

Repudiates His Own Teachings.

The inquiry was memorable for another fact. For the first time since he set up his banners John Alexander Dowie had been served with a subpœna and had been charged to give testimony concerning the death of one of his followers. For the first time, too, he went back on his own teachings. He admitted that prayer and Dowie are not the cure-alls for every disease. He denied, however, that the aid of doctors was invoked.

"But, of course, we have trained nurses," he admitted under vigorous questioning. "They are needed to give aid."

This much "Dr." Dowie never before had admitted. By the "elders" and "evangelists" who have just renounced the church and flayed the "general overseer" as a fraud and a deceiver, his absolute faith in himself is said to be but one of the material props of which Dowie makes use.

Find Dowie at Last.

Subpœnas were served on Dowie and "Deacon" Speicher shortly before noon, after Detectives King and McKenna had haunted Zion for five days. When he was whirled up in his carriage, with a white dove as its armorial bearing, two hours later before Rolston's undertaking establishment he was at once surrounded by men of the Zion Guards. At his heels came his "Scotch gillie," Robertson. In the basement room he was surrounded by his supporters, who claimed the greater part of the space.

Coroner Traeger personally assisted Deputy Coroner Buckley. State's Attorney Deneen was represented by Assistant State's Attorney Elliott, while Attorney George J. Tobias acted as the Coroner's special counsel.

"Room for my stenographer and my clerks," Dowie commanded. These functionaries were stowed away and then the "General Overseer" took his place near his attorney, Thomas W. Packard, and Mr. Judd.

Victim's Husband Tells Story.

Judd was called at once. His appearance is that of a well-to-do business-man. His statement was long, being in part as follows:

"My wife complained last Saturday night about 11:30 o'clock of having a pain in her

CITY OFFICIALS MAKE AGREEMENT WITH PEOPLE'S COMPANY.

Will Have Free Lights and More of Them in Place of Present Compensation—Mayor Pleased with the Contract and Says Chicago Will Be the Best Illuminated Place in Christendom—Matter Still to Go Before the Council for Ratification.

COMPENSATION FROM GAS COMPANY.

Free gas for 25,000 street lamps, representing 3 1-2 per cent of company's receipts for illuminating gas and 5 per cent of receipts for fuel gas.

Increase of 5,000 in number of street lights.

Chicago will not have a gas bill to pay this year. The supply for the street lamps will be given by the People's Gaslight and Coke company. An agreement to this end was reached yesterday after a three-hour conference between city officials and representatives of the gas company. The city refused to withdraw the two suits which now are pending in Judge Kohlsaat's court, but probably will bind itself, as heretofore, not to attack the gas company consolidation act.

Within sixty days after the confirmation of the contract by the City Council, Mayor Harrison predicts, Chicago will be the "best lighted city in Christendom." The agreement will be sent to the Finance committee today, and is expected to reach the Council on Monday night.

Compensation in Terms of Cash.

To retain the idea of direct cash compensation the city will word the contract so that it binds the company to give 3½ per cent of its gross receipts from the sale of illuminating gas and 5 per cent from the sale of fuel gas, the terms of the previous contracts. The company, however, guarantees that this sum shall be equivalent to the rates for 25,000 street lights. This form of agreement gives the city free gas, but still preserves its right to demand cash compensation if it should become independent of the company.

The company further agrees to equip all street lights with incandescent mantles. The city agrees to maintain the lamps. The number is to be increased from 20,000 to 25,000, and it is estimated that the street lighting facilities will be improved three times. The details of the agreements are shown by the following table:

Compensation paid to the city last year	$206,000
Estimate for this year under old agreement	225,000
City gas bill last year	470,000
Company's expense in equipping lights	131,000
City expense in maintaining lights	126,000

It is conceded that the city has secured a better bargain from the gas company this year than it obtained last year. In money the bargain represents $50,000 to the credit of the city.

Conference in Mayor's Office.

The conference in the Mayor's office was attended by the Mayor, Corporation Counsel Walker, City Electrician Ellicott, Aldermen Goldzier, Raymer, Bennett, and Mavor, President Knapp of the gas company, and F. S. Winston and James F. Meagher, attorneys for the company.

The points in dispute were the form of compensation and the withdrawal of the suits. The city officials insisted that the litigation of the city against the company would not be withdrawn, and the company finally agreed that the contract should be made independent of the suits. The suits now pending are the bill of discovery to determine the character of the transaction by which the Ogden company was affiliated with the People's company and the suit to determine the city's right to regulate gas rates, as was attempted in the 75-cent gas ordinance. Both are before Judge Kohlsaat in the United States court.

While the company agrees to equip the lights with the mantels, the city takes charge of the maintenance, and the two items nearly balance each other. The contract is regarded as an advantageous one for the city. The compelling motive on the part of the company was said to be a desire to avoid litigation on the score of the constitutionality of the consolidation act.

Mayor for a Municipal System.

"I am free to confess," said the Mayor, "that I am willing to have the city bind itself not to attack the consolidation act. There is only one relief from the gas company and that lies with the Legislature. We must have a municipal lighting system."

The improvement which will be in the interest of citizens generally will be in the better lighting.

"With 20,000 incandescent lamps I can light the city 75 per cent better than it can be lighted with 25,000 of the old-style lamps," said Mr. Ellicott.

"Within sixty days after the contract is signed Chicago will be the best lighted city in Christendom," said Mayor Harrison. "I consider that the city has made a bargain from which every citizen will receive benefit."

STUDENTS AND SHOWMEN FIGHT

College Yell Angers Circus Men at Champaign, Ill., and Battle Follows, in Which Several Are Injured.

Urbana, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—In a pitched battle between students of the University of Illinois and employés of a circus in Champaign early this morning three students were badly beaten, one Champaign man was hurt, and a number of showmen were cut by stones and bricks.

R. W. Ward, a student from Bentonville, Ill., was knocked insensible and robbed by a showman. The others injured are: A. W. Amen, student of Peoria; H. T. Graber, student, and George Temple, a clerk in the American Express office, Champhign, who took no part in the fight.

The showmen became incensed on account of the students' college yell, and attacked the collegians, knocking a number of them down. Rallying to the assistance of their comrades, the collegians made a fight, but were finally driven from the tent. Gathering reinforcements the college men armed themselves with stones and waited for the circus to go to the train. A shower of bricks and rocks struck the wagons. A battle ensued. A canvas man fired his revolver into the crowd and the students broke and ran.

HEIDELMEIER'S NAME A SESAME.

Policeman Tries to Bar Inspector from Fire—Latter Strikes His Breast and Speaks Magic Word.

Inspector Heidelmeier's dignity received a shock last evening at 8 o'clock, when a South Side policeman tried to keep him away from a fire.

"I am Max Heidelmeier, from the North Side," said the Inspector, at the same time striking his breast. The patrolman apologized and the Inspector walked in.

The fire was caused by the explosion of a gasoline tank in the saloon of Charles Smith, 145 Randolph street. It did damage amounting to $1,000. Earl Stuts, who was at work on the tank when it exploded, was slightly hurt.

SOME HOPE FOR MRS. M'KINLEY.

HAS A CHANCE TO LIVE.

ALARM IN EARLY MORNING.

ALL PROGRAMS ARE CANCELED.

San Francisco, Cal., May 17, 1:30 a. m.—Secretary Cortelyou has just announced that Mrs. McKinley is so much better that no further news will be given out tonight.

Dr. Hirschfelder and H. T. Scott have left the Scott residence, the doctor going home for the night.

Dr. Hirschfelder said that he felt that Mrs. McKinley was decidedly improved. Mr. Scott said he felt much pleased over her condition.

Secretary Cortelyou announced that no further bulletins would be given out tonight unless unexpected developments should take place.

The last bulletin was issued at 8:45 this evening and was as follows:

"The physicians in attendance on Mrs. McKinley report her condition has decidedly improved since morning. Her pulse and temperature are satisfactory. The patient is resting well."

At this hour the lights in the building are out with the exception of the one in the telegraph room.

San Francisco, Cal., May 17, 1 a. m.—After a day of depressing anxiety the watchers at the bedside of Mrs. McKinley are now hopeful for her recovery.

They do not speak with entire assurance, for their patient is not yet out of danger, and they are warned against overconfidence by the realization of the fact that all day yesterday the President's wife was within the shadow of death.

As evening approached it was feared that the end might come at any moment. Then came the rally in the patient's condition. Her mind cleared, and she conversed with her husband and her niece. She even asked for food, and, under the physicians' direction, nourishment was given her without bad effect.

Later in the evening Mrs. McKinley's condition was so much improved that Dr. Hirschfelder left the house for the night, and the President, the members of his Cabinet, and their wives retired for a brief rest, ready to be called, however, at an instant's warning.

Thursday was an anxious day for the watchers by her bedside. In the early morning, just before dawn, she sank rapidly, and it was feared she would die before restoratives could be administered. But she responded to the powerful heart stimulants which were given to her, and during the day improved to such an extent that hope of her recovery, slight though it was, revived.

The new treatment for low vitality—salt injections into the veins—was administered to Mrs. McKinley, and she responded to the treatment. But her physicians fear she could not survive another sinking spell such as she experienced on Thursday morning. She suffered little during the day and bore up bravely. During her periods of consciousness her mind was clear. The President has been constantly at her bedside, and, although worn by his long vigil, is standing the awful strain with remarkable fortitude.

Every banquet and public function planned in his honor here has been abandoned, and the city, with the President, watched Mrs. McKinley's battle for life.

If Mrs. McKinley improves it is not believed that she will be able to travel before a week from the coming Monday. All the members of the Cabinet, with the possible exception of Secretary Long, will remain here to the end.

In the Watches of the Night.

During the long watches of the night the President did not leave Mrs. McKinley's bedside. Shortly before midnight, when Drs. Hirschfelder and Gibbons departed and Dr. Rixey lay down for a little rest, there was hope that her life would be spared. All day the President watched the doctors' faces and scanned the demeanor of the nurses for a sign of encouragement, and they had urged him not to despair.

Mrs. McKinley had appreciably rallied during the early hours of Wednesday night, and at 10 o'clock was so much better that the President had gone in next door to show himself for a few minutes at a little reception which was being held there. After midnight for hours there was no sign of life in the Scott mansion, except the night lamp burning low in Mrs. McKinley's room. The fog had drifted in with the coming of the sea wind, and the city lay swathed in it as in a shroud.

Has a Sinking Spell.

At 5 o'clock yesterday morning the police patroling outside and the group of newspaper watchers on the corner opposite saw a stir in the house. Lights flickered here and—there, a carriage with rubber tires rolled swiftly up to the door out of the gloom, and Dr. Hirschfelder alighted.

The word was whispered that Mrs. McKinley was sinking. For a time it was thought she was dying, but powerful artificial heart stimulants revived her slightly. When daylight came the doctors held another consultation, and the news of Mrs. McKinley's sinking spell was given out by Secretary Cortelyou, but no word of encouragement. With it went formal notification that all engagements for the remainder of the President's stay in San Francisco were canceled. The President no longer had the heart to hold out false hope that he would be able to attend any of the functions arranged here in his honor.

The President directed that all of Mrs. McKinley's relatives be advised of the extremely critical condition of her illness.

Friends Near at Hand.

The room in which Mrs. McKinley lay is a sunny chamber at the southeast corner of the residence, but the flood of sunshine was excluded. Gathered in the adjoining room were the ladies of the Cabinet. Miss Barber, Mrs. McKinley's niece, had remained at the Scott residence all night, and Mr. and Mrs. Morse, nephew and niece respectively of Mrs. McKinley, were summoned early in the morning. Below stairs the members of the Cabinet, Postmaster General Smith, Secretary Hay, Secretary Hitchcock, and Secretary Wilson, were assembled.

From time to time Secretary Cortelyou, who has entire charge of everything throughout the entire ordeal of the last few days, and who has been present almost continually, came down to keep them informed of the developments.

Suffers Only a Little.

Mrs. McKinley suffered little. She lay practically in a stupor and the doctors said there was no pain. Every one at the residence realized that it would require almost a miracle to save her.

At 11 o'clock yesterday the physicians had another consultation. "No better," was the statement they issued.

Privately they shook their heads. Mrs. McKinley had no reserve strength to call upon. She had taken practically no nourishment for several days, but even with everything against her they said there was still a bare chance for her to survive.

At noon there was a report that Mrs. McKinley had died, and at once flags began to drop to half mast all over the city. It was soon learned that it was incorrect and gradually the flags were restored to their former position.

Signs of Improvement.

As the day progressed there was a noticeable improvement in Mrs. McKinley's condition and a distinct revival of hope in the minds of the anxious watchers at her bedside. Her mind cleared and she asked the President about the ladies of the Cabinet and how they were enjoying themselves. She expressed a desire that her illness should not be allowed to interfere with their pleasure. Miss Hitchcock and Miss Wilson, who were in the next room at the time, were summoned and she greeted them with a faint smile.

Asks for Food.

During the progress of luncheon, which Postmaster General Smith and Secretary Hitchcock took with the President, Miss Barber came down-stairs and told the small company that Mrs. McKinley had just asked for chicken and coffee, saying she was tired of the liquid nourishment which the doctors were giving her.

This evidence of her reviving strength was considered extremely gratifying, and for a time the little company was almost exultant. [illegible], however, the hope they felt was disproportionate to the slight grounds upon which it was based.

The doctors, of course, were compelled to refuse Mrs. McKinley solid food. For two days they have only been able to give her beef tea and brandy, together with the other stimulants for her enfeebled heart action. Nitro-glycerine and the most powerful stimulants known to the medical profession were resorted to.

President Takes a Walk.

At about 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon the President decided to go out for a walk, and, accompanied by the Postmaster General and the Secretary of the Interior, he strolled through the neighboring streets, returning the respectful salutations which were met with from all who recognized him, and once or twice he stopped to shake hands with those who stepped up and requested that privilege.

Upon his return to the house he told a group of newspaper men assembled there that Mrs. McKinley was holding her own. During the afternoon the President expressed the opinion that the public was entitled to specific information regarding the nature of Mrs. McKinley's illness and the treatment she was receiving. Up to that time the bulletins issued at intervals since yesterday had been of the briefest and most vague character, and the public was largely in the dark as to the character of the trouble which had brought her to death's door. It was at the President's distinct request that a signed statement be prepared and issued by the physicians.

Bishop Nichols a Caller.

Bishop Nichols of the Episcopal Church was one of the visitors at the Scott mansion in the afternoon. He spent some time with Mrs. McKinley, and as he left the house he said he had found Mrs. McKinley in a low condition, but that the physicians had informed him that they had not relinquished hope of her recovery. His visit was informal as Mrs. McKinley and he are of different religious denominations.

A special telegraph wire has been stretched into the Scott house, and direct telegraphic communication established between the President and the national capital. Secretary Cortelyou is thus enabled to notify Washington of Mrs. McKinley's condition without intrusting his messages to outside hands, and a considerable saving of time in their transmission will also be effected. Two telegraph operators are kept busy with the President's correspondence.

Desire for Direct News.

All day long Lafayette Park, opposite the Scott residence, was filled with crowds of people, not drawn thither so much by curiosity as by an eager desire for direct news from the sick room. Late in the afternoon a little girl with an armful of flowers braved the bluecoats and ascended the steps. The butler opened the door: "I brought these for Mrs. McKinley," she lisped. "We are so sorry. I hope she will be better soon." Then she handed over the flowers and slipped away.

Secretary Hay, utterly worn out by the strain of the last few days and the fatigue of the long journey across the country, rested in his room in the hotel all day. Mrs. Hay, who was at the Scott residence, kept him frequently advised of the developments there.

Story of Her Illness.

Mrs. McKinley's attack of illness began shortly after she left El Paso. She had stood the trip remarkably well up to that time, with the exception of a slight period of depression during the stay at New Orleans. That, however, soon passed away and she felt unusually well throughout the trip across the State of Texas until El Paso was reached. At that place the bone felon made its first appearance and proved trying upon her nerves as well as giving her much pain. The heat and dust of the long desert stretch through New Mexico and Arizona was a severe strain upon her strength.

Before Los Angeles was reached the felon had been once lanced by Dr. Rixey. At the latter place her illness was still further complicated by a severe attack of bowel trouble and she had a bad night at the residence of General Harrison Gray Otis. But she bore up bravely and insisted, rather against the advice of the President and other members of the party, upon trying to fulfill the social obligations which fell upon her.

The tax upon her strength was too great, and after leaving Los Angeles it became apparent to both Dr. Rixey and the President that Mrs. McKinley was an extremely sick woman.

At Surf, a small station near Santa Cruz, the train was stopped for almost half an hour to permit Dr. Rixey to again lance the felon in order to relieve her from the keen pain from which she was suffering.

By the time Del Monte was reached she was in almost a complete state of collapse. The dysentery did not yield to treatment and Dr. Rixey and the President became genuinely alarmed.

It was at first proposed that a physician should be summoned from San Francisco for consultation and that Mrs. McKinley should remain quietly at the hotel at Del Monte in the hope that a few days of absolute rest and quiet would restore her to her normal condition, but after a conference on the subject with Mr. Scott it was decided that it would be wiser to bring her to his house, where every comfort could be provided, where trained nurses could be procured, and where the best physicians in San Francisco could be called in consultation if necessary.

Takes No Solid Food.

After her arrival here, Mrs. McKinley took no solid food whatever, and the doctors were not able to completely check the dysentery. Except by reputation, the President knew nothing of Dr. Hirschfelder, whom Mr. Scott advised should be called in as consulting physician, and this worried him considerably.

After Mrs. McKinley had been here only twenty-four hours without noticeable improvement, the President asked Mr. Scott what his opinion of Dr. Hirschfelder was.

"He is brutally frank," replied Mr. Scott.

"I shall have a talk with him," said the President.

He took Dr. Hirschfelder into an adjoining room and they were together for some time. Afterward the President remarked to Mr. Scott that the opinion he had expressed of Dr. Hirschfelder's frankness agreed with his own.

CONTINUE PLANS FOR M'KINLEY.

Local Committee Decides to Go On with Arrangements Until Advised to Contrary by the President.

"Nothing but the death of Mrs. McKinley will cause the committee to abandon its plans for entertaining the President in Chicago on June 11 according to the original program," said Secretary A. A. Burnham of the joint committee yesterday afternoon. "We will continue our arrangements just as if nothing had happened and we will not give up hope of receiving the President until we have definite advice from him. Plans for the banquet at the Coliseum are practically complete."

The committee held a special meeting yesterday to consider what course to pursue in view of Mrs. McKinley's critical illness. Chairman Foster telegraphed the President on Wednesday inquiring whether a change in plan would be necessary, but up to last evening no reply had been received.

BRITISH ARMY BILL IS PASSED.

Broderick's Measure Adopted by Vote of 305 to 163 in House of Commons.

BALFOUR'S PLAIN WORDS.

Says That in 1899 the Small Arms Reserve of Ammunition Was Only 3,300 Rounds.

CAUSED REAL UNEASINESS.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, May 16.—After a debate lasting three days the House of Commons tonight approved Secretary of War Brodrick's army reform scheme by a vote of 305 to 163, having previously rejected Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman's condemnatory amendment by a vote of 327 to 211. Mr. Arthur Balfour, government leader in the House, in summing up the debate revealed a situation at the end of 1899 and the beginning of 1900 which, in the event of foreign complications, would have been most perilous.

In rebutting the criticism that the government's proposals were excessive he recalled that the Liberal government was ousted in 1895 because the ammunition reserve was insufficient, being only 92,000,000 rounds for small arms, when it ought to have been 146,000,000. The Conservatives had increased it to 170,000,000 and had maintained it on that basis.

Nevertheless, at the time referred to above there were only 3,300 rounds of small arms ammunition in Great Britain and no reserve of artillery ammunition, except what was actually with the guns retained at home, notwithstanding the fact that the government factories and all private factories were working twenty-four hours each day and seven days a week.

Mr. Balfour said that he would never go through such a period or do anything to thrust such a strain on his successors.

Call Balfour Indiscreet.

The Liberal papers seize upon Mr. Balfour's sensational statment in the House, referring to it as "an amazing indiscretion." The Daily News says:

Bill as Passed Not Liked.

Notwithstanding the result of the division there was nothing like whole-hearted support of the army scheme, either inside or outside the House. One government organ goes to the length of saying that if the members felt free to vote according to their convictions the majority would have been as great on the other side. The debate, indeed, produced a remarkable amount of hostile criticism from the government side, this being chiefly based on the belief that it will be impossible to obtain recruits, the logical outcome being conscription, and the fear that the enormous expense will result in crippling the navy.

Even the advocates of the scheme betray uneasiness. They comfort themselves with Mr. Brodrick's admission that it is a skeleton plan, which he, in conjunction with the Commander-in-Chief, will have to clothe with flesh.

Advise Radical Army Change.

It is understood that the commission which the government appointed early in the year, under the chairmanship of Mr. Clinton E. Dawkins, to consider War office reforms has reported in favor of a scheme of reorganization that is almost revolutionary.

JUSTICE HALL'S FIRST DAY ON THE HARRISON STREET BENCH

JUSTICE W. T. HALL — "BIFF."

"A case a minute—justice in a rough-riding specialty—and the dignity of the law maintained at the pace that kills."

So said Police Magistrate William T. Hall as he settled back in his chair yesterday and surveyed the situation after his first day's experience in the Harrison Street Station police court.

"It's a long time since I felt like having a good stretch," he continued, extending his arms to right and left. "The crowd made me creepy, so unlike the feeling to which I had become accustomed at the Thirty-fifth street court. Here I am after my first day in the levee, actually hump-backed from poring over a docket bearing the names of black, white, and yellow offenders. Never saw or experienced anything like it since twenty years ago July 10 when, as a reporter for THE TRIBUNE, I paid my first visit to the Harrison street police court."

Across the way, through a cavern courteously called a hallway, sat Justice Prindiville. It was Justice Prindiville who presided at the same court twenty years ago when Reporter Hall drifted into the police station to "cover" an inquest for his paper. In that day Pacific avenue was at its worst. Yesterday Justice Hall observed "a mighty heap of the riff-raff still lived and did business at the same old stand."

"When I first saw the levee twenty years ago," said Justice Hall, "I concluded that the place was the headwaters of all villainy. I was curious to observe the workings of the police court, so I dropped in and sat down on the same piece of board which now serves as a reportorial bench and saw Justice Prindiville at work. John's a record-breaker as a stayer, and yet he tells me he is a young man now. But that's his story. After that I saw Harrison street during the administrations of Justices Logan D. Wallace, John Summerfield, George A. Meech, and David J. Lyon.

"This morning I found the practice just the same, with the exception of a difference in the clerical work. By the way, one time Charles Dickens drifted into Old Bailey, or one of the stuffy prisons of London, and saw a fly streak across one of the few sunbeams entering the ruin. He made a psychological study of the insect, and when he had finished the task he concluded that the fly was insane, for what could a sane fly be doing there in that hole? Now, I saw a fly come in from Prindiville's court this morning and, like Dickens, concluded that it must be of unsound mind; otherwise it would have deserted the place long ago.

"I really cannot say that the character of the defendants of today and those of twenty years ago is particularly different. Same old drunks, disorderlies, loafers, and thieves, drinking the same old whisky and fighting over the same old clothes lines. Same old set of blarneying topers and the same black-faced offenders, who say 'Yo' honah' in the same old honeyed way. But withal I am glad of the change.

"The system at Harrison street is different from that at the Thirty-fifth street court," continued Justice Hall, reverting to the actual work of the court. "For instance, every policeman comes up with his case all prepared. His prisoner or prisoners are with him and the jury waivers signed in advance to save time. That's why the mills don't grind slowly at Harrison street. Then there's Mike White. All warrants are drawn up by Mike. He hears three or four words of a thousand word wail and, lo! the warrant is ready. Mike keeps 'em moving like a treadmill.

"There were a couple of men before me this morning for fighting on the street.

"'I brought these stiffs in to preserve the peace, yer Honer,' said the policeman.

"'What were they doing to the peace?' I asked.

"'One felly wuz jostlin' an' scatterin' tother's features, an' I jus' tuk 'em both in,' he replied.

"I let the fellows go with a warning to hoist the white flag until the City Council amends the ordinance respecting glove contests.

"One of the big bunch of beggars in court said he merely had asked the complaining witness for the price of a cup of coffee. I thought if he had such a fondness for coffee he could get it at the bridewell, so I sent him there for thirty days. I punished every beggar who came before me. They're a bad lot.

"A chap from Grinnell, Ia., was before me. Said he had been robbed of $3,500. As a matter of fact it was only $35. The balance he had sent home. It's fellows like that who give Chicago a hard name. These stories of big losses need sifting down."

WANT CLAIMS CUT DOWN.

CHINESE SEEK TO BARGAIN WITH MISSIONARIES.

Ask Protestant Associations to Make Reductions for Prompt Settlements, as Catholics Did—Sincerity of Desire to Settle Principal Indemnity Is Doubted by Ministers—Germans Report Kalgan Explosion as Severe—French Defer Departure.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

PEKIN, May 16.—Chou Fu, the Provincial Treasurer of Paoting-Fu and special commissioner on the claims of the missionaries, has returned the indemnity lists to the missionaries and inquired if the amounts asked for could be reduced. He intimated that a settlement of their claims could be made on the bargain principle, as in the case of the Catholics, who reduced their bills to a large extent.

Prominent Chinese are divided as to the ability of China to pay the indemnity demanded by the powers. One high official said today that an assessment of one tael per capita could be easily paid. Others, who understand the corruption of the Chinese government, say this is an impossible proposition.

Kalgan Explosion Serious.

BERLIN, May 16.—The War office has received a dispatch from Pekin concerning the explosion at the arsenal in Kalgan and naming Lieutenant Kummer as the officer wounded. The dispatch characterizes the explosion as serious, saying seven cavalrymen are reported missing or found dead and that three men beside Lieutenant Kummer were seriously wounded.

BOER RAIDERS NEAR MAFEKING.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

CAPE TOWN, May 16.—Four parties of Boers visited Kraal Pan, south of Mafeking, Cape Colony, on the morning of May 10. During the night they took position on the kopje from which the Boer guns opened fire on Oct. 12, 1899. They pillaged the natives who were living on the kopje, killing two, and seriously wounding three others. Then they crept upon the garrison at the siding, but a sentry discovered the presence of the burghers, and their attempt at a surprise was frustrated.

O'BRIEN'S ATTACK ON WYNDHAM

Recently Suppressed Paper Devotes Nine Columns to Irish Secretary, but Says Nothing of the King.

DUBLIN, May 16.—The Irish People, Mr. William O'Brien's paper, contains a nine-column attack on Mr. Wyndham, the Irish Secretary, for the recent seizure of the paper because of its insulting references to King Edward. The general policy of Mr. Wyndham is also assailed.

Some of the subheads are the following: "Fools or Assassins or Both," "Better Castle Lawlessness than Castle Cant," and "The Meanness of the Rascals."

"Villainy," "treachery," "hypocrisy and mendacity" are frequently used in reference to Mr. Wyndham, who in conclusion is called "a liar, sneak, and back biter."

Nothing is said against the King.

Mussolino has for a long time defied the police and military powers of the kingdom to capture him, and his success in eluding arrest is due in a great measure to the aid rendered him by the peasants.

WISCONSIN ICE UNDER TAX

GOVERNOR SIGNS BILL, RAISING PRICE IN CHICAGO.

Export Charge of Ten Cents a Ton—President Field of Knickerbocker Company Says Rates to Consumers Must Go Up When Hot Weather Comes—In Approving Act Gov. La Follette Says Ice Cut from Meandered Lakes Is Public Property.

Governor La Follette of Wisconsin yesterday approved the bill taxing all ice shipped out of that State 10 cents a ton. This action will cause an advance in the retail price to Chicago consumers. This fact was announced last night by President John S. Field of the Knickerbocker Ice company, which ships two-thirds of its supply from Wisconsin and now has 1,000,000 tons of ice stored in that State.

"The approval of the bill and the tax thereby placed upon ice will necessitate an advance in the price," said President Field. "The cost of landing the ice in Chicago naturally is increased, and while we believe the bill is unconstitutional, until it is declared so the consumer must pay the tax. The Knickerbocker Ice company has a number of houses outside of the State of Wisconsin, but two-thirds of its supply is drawn from there.

"The signing of the measure by Governor La Follette is a surprise, as it was believed he would hold with others in the State that the law could not be enforced because of unconstitutionality. Our company undoubtedly will test the validity of the act in the courts.

"While the price of ice will be advanced, it is not likely that the increase will take place until warm weather. The cost of putting up ice last winter was greater than previously and it is more difficult to deliver than heretofore. Prosperity has had a double effect on the ice business in increasing the demand for ice and the cost of labor."

Reasons of Wisconsin Governor.

In recording his approval of the bill Governor La Follette said:

"In my judgment there is no valid constitutional objection to that part of the bill which imposes a license fee of 10 cents a ton on each ton of ice taken from meandered inland lakes of the State for the purpose of shipment out of the State. The ice so taken is the property of the State. It is within the scope of legislative authority to prohibit its shipment altogether. This being so, the imposition of a license fee of 10 cents a ton is clearly within legislative power.

"The bill does not impose a tax, but is rather in the nature of sale of the ice. It is not a regulation of nor restriction on interstate commerce.

Ice Already Cut May Be Exempt.

"Even admitting that it is beyond the limit of legislative power to tax ice already cut, I do not think this bill should be disapproved. All provisions of the bill pertaining to ice cut and shipped in the future are valid and easily may be separated from the provisions in reference to ice already cut and stored. While there also may be some question as to the wisdom of the public policy of this measure, that question is one properly to be determined by the Legislature itself.

"Doubtless considerable revenue will accrue to the State by reason of the license fee here imposed and it would seem to be just that some consideration should be received by the State for this property to which it has title."

New Turbine Steamer Launched.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

GLASGOW, May 16.—Denny Bros. of Dumbarton, the builders of Shamrock II., today launched the steamship King Edward, the first commercial vessel to be fitted with turbine engines. It is expected to develop a speed of twenty knots per hour.

CITY OFFICIALS TRY TO PERFORM POLICE DUTIES, WITH VARYING SUCCESS.

Corporation Counsel Thinks He Scents a "Con" Man and Finds a Friend.

"Have you seen the big buildings yet? There are some large ones. Have you seen the torpedo boat in the river? Would you like to see the explosion on the lake front? There is a big hole in the lake where a man fell in. Don't you want to see it? Or we can go in this saloon, where a man has three shells and a pea, and you can try to pick the pea."

Corporation Counsel Walker heard this conversation on Washington street yesterday at noon. One of the men apparently was not a resident of Chicago. The soil of Kenosha was on his boots. The other man he could not see, but he recognized the species.

The Corporation Counsel was on a hot trail. One of the "con" men had escaped Chief O'Neill, and Mr. Walker prepared to take him into custody.

Just as the suggestion relative to the three shells and a pea was made the two men turned to enter a saloon. Then Mr. Walker squared himself and started to arrest the "con" man. He wheeled around in front of the two and started to collar the shell worker. As he saw the man's face he changed his mind. The rascal was an acquaintance of the Corporation Counsel, while the victim was one of the rascal's friends who had left Chicago for a north shore village and who was being "joshed" about his new place of residence.

It might not be well to record that there was an invitation from the Corporation Counsel to enter the saloon and have something besides shells and peas.

City Sealer Has Some Luck When He Encounters Short Coal Men.

This is the story of how "Jimmie" Quinn, the City Sealer, whose aim is to make trouble for men who think a pint and a half make a quart and 1,300 pounds a ton, subdued two coal drivers. The City Sealer is small and the coal drivers were big, but Quinn had the advantage of being able to express himself in Gaelic, while the drivers were proficient only in river front dialects.

The coal drivers had backed up to a residence and had secured receipts for the delivery of coal. They then spilled out half the load on the sidewalk, driving away with the other half.

As a new trick in the short weight game this seemed to be a winner, but it was so new that the drivers had to talk about it. It was good enough to laugh about, and the City Sealer, who happened to be passing, had his attention attracted by the joke. He walked alongside the wagons until he fathomed the scheme, and then he started for the middle of the road.

"Hi," he yelled. "You fellows go back and put the rest of that coal out."

The coal drivers stopped and sized up the Sealer, then inquired why "he was buttin' in" and climbed down from their wagons bent on whipping Quinn.

"Who are you?" they bawled.

Quinn stuck his chin into the face of the biggest driver.

"I am the City Sealer, you thieving pups. Now drill back," he said.

Alderman Rushes to Aid of a Woman and Barely Escapes a Beating.

Alderman Frank L. Race, who lives in Austin, tried to help out Captain Gibbons' men in the First Ward. His efforts were not rewarded by any great amount of success. He succeeded in escaping an irate teamster and avoided being taken to Harrison Street Police Station on a charge of disorderly conduct, but the amount of law he enforced was infinitesimal. And in escaping the teamster he was assisted by two Assistant City Attorneys, so that the credit for that was not undivided.

The Alderman saw the teamster drive down upon an old woman at State and Madison streets. The old woman was rescued, but the teamster did not seem to have a realizing sense of his conduct. The Alderman proceeded into the street and began a fatherly lecture.

The teamster was burly, and there were no outward tokens of authority visible about the Alderman.

"Who are you," he grunted.

The Alderman waved his cot lapel back and forth to show his star and continued his lecture. The teamster thought the man was excited and was fanning himself. He said he "rather towed" he'd better get down and "whop" him. The man then proceeded to climb from the wagon seat. Mr. Race retired, with the teamster after him.

Then the policeman at the street crossing came over to arrest the Alderman for inciting a riot, but the two Assistant City Attorneys at that moment ran into the crowd and rescued him.

The Reason? Few are taught how to use the eyes, and secondly uric acid in the blood has a strong affinity for the optic nerve. If your eyesight is failing, if you have specks and blurs before your eyes, you are the victim of kidney disease, and no time should be lost in securing and using Warner's Safe Cure, which will put over-worked and diseased kidneys in good health, and the excess of uric acid will be driven from the system instead of passing into and poisoning it. Failing eyesight in eight cases out of ten is a danger signal which should be heeded.

M. CAMBON LINKS TWO REPUBLICS.

America and France, He Declares, Have Similar Tastes and Sympathies.

SPEECH MADE IN FRENCH.

Tells Chicago University Students This Country Is Not Anglo-Saxon.

HEARS A COLLEGE YELL.

France and America are closely akin in tastes and sympathies, declared M. Jules Cambon, French Ambassador, at the University of Chicago yesterday. He said he could not agree this country was Anglo-Saxon, that the early settlers and later immigrants were too diversified in nationality to justify the statement the present population generally was of English descent. The frequent reference to England as the "mother country" was disapproved by the Ambassador, and before leaving this branch of his subject he said:

"If I were an American I would not like to confess that my country was the heir of another yet living."

Address Given in French.

The Ambassador delivered his address in his native tongue. This was a shock to the students and others who had assembled to hear the distinguished visitor. Few of them could understand what was being said, and the result came near being a breach in the bond of sympathy which to this moment had existed between them and the Ambassador. Many began to edge toward the door, but the greater part of the audience remained and put on a bold front of understanding and appreciation.

M. Cambon explained the use of his native tongue in three reasons: First, because more would understand him than if he attempted to speak in English; second, because French was the language of diplomacy, and he was a diplomat; and third, because the meeting was arranged to give sanction to an institution which existed for the purpose of teaching French.

M. Cambon's visit to the university was to give the sanction of his government to the affiliations of the Alliance Française with the university, the latter now being the only organization in the world, except the government of France, authorized to give diplomas to students who have completed the courses prescribed by the Alliance.

Will Add Chinese and Japanese.

President Harper made the announcement in Kent Theater that the study of Chinese and Japanese languages and literature would be added to the curriculum at some future time. He explained he regarded it as the mission of the university to mediate not only between man and man, but between nation and nation.

M. Cambon arrived in Chicago on the Pennsylvania limited at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. He was met at the station by M. Henri Merou, the French Consul in Chicago; Vice Consul Maurice Hellman, James Deering, at whose house he will be a guest; H. J. Furber Jr., President of the Chicago branch of the Alliance Française; Professors George C. Howland, A. A. Michelson, Paul Shorey, Maurice Ingres, E. Freund, and Charles Zeublin, members of the university faculty. After greeting the members of the committee M. Cambon drove with Mr. Deering to the latter's house, 67 Cedar street.

At noon he was a guest at a luncheon given by Martin A. Ryerson at the Chicago club, after which he drove to the university. On the campus he found the members of the faculty, in cap and gown and hood, assembled in front of Haskell Hall. A procession was immediately started to Kent Theater, led by the band, playing "Hail to the Spirit of Liberty."

Kent Theater Crowded.

The entrance to Kent Theater was densely packed with students long before the hour set for opening the doors. In half a minute after the doors were opened all available space in the building was crowded with students, while others, unable to gain entrance, pushed and scrambled in the hall for a position near enough to hear parts of the speeches. Although warm and jostled and perspiring, the students were in good humor, and whiled away the few moments of waiting with improvised yells.

"Oui, oui, oui, oui, oui, oui, oui, oui, oui, Cambon!" shouted a group in the lower part of the house.

"Rah, rah, rah, rah, rah, rah, rah, rah, rah, how'd you like to be the ice man?" retorted a rival crowd in the gallery.

When M. Cambon entered with President Harper and Professor E. J. James there was loud cheering, and the Ambassador was given to understand that he was—

"First in war, first in peace, first in the hearts of Chicago men, tum didi dum dum—dum dum."

Harper Tells University Plans.

President Harper made a brief talk on the religion of democracy, in which, he said, the university and higher education were the high priests. He said it was a part of this religion to bring into closer relations the various nations of the earth, to make them mutually familiar with each other's language, literature, and history. In this connection, he said, the university would shortly have the privilege of hearing from a man who would speak officially of Russia.

"What has been undertaken for Russia and France," concluded Dr. Harper, "will be undertaken for other nations, for China and Japan, for it is the function of the university to mediate not only between man and man, but between nation and nation."

Tribute to the French.

Professor E. J. James made an address of welcome on behalf of the trustees, faculty, and students of the university. He cited historic occasions when the aid of France had been extended to the United States at critical times and paid a glowing tribute to Lafayette, whose name, he said, was indissolubly connected with Washington's in the history of the American revolution.

"Our debt to France," said Professor James, "is reflected in every aspect of modern life, thought, taste, and action. No other nation has led on so many different occasions and in so many different ways. It has entered every road leading to the height of human effort, and has entered only to lead. But it is not merely as citizens of the world, as joint heirs in this common heritage which your people have worked out for us, that we gladly welcome you here to day. As men, as citizens, devoted to the same high ideal of human welfare, we welcome you as the representative of workers and coworkers in a common cause—the cause of democracy—adherents and devotees of the same principle of human freedom and equality—a principle which under God is destined to turn and overturn until humanity is redeemed.

"Americans and Frenchmen, wherever they meet, under whatever skies, on whatever occasion, should dedicate themselves anew to the cause for which their fathers and brothers died. We should take up with ever fresh energy the contest for government for the people, and of the people, and by the people—the only sure pledge of the reign of liberty, equality, and fraternity—the reign of equal opportunity, of peace, and of love."

M. Cambon, rising to reply, was greeted with an enthusiastic outburst of applause. After thanking the university for the cordial reception given him, and especially for giving a domicile to the Alliance Française, he gave a brief history of the organization, which, he said, was founded twenty-two years ago by M. Victor Durry, the Minister of Public Instruction.

"France always has had numerous schools in the Orient," said M. Cambon. "These schools, these colleges, these universities, for the most part of ancient establishment, date back through several centuries. It has been possible to encourage them without introducing into that encouragement any spirit of sect or church. To accomplish this result there was founded twenty years ago in Paris the French Alliance. Associated with M. Durry in the work were such notable men as the Cardinal Lavigerie and M. Jules Ferry and others, all without any kind of distinction of party or religion. Independent societies of like kind, bound to the mother society in Paris only by bonds of friendship, have been established in a number of places. Even in America we have one such in Boston and another in New York. I have had the pleasure of being received by these societies, and I am brought here today to testify by my presence the interest I feel in the society established for some time in this city.

"The Alliance Française is designed to encourage and develop the taste for French literature and the French spirit. This taste should be sufficiently profound to permit a penetration to the truths of French literature, an understanding of its immortal and classic monuments in the past, and the immense contribution which it makes today to philosophy, to history, to the physical and the mathematical sciences.

"The French language, being that which is most widely spread among persons of leisure of all nations, becomes the language which is most often employed in books which are addressed only to frivolous minds, but through too hasty judgment, based on this fact, one may measure too lightly the works of the French spirit, forgetting that the French language, even in this century, has been the language of Auguste Comte, of Pasteur, Claude Bernard, and Lamartine.

Akin in Taste and Sympathy.

"France and America are closely akin in tastes and sympathies, and the French spirit is not greatly different from the American spirit. It is commonly said that England and America are the two great Anglo-Saxon nations. I admit America is an English-speaking nation, but I cannot agree it is Anglo-Saxon. The people who made the early settlements in the United States and the later emigrants who made the population what it is now were too diversified to justify the statement that the country is of English descent. It is a mixture of many races. If I were an American I would not like to confess that my country was the heir of another yet living.

"It is in this mixture of many peoples that America resembles France. What are the French? A mingling of Celt, Frank, Norman, and Roman. An amalgamation such as this produces a nation stronger and more energetic and intelligent than one derived from a single stock.

Objects of Education.

"The University of Chicago in giving an abiding place to the Alliance follows the rôle which should be undertaken by universities everywhere. The object of education is the preparation of men for the combats of life and in leading them by the notions it furnishes them of fulfilling honorably and faithfully the duties of their professions. But university studies do even more. They permit men to raise themselves above the limitations of the professional spirit, above even the horizon of the country in which they may live. They make of a man one who belongs to humanity as a whole, and thus they aid in universal progress. They facilitate union between peoples. They aid in the maintenance of the spirit of peace, so necessary to the development, moral and economic, of the world at large.

"Thus the Chicago University in aiding the French Alliance in its special work lends itself to the progress of scholarship. It does more, and in fact it permits the young people of this great city to have a better comprehension of universal life. In a way it opens the windows of their minds and it permits them to benefit by the rare qualities of measure, of logic, and of clearness which belong especially to the French spirit.

"I can only, therefore, praise in the highest degree the union between the Chicago University and the French Alliance which we celebrate today, and concerning it I congratulate myself both as a Frenchman and a friend of the United States."

After the exercises in Kent Theater a reception was given the Ambassador at the Quadrangle club, which was attended by members of the faculty and their wives.

Chicago Praised by Cambon.

M. Cambon was the guest of honor at a banquet in the Union League club last night which was attended by fifty representative business-men of the city. Volney W. Foster, President of the club, was toastmaster. In response to the toastmaster's welcoming address M. Cambon spoke as follows:

"I cannot express to you how much I am touched by the reception given me today by the University of Chicago. It is the first visit I have been able to make to this great city. I confess I experienced a keen regret in not having been able earlier to penetrate into this center where seem to be exhibited every human activity, industry, and intelligence. From New York and from Philadelphia one finds in coming here a series of considerable cities, and finally in Chicago one seems indeed to feel an industrial power which is quite immeasurable. One feels here the active and energetic youth of the people of the United States.

"Nature has indicated that Chicago should be in a way the central point of the United States—the chain which binds the East and the older States of the Union to the West, whose destiny it is to open to the United States on the Pacific immense future possibilities. It is here that the region of the lakes is bound to that of the Mississippi, which is itself the granary of the new world. Indeed, in stretching out the hand on the one side to New York and on the other to San Francisco, looking toward Canada on the north and Louisiana on the south, you become the cross roads where the economical forces of the United States meet and are concentrated.

"Therefore we Frenchmen, whose fathers aided in the establishment of your independence, can only admire and applaud your success. In all parts of this country we find with pride something of ourselves. In the East our soldiers fought side by side with yours at Yorktown. In the West it was Napoleon himself who ceded to you the territory of Louisiana and thus permitted you to reach to the Pacific itself. Hence we have been among the most active artisans of your greatness. We admire it, and, pardon us for that, we are proud of having worked with your fathers to the same end.

"I am convinced that the sentiments that I now express can but go on developing themselves and growing stronger every day, and it is with that thought I drink to the honor of the City and University of Chicago."

Ferdinand W. Peck said no foreigner had been of greater service to the United States that the French Ambassador, and suggested the names of Lafayette and Cambon be linked together as the friends and benefactors of America. He said M. Cambon was mainly instrumental in securing adequate space for the American exhibits at the Paris exposition, and it was through his aid a site was secured for the Lafayette monument erected in Paris by Americans.

Professor Paul Shorey, speaking as the representative of the University of Chicago, said the university had followed too closely the German methods of education, and that it needed an injection of the French spirit to subdue its strength and earnest spirit into finer uses.

S. E. Morse, formerly Consul General at Paris, caused a mild sensation by advocating absolute free trade among the leading nations of the world, including the United States, England, France, and Germany. He recognized the difficulties in the way of such a project, and suggested that a conference of professors of political economy might solve the problem.

Other speakers were T. B. Bryan, H. J. Furber Jr., Henri Merou, and H. H. Kohlsaat.

CITIZENS SHOT IN RIOT.

MILITIAMEN FIRE ON MOB IN ALBANY, STRIKING SPECTATORS.

One Innocent Bystander Is Dead and Another, Leroy Smith, Well Known Merchant, Thought to Be Fatally Wounded—Crowd Was Stoning Car Full of Soldiers When Shooting Took Place—Another Regiment of Militia Ordered Out by General Rae.

Then the car was between mobs. Both sides of the street were lined with people. Above Columbia street and a little north of the United Traction company's office building was a switch which the motorman had to turn. The car was at a standstill for a minute. Then came a shower of bricks and missiles. They came from the north and south side of the Broadway cars running north and south.

Men on Car Injured.

Conductor Doherty of Brooklyn was hit in the face with a brick. Lieutenant Wilson was also hit in the face with a brick, and he then decided to act on the orders, "Shoot when necessary," and, whipping out his revolver, he let drive one bullet at the man whom he supposed fired the brick. Smith fell. In succession there were six rifle shots.

Two groans and cries of "For God's sake don't shoot," were heard. The men had shot into the crowd on the east sidewalk and two innocent people and prominent business-men of this city were victims of the fanaticism of a crazed mob. The switch was made and the car dashed up Broadway as fast as the power would permit it.

Smith and Walsh Are Hit.

Mr. Smith was talking with Mr. Walsh on the curb, and bullets struck them about the same instant. Mr. Smith fell, while Mr. Walsh remained standing, and was supported by bystanders. The bullet which struck Mr. Smith entered about an inch below the heart and took a course through the stomach and gall bladder and lodged against the spine. Mr. Walsh was struck in the bowels, the ball perforating the smaller intestines.

Walsh Dies in Hospital.

Mr. Walsh was taken to the Homeopathic hospital, where he was operated on but died about 10 o'clock. Before his death he exonerated the soldiers of all blame.

Mr. Smith was conveyed to the Albany Hospital, where he was operated upon, and lies in a precarious condition.

Rooney walked to the Homeopathic Hospital, where the bullet was removed from his side, and then he departed only to return to the scene of the shooting. He said that he was on an errand when shot.

Mr. Smith, after coming out of ether, made the statement that he did not blame the soldiers at all. He said he had no business where he was. He saw a man in front of him throw a brick and the soldiers take aim, but the man who threw the brick dropped to the ground as they fired, and he got one of the bullets.

One of the squad of soldiers arrested a stone thrower, who gave the name of William Mahan of Springfield, Mass.

Major General Roe, commanding the National Guard, regarding the shooting, made the unofficial statement that the car carrying a squad of Company E of the Twenty-third Regiment was passing down Broadway, when a wagon on the track driven by a boy forced it to slow up. There was a crowd of about 1,000 in the immediate vicinity, and it began to surge about the car in a threatening manner. Lieutenant Wilson, who was in charge of the car, saw a man near the sidewalk raise his arm and throw a stone. Seeing it coming he raised his arm to protect his face. It struck him on the arm and he fired his revolver. The shot, he says, struck the man who threw the stone. More stones were thrown. The report of Wilson's revolver was followed by half a dozen shots from the squad under him.

E. Leroy Smith was standing about seventy-five feet distant on the edge of the sidewalk, opposite his place of business, talking with another man. As the car passed slowly on the militiamen saw him fall forward.

"It was an unfortunate occurrence," said General Roe, "but absolutely unavoidable. It only goes to show the danger which law-abiding citizens undergo when they mingle with unruly mobs at such times of riot. The men on board the car were told before they left the barn to shoot any person they saw throwing missiles. I believe that they were justified in acting as they did."

Governor Odell Hopes for Calm.

Governor Odell expressed his deep regret that two reputable citizens were injured and expressed the hope that the end is near and that the good sense of all citizens will prevail to such an extent that wise counsel will be listened to and a possible recurrence of this unfortunate episode will be averted.

The streets were filled with angry crowds early in the evening, but they dispersed and quiet reigns at midnight. The labor men decided tonight not to insist upon the discharge of the non-union men, and a conference was held on that basis between traction officers, military men, and labor officials.

Conference Is Fruitless.

The conference, however, was without result. The representatives of the traction company will submit the proposition of the men to the directors of the company tomorrow.

General Roe, learning that there was no prospect of immediate settlement of the strike, at midnight sent the order to New York directing the Ninth Regiment to report here without delay.

Settlement Still in Doubt.

Mr. Wollard, the attorney for the strikers, said at midnight that there was a possibility that the strike might be settled soon, but the officials of the company will not admit this tonight. It was rumored that the main reason the representatives of the company and the strikers could not agree was that the company knew a former employé threw the rock which nearly killed Motorman Marshall, who ran the second car out on Tuesday, and that the company refused to put this employé back to work, while the strikers insisted upon it.

BOGUS OFFICIALS ARE ACTIVE.

Counterfeit Dog Catcher Steals Canines, Fake Garbage Inspector's Confederate Takes Cash.

Police in all parts of the city have been requested to keep a lookout for a man who has equipped himself with a green wagon and goes about in the guise of an official city dog catcher for the purpose of securing valuable dogs. Yesterday a collie belonging to Mrs. E. Berriman of 285 Ashland boulevard was taken by the man.

The fake garbage inspector who has been defrauding business-men in all parts of the city appeared at the saloon of A. Samoni, 2020 West Harrison street. While he took Samoni to the street to point out some pieces of paper for removal a confederate entered through a side door and stole $15.

James Palmer was fined $75 by Justice Mahoney as being the "fake inspector" of buildings and streets.

MUSIC CHARMS AWAY DIRT

SCHOOL BAND PLAYS STOCK-YARDS STREETS CLEAN.

Pupils of Graham Institution Offer to Serenade Every Family Where Highway Is Kept in Good Order and the Result Surprises Them—Principal Watt Enthusiastic Over Success of His Plan—Arrests in Englewood for Breaking the Ordinance.

"Clean your street and have a band concert," is the offer made by pupils of the Graham School, Forty-fifth and Union streets, as an inducement to people in that part of the Stock-Yards district to clean the streets. The plan has been tried for several weeks. The band, composed of pupils, at first wandered up and down in search of a clean spot in the street and serenaded a few of the residents. Lately, however, it has stopped at almost every house because of freshly cleaned streets.

Principal Watt started the plan. He had trained a band of pupils in his school for several years. There was some question at first whether the band, having played only at concerts and entertainments, would be willing to go out as street musicians. But they were seized with the spirit of municipal cleanliness, and it was with difficulty the girls were restrained from accompanying the boys. Principal Watt led the way with his cornet.

Announcement of the plan created a stir among the pupils of the school. They went home after school, and, instead of devoting all their time to marbles and baseball, they hunted up hoes, rakes, shovels, and brooms and attacked the sections of street in front of their respective residences. In many cases the whole family took an interest.

The band promises to stop and play in front of each house where the street is clean. After the work is done there is much anxious waiting to see if it will pass inspection by the band. During the month the plan has been in operation it has created a social standard in the district. The houses where the band does not play are marked as being not quite so good as others.

Principal Watt Enthusiastic.

"The condition of the streets in the neighborhood is evidence of the result of our plan," said Principal Watt yesterday. "As a rule I take the boys of the band on concert tours three times a week between the hours of 4 and 6 o'clock. The greatest of enthusiasm prevails, and it is the regular thing for one-half the school to follow the musicians in the rounds of the streets. In parts of the district where there were few children the women got together, cleaned the streets, and sent in a request for inspection. After the streets were cleaned I said the band would not stop where there were chalk marks. I found these erased from the walls and sidewalks on our next visit."

Arrests for Breaking Ordinance.

The enforcement of the new clean street ordinance on Feb. 18 is creating much concern among the residents of parts of Englewood. As a result of not providing the necessary garbage receptacles within five days after the service of notice to do so, several persons have been arrested and warrants are out for fifteen others. Justice Duggan has decided that a wash boiler used for a garbage box will not render its owner immune from being prosecuted under the ordinance. George H. Scott, 6556 Perry avenue, argued that his wash boiler was different, but he was allowed to go only on his promise to provide the proper receptacle.

MONEY ENOUGH FOR PLAN.

The School Management committee held a special meeting yesterday to talk about the free text book question, and after a lively session decided by a vote of 4 to 3 to recommend free text books in the first four grades. President Harris entered after the meeting and added his vote to the four in favor of free text books. Mrs. Sherman and Mrs. O'Keeffe endeavored to escape voting by leaving as their names were about to be called. Mrs. Sherman refused to answer, while Mrs. O'Keeffe voted in the negative. Mrs. Sherman's vote was counted in the negative.

The committee listened to arguments and debated the question for some time before voting. Theodore B. Thiele, representing the German Catholic societies, spoke against the resolution, while Jacob Ingenthron, President of the German-American Federated Societies, and Leopold Saltiel of the Turner societies, argued for free books.

Mr. Thiele Rouses Resentment.

Mr. Thiele aroused some resentment by saying that the petitions of the German Catholic societies had been pigeon-holed by the committee. Trustee Keating explained that Mr. Brenan, chairman of the committee, had been sick.

"I represent 400 German sicoeties," said Jacob Ingenthron, "and all the people on their membership rolls favor free text books. If we could secure a referendum vote on this question I am sure 75 per cent of the people would cast their ballots for free text books."

"The wealthy people of the city are working against this measure," said Trustee Christian Meier. "There are a great many wealthy taxpayers who live outside the city and who have no interest in the schools. The newspapers are against free text books and it is because they feel the influence of these people."

"The narrowness of the idea which prompts people to oppose this move," said Trustee Keating, "will appear to them after a while. We must give the public a chance to think about the matter and see the right side of it before we take final action."

The question was raised by Mrs. Sherman whether the board has money enough to buy books for the four grades. Trustee Loesch said he had discovered that it cost 65 cents a pupil to put free text books in Boston. At this rate he said it would require $65,000 to supply books to the 100,000 children in the first four grades in Chicago. The board had appropriated 91,000 for the purchase of free books.

Women Rise to Leave.

When the discussion had closed Mrs. Sherman and Mrs. O'Keeffe rose to leave. The chairman asked them to stay, and they waited until the roll had been called. Mrs. Sherman refused to answer, and Mrs. O'Keeffe stated that she was opposed to any plan for free text books.

The resolution passed was as follows:

"That it is the sense of this board that free text books be adopted for the first four grades of the elementary schools of this city, and that the Superintendent of Schools be asked to make such recommendations for the purchase of books as he sees fit."

The vote was as follows:

Ayes—Christian Meier, F. J. Loesch, R. F. Rowland, George W. Claussenius, Graham H. Harris.

Nays—Mrs. P. J. O'Keeffe, Mrs. Caroline K. Sherman, John T. Keating.

Suit Must Await Board's Action.

It was discovered during the day that the Catholic societies which are preparing to seek an injunction against the expenditure of money for free text books cannot enter their suit until the board has taken some definite action. For this reason the committee decided to open the way for a settlement at once by asking the board at its next meeting to vote for free text books.

The Chicago Society of Internal Medicine gave its annual banquet at the Auditorium last night. Dr. William Osler, professor of medicine in Johns Hopkins University, was the guest of honor. Dr. John A. Robison, President of the society, presided. Dr. James B. Herrick responded to the toast, "Our Guest." Dr. Lewellys F. Barker read a scientific paper on "The Foundation Stones of Medicine." Dr. Walter S. Christopher discussed "The Tendencies of Modern Medicine." SUN IN TOTAL ECLIPSE TONIGHT.

Many Astronomers Are in Sumatra Waiting for the Event—Professor Barnard's Apparatus.

At 11:33 tonight astronomers on the other side of the world, in Sumatra, will observe a total eclipse of the sun. Eighteen American scientists have gone to Sumatra. The duration of the eclipse is to be six minutes and fourteen seconds. The eclipse of 1900 lasted but one minute and thirty seconds.

The problems to be attacked include the nature of the corona, the measurement of the heat radiated by it, the search for possible planets whose orbits lie between Mercury and the sun.

Professor Barnard of the Yerkes Observatory will devote himself exclusively to the corona. He will use the same apparatus which was so effective in his hands at the eclipse of 1900. The plates to be made this year will be forty inches square. The telescope will have a lens six inches in diameter and of sixty-two feet focal length.

REVIVES MEMORY OF MARYLAND.

Society of Former Residents Gives an Entertainment at the Palmer House.

The Maryland Society of Chicago gave a reception at the Palmer House last night. The chief feature of the entertainment was stereopticon pictures of Maryland scenery and famous Maryland men. Harris Leisher recited "Barbara Frietchie." Henry W. Price, President of the society, made a few remarks. Miss Agnes Marggraf sang "Kathleen Mavourneen."

First Regiment Rifle Competition.

The first annual indoor rifle competition of the First Regiment, I. N. G., was held last evening at the armory, Sixteenth street and Michigan avenue. A team of ten men from each battalion contested for the Greenburg trophy. Bronze medals were also given to the members of the winning team. The Third Battalion won, making 407 points out of a possible 500. The Second Battalion was second, with a score of 363, and the First Battalion made 351. The high single score was made by Corporal Whalen of Company K. He made [illegible] points out of a possible 50. The cup will be held by the winning team until next year, when it will again be contested for. A team must win it three times before it becomes the property of a battalion [illegible]

WOMAN REFUSES STOCK WINNINGS.

FEARS RUIN OF OTHERS.

Minister E. H. Conger Talks at Banquet of Trade Openings in the Orient.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE,
New York, May 16.

Woman Refuses to Accept Profit in Stock Deal.

Although the excitement over the cornering of Northern Pacific has died down, stories of the fortunes that might have been keep coming in from all parts of the United States. One of the most remarkable of all the tales comes from Philadelphia.

It seems that a woman there owned 200 shares of the stock, bought years ago when it was selling below par. The stock was located by somebody in New York and on the morning of the break, Thursday, she was advised to sell, and realize a handsome profit on her investment. She thought the matter over for a while and concluded to follow the advice. The stock was sold at 600, and in the course of time the woman received a check for $120,000. The transaction presented a profit of more than $100,000.

Between the time she authorized the sale of the stock and the time she received the check, the woman read about the panic and the corner, and the great losses they had caused. Her conscience began to trouble her and she concluded that the profit she had received might have come from somebody whose fortune had been wrecked. She refused to accept the check. Returning it, she said it was too great a profit to be made on such a transaction, and that she felt that she would be guilty of great wrong-doing if she accepted the check.

The broker through whom the stock was sold still has the check and is at a loss at present to know just how the trouble which the woman's conscience has occasioned can be adjusted.

Minister Conger Guest of Honor at Asiatic Banquet.

E. H. Conger, Minister to China, was the guest of honor tonight at the third annual banquet of the American Asiatic association, given at Delmonico's. There were 125 present. Acting President S. D. Brewster was chairman and toastmaster. Others at the guest table besides Mr. Conger were William E. Dodge, the Rev. Dr. William Ament of Pekin, Charles R. Flint, George H. Daniels, Deputy United States Attorney General James W. Beck, Kogoro Takahira, Minister from Japan; Dr. W. P. Wilson of Philadelphia, and Thomas S. Hopkins of Washington. Deputy United States Attorney General Beck spoke to the toast, "The President of the United States."

In introducing Minister Conger the chairman paid a high tribute to his character and integrity.

In his prefatory remarks Minister Conger spoke of the progress made in the commercialism of this country in the Orient. Recent developments in the Philippines, he said, had given courage to the merchant and the missionary alike, with looking for increased results, especially in the Empire of China.

"Notwithstanding the unparalleled barbarisms of last summer," said the speaker, "the present situation still has most alluring promise for commercial and philanthropic work in the Orient. Great trade possibilities are still existent in the middle kingdom, and if properly, industriously, and judiciously taken advantage of, both by government and individuals, great profits are in store.

"It is to be regretted that some sort of measure in aid of American shipping did not pass the last Congress. In my judgment this is not a political but a patriotic measure, and is demanded in order to fairly meet the competition of shipping subsidized by other governments. This is being done all over the world, and unless our people take advantage of the conditions created by the expansion policy of the last three years they will soon be preempted by foreign companies and lost to us forever. Since the Philippines came into our hands splendid ocean greyhounds have been put into service between Hongkong and Australia, Sidney, and San Francisco, China, Japan, and San Francisco. It is cause for national chagrin and humiliation that all telegraphic communication with our new possessions in the Pacific, and our doings in the Orient should be wired over foreign lines and at foreign profit."

The Tennessee Coal and Iron company has sent out the official notice to the stockholders of the proposed bond issue of $15,000,000. Ten million of the bonds will be used in refunding the company's present floating indebtedness, the bonds bearing interest not exceeding 5 per cent, and the remaining $5,000,000 will be used for reimbursing the company's treasury for expenditures in connection with improvements, purchases of plants, etc.

"Fashionable" Shoemakers on a Strike.

The "Four hundred fashionable shoemakers of New York," as the members of the Custom Shoemakers' union are called, went on strike today to enforce a demand for 50 cents a pair more for footwear than they now receive. The shoemakers of the union are regarded as experts in their line and make shoes for wealthy people, with whom money is less a consideration than comfort and style. They are paid from $4 to $5 a pair for making the ordinary custom made shoes, and from $6 to $6.50 a pair for riding boots. A good workman can make five or six pairs in a week. There are only twenty-five firms employing these workers in the city, and the strikers say the employers would have to send to London, Vienna, or Paris if they wanted men in their places. The shoes and boots, which are made of the finest material, are sold at from $12 to $30 a pair, according to the material and work on them.

John C. Gray, a messenger boy, today received a verdict of $10,000 damages against the Metropolitan Street railway company after a second trial of the case in the Supreme Court. He was thrown from a car in 1898 and so injured that he lost a leg. He won the first trial, but the verdict was set aside by the Court of Appeals.

Police Raid Corbett's Saloon.

Captain Flood of the West Thirtieth Street Police Station, with Detective Glennon and several other policemen, made a raid upon Corbett's saloon, Broadway, near Thirty-fourth street, at 1 o'clock this (Friday) morning, drove out everybody in the place, and ordered it closed. There were many customers at the bar, and they were almost as angry as the proprietor at the invasion. Corbett stood in front of the saloon and talked to the crowd. He said that the police were persecuting him, and that he ran a respectable place. He said that there were many other resorts in the Tenderloin which did not close at the hour required by law, and he declared if these places were open after that hour tonight his place would be open also.

George Kahn of the Herald Square Hotel was "flim-flammed" out of $94 a few days ago by two habitues of Corbett's and two men were arrested in connection with the case tonight by Central office detectives.

The Society for the Preservation of Scenic and Historic Places and Objects wants the [illegible] "some name time-honored in local nomenclature." It suggests also that the public select appropriate names for the three other bridges which are expected to span the East River within a few years. The society offers prizes for the best two lists of names suggested for these structures.

Will Dissolve Injunction Against Copper Company.

Vice Chancellor Hidney informed William H. Corbin of counsel for the Amalgamated Copper company and Isaac S. Taylor, counsel for Calvin C. Geer, in the Jersey City Chancery chambers today that he had decided to dissolve the temporary injunction he recently granted restraining the company from absorbing the Boston and Montana and Butte and Boston Mining companies, which own properties in Montana. He said that he would sign the order vacating the injunction next Monday. Mr. Geer and the C. H. Venner Banking company of Boston brought the action on the ground that the proposed prices, $56,250,000 for the Boston and Montana company and $18,500,000 for the Butte and Boston, were too high, and it was brought out that much of the stock of the Boston and Montana company is owned by stockholders in the copper company.

The defense set up that the prices were justified by the dividends paid and by the market prices of the stock of the two companies and attacked the good faith of the plaintiffs.

Suspended Student Sues to Be Reinstated.

Supreme Court Justice Maddox in Brooklyn has granted an order directing Dr. H. M. McCracken, Chancellor of the New York University, and the Board of Officers to show cause next week why a writ of mandamus should not issue compelling them to permit Tristram W. Metcalfe to be examined and if he is duly qualified, to permit him to graduate and to give him the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Mr. Metcalfe was editor of the Triangle, a publication issued by the students of the university, and in a recent copy of the paper Mr. Metcalfe is said to have inserted this paragraph:

"It is, indeed, singular that there should be so little news in the school of applied science. Time and again attempts have been made to learn what is going and no news can be obtained. The impression which this gives is one of idleness and stagnation."

This caused considerable ill-feeling on the part of the faculty. Chancellor McCracken demanded a retraction. It was given, but not as the chancellor desired.

Mr. Metcalfe alleged that Chancellor McCracken had informed him that he would not be permitted to take the final examination; that he had been suspended for a year and barred from attending the classes of the university.

Henry P. Davison became today the youngest bank President in this city. He is but 33 years old and was elected President of the Liberty National Bank. At the request of the Board of Directors the retiring President Mr. Tinker, accepted an election as Vice President, thus changing places with Mr. Davison.

Girl Speculator Sues Broker for Her Money.

Louise Otterman, who a year ago at 17 years of age had a two weeks' experience in Wall street, had an action on trial before Justice Delehanty of the city court today against her brokers, I. H. Berger & Co., to recover $400, pleading infancy. Miss Otterman testified that she inherited some money and intending to increase it she answered an advertisement stating that a Mrs. Anna Kassmeyer desired a partner in her business. Mrs. Kassmeyer, she said, introduced Ignatz Berger.

The witness said that after speaking with Mr. Berger for a while about Wall street transactions she concluded to try her hand at stocks and advanced the $400. She admitted that she had given orders to buy and sell stocks.

While the case was still on trial the counsel announced that the case had been settled, but declined to state the terms of settlement.

Gustav Edward Graff and Thomas F. Nevins, composing the firm of G. Edward Graff & Co., stock and bond brokers, made an assignment today for the benefit of their creditors. Lockout of Bricklayers May Be Ordered Today.

The Bricklayers' union decided tonight not to recede from the stand taken in the matters at issue with the Mason Builders' association. The Mason Builders' association has already announced that unless the Bricklayers' union abandons its position in the matter of ordering a strike of the men employed by Contractor Thomas J. Riley a lockout will be ordered tomorrow noon. In case the two parties to the labor controversy are unable to adjust the difficulties it is expected that at least 15,000 men will stop work tomorrow.

James M. Ayres of Ohio, the United States Consul at Rosario, Argentine Republic, arrived here tonight on the steamer Etona from Buenos Ayres and Montevideo.

G. E. Graff & Co., Brokers, Go to the Wall.

Great tales have been told of the winnings of some of the Brooklyn statesmen in Wall street in the bull market. The winnings of some of them were made through the Consolidated Exchange firm of G. Edward Graff & Co., in which ex-Chief Thomas F. Nevins of the Brooklyn Fire department, was Mr. Graff's sole partner. The firm made an assignment today and their attorney, John V. Bouvier, said that the liabilities would probably be $300,000, while the assets might be $150,000. The assignee is Robert T. Vernum. The partners made individual assignments, also to him. Ex-Chief Nevins said: "Finding ourselves called upon to meet obligations amounting to $300,000 and having only $166,000 in assets, we decided to make an assignment for the benefit of our creditors. I could not see how we could go on and do business with only this amount available. Of the assets $66,000 is in securities, $32,000 in banks, $78,000 in margins. A few days ago when stocks dropped 40 per cent we were carrying stocks on a margin of 15 per cent. I have also made a private assignment and I will give every dollar I have in the world to pay my just debts."

Arnold Feldstein, an importer of raw silk at 41 Mercer street, to whom a discharge in bankruptcy was denied on Wednesday by Judge Brown of the United States District Court, will attempt to secure through his attorneys $36,000 from Richard Canfield, which he claims he lost at roulette and faro in Canfield's place on Forty-fourth street. Counsel for Feldstein say that they have his checks, amounting to $36,000, made payable to Canfield, in their possession. The case will come before the Supreme Court on Monday.

MONT CLARE'S FIRE DEPARTMENT AND ITS WOMAN OFFICERS.

MRS. E. O. EAMES ASSISTANT MARSHAL

MISS HARRIET H. SAYRE CAPTAIN

Two women of Mont Clare are waiting for a fire which will give them an opportunity to prove their ability as fire fighters. Since the fire department was organized and Mrs. E. O. Eames became the Assistant Marshal and Miss Harriet M. Sayre Captain, some suburban jokers have questioned the efficiency of the organization and the women are anxious to put the scoffers to shame.

Since the reorganization an old chemical engine that had been standing unused for years has been shipped to Chicago by the order of Chief Swenie and another sent out. The newer one is really no better than the other. The receptacles for the soda and the acid have been broken off and the hose is not connected. However, an Assistant Marshal from the city has visited the barn in the rear of Dr. A. C. Koethe's residence, where the engine is stored, and he said that everything should be put at once in perfect order. Buckets, ladders, stores of chemicals, new boxes, everything will be hastened to Mont Clare.

All this is the result of the agitation of the women. For months and years the little suburb has been at the mercy of the flames. Now it is to be changed.

"It is a shame that we have no good fire engine in this town," said Mrs. Eames to Miss Sayre, as they met at the railroad station a month ago. "Let us see if something cannot be done." Miss Sayre agreed that it was "too bad."

The men of the community were not so easily stirred. Fires were the least of their troubles. When had there been a fire in Mont Clare. A year ago an old stable burned and everybody was glad. It had been an eyesore for years. That is the only fire that there ever has been in the memory of the oldest settler.

Miss Sayre suggested that they see Alderman Albert Keeney, who lives in Hermosa, another part of the Twenty-seventh Ward. They did see Alderman Keeney, and he at once began to take steps in the direction indicated.

The Town of Mont Clare covers 1,440 acres. By the time the department—for the chemical is drawn by hand—arrives at a fire after a run of two miles, "Paddy" Ryan, the night policeman, said yesterday, their hair would be down. He is not pleased over the prospect. But the women are. Yesterday the women of the Congregational Church met to sew at the residence of Mrs. Sayre. Miss Sayre and Mrs. Eames were the honored guests. While some of the society sewed, the Marshal and Captain laid plans for a monthly drill of their department.

WORLD GAINS BY WAR IN CHINA.

The Rev. Frank Gamewell Declares That the Siege of Pekin Was Not in Vain.

The Rev. Frank Gamewell, who had charge of the fortifications of the English Legation during the seige of Pekin, told an audience in the Park Avenue Methodist Church last evening that the war in China had advanced the cause of civilization. Then, turning to incidents of the siege, he said:

"Enough cannot be said of the heroic conduct of the women. From early morning until late at night they slaved making bags to hold the sand for the works until that mere handful of women had turned out 50,000 of the sacks. Through all this they never complained.

"I sometimes feel that all that saved us was the care of providence. However, those trying days were not in vain. Civilization has been the gainer."

The lecture was illustrated with stereopticon views, many of which were taken during the siege.

CARRIED DOWN BY STOCK PANIC.

Brokerage Firm of Gurley & Johnson, Washington, D. C., Goes Under with Liabilities of $190,000.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—The stock brokerage firm of Gurley & Johnson in this city has failed and notice of the suspension of business will be posted on its doors tomorrow. The open accounts make up a total of $450,000. The liabilities are $190,000. Neither member of the firm would make a statement tonight. The failure is a result of the recent Wall street panic. Mr. Johnson is a son-in-law of ex-Senator Gorman of Maryland. Mr. Johnson's personal fortune has been applied toward a liquidation of the indebtedness.

MINERS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE.

Fire in Shaft No. 2 of Atlantic Company at Iron Belt, Wis., Imperils Lives of 150 Men.

Iron Belt, Wis., May 16.—Fire started in shaft No. 2 of the Atlantic mine at a late hour last night. One hundred and fifty men who were working in the mine had a narrow escape from death. Paddy Raper and Gustav Willman descended into the mine when the fire started and notified the crew of their danger. With superhuman efforts the men got out in safety after groping through smoke for a distance of 800 feet, many of the men being nearly overcome. The mine has been shut down. The loss will be heavy.

Plow Makers Talk of Higher Prices.

Twenty-five members of the Northwestern Plow Manufacturers' association met at the Auditorium Annex yesterday to consider the question of an advance in prices. It is claimed the advance in the price of raw materials during the last year requires an advance in the finished product. No formal action was taken.

CASH IS NOT RETURNED.

NEW-YORKERS FAIL TO GET BACK MONEY SENT TO GRAND RAPIDS.

Grand Jury Investigation Into the Water Supply Contract Scandal Brings Out the Fact That the $100,000 Sent from Gotham Was Never Returned—Bartons of Omaha Have Better Luck—One Witness Is Warned and Disappears.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 16.—[Special.]—The main fact developed today in connection with the grand jury's investigation of the alleged boodling in connection with the water supply contract was that $100,000 in cash was really brought to Grand Rapids in connection with the Taylor-Fitzgerald bid for the water supply contract, and, although the contract was never awarded, most of the money staid here. The attempt of the New York people to secure the contract differed from that of the Bartons of Omaha, inasmuch as the New York money remained in Grand Rapids, while the Bartons were able to get theirs back through the trip of City Attorney Salsbury to Chicago after he had been indicted by the Cook County grand jury.

There is a story also that a trade was on with some people in Milwaukee to induce them to put up some money to secure the same contract, but it lacks proof.

The truth seems to be that the Milwaukee people were invented by the promoters to induce the Bartons to swallow the bait on the cry that if they did not want it Milwaukee investors did.

That two different sets of people were being traded with for the same contract and "the goods delivered" to neither has, however, been pretty clearly established by the grand jury's investigations up to date, while at the same time some of the best lawyers in the city assert that under the charter of the city and the State franchise of the Hydraulic company here, which antedates the charter, the Council really had no authority to make a contract with any one, and had either Taylor or the Bartons secured it the best they would have got would have been a lawsuit.

Gold Brick Game Reversed.

The whole case as so far developed is a remarkable reversal of the good old "gold brick" game. Formerly swindlers from the large cities went out and sold "gold bricks" to the farmers, in this instance officials of Grand Rapids seem to have sold an especially large "gold brick" for which they got a good price, to a supposedly sharp resident of New York City, and came pretty nearly selling the same brick to a resident of Omaha. They never even parted with their brick and might have sold it over again if they had found a market.

How $100,000 Melted.

The evidence secured today showed the $100,000 advanced by Harry Taylor of New York had been deposited with the Old National Bank of this city. Although the check which Fitzgerald, the representative of Taylor here, deposited with the city to guarantee his bid was worthless, the check for the same amount, $100,000, which was deposited with the bank with which to start an account was as good as needs be, and against this account a number of checks were drawn during the progress of the negotiations which practically depleted it, so that when the remainder was drawn out when it was found the contract was not likely to go to Fitzgerald, there was not much to be taken back to New York City. The remainder had stuck here in Grand Rapids, and it will be the endeavor of the prosecution to show in whose hands it fell.

When the Barton money was brought here from Chicago another account was opened, but it was a short lived one, as that money was almost immediately taken back to Chicago.

One Witness Disappears.

An illustration of the interest certain persons here have in the proceedings of the jury was shown today when a summons was sent out for Miss Tessa Duncan, stenographer for Attorney James McGarry, who was wanted to testify as to some correspondence which had passed between her employer and the New York people. An employe of the City Hall who has been around the grand jury room constantly got word of the summons and hurried out. When the officers went to serve it on Miss Duncan she was not to be found, and there seems but little prospect of finding her. McGarry himself has been summoned as a witness, but he left the city before the grand jury met, and no expectation is felt he will return before it is through.

Fifteen Aldermen and Emma Rogers, the proprietress of a rather well known resort in this city, were before the grand jury today. The Aldermen were: McCool, Phillips, Shinkman, Donovan, Ghyzels, Shriver, Mol, Damsky, McLachlan, White, Doran, Slocum, Stoneham, Lozier, and Kinney.

The main question asked them was how they had voted at the recent election of City Attorney, when Lant K. Salsbury was reelected by a secret ballot, and all of them except Alderman Damsky responded promptly. He at first refused to answer, but was quickly made to understand he must respond to questions. Alderman Shriver, although a Republican, is reported to have acknowledged he voted for Salsbury. White, being an ex-Alderman, was not interrogated on this point, but some of the questions asked him seemed to have surprised him, as he requested and was granted permission after he had come out to return and correct some of his testimony.

The Rogers woman was called in connection with the story going around yesterday to the effect that an extra check for $25,000 had been drawn for the benefit of some city officials not members of the Council. According to the story the matter had been talked of in her house, which several of the people mixed up in the affair were in the custom of visiting, but she denied all knowledge of the matter and either would not or could not give any testimony about it.

VINCENT REFUSES DR. ROGERS' CHAIR

Chicago University Man Twice Declines Northwestern Presidency.

SURPRISE TO FRIENDS.

COMMITTEE MEETS TODAY.

George E. Vincent, associate professor of sociology at Chicago University, has twice refused the Presidency of Northwestern University. His action was caused by the inability of the trustees who offered him the position to guarantee the immediate raising of a sum of money, said to be $2,000,000, and failure to assure him the unanimous support of Northwestern's faculty.

This information was given out last evening by one of the trustees of Northwestern University. It will be a surprise to the friends of Professor Vincent, who has been a strong favorite for the place formerly held by Henry Wade Rogers. All of Professor Vincent's friends had thought if he were offered the place he would accept it, and for that reason have struggled valiantly in his behalf.

Professor Vincent, however, thinks the money-getting business of the Methodist institution is carried on without sufficient vim, and he is said to have asserted that many opportunities for getting large donations have been lost by the trustees.

While neither offer to Professor Vincent was made formally, he nevertheless was sure of the position, for it is known that, if the Committee of Seven, which has the duty of looking into the qualifications of the various candidates, should bring in a unanimous report, it would be accepted without question and its choice would be an easy winner in the Presidency race.

It is commonly believed Dr. Rogers failed to receive the help due him from his colleagues, and Professor Vincent declared he did not want the Presidency unless the possibility of such a failure in his case were obviated. The trustees were unable to meet this second condition, and after a conference with their colleagues the second visit was made to Professor Vincent. He was informed of the inability to fulfill the conditions imposed and was asked to withdraw them. He refused to do so and forthwith declared he would not accept the office. His final decision will be made known to the Committee of Seven when it meets today at the Union League club, although Professor Vincent is at present in Switzerland with his family.

Professor Vincent is a son of Bishop Vincent of the Methodist Episcopal Church and has a national reputation as head of the Chautauqua movement. He is an able organizer, a Yale graduate, and one of those considered when the Yale trustees chose a President in the person of Dr. Hadley. His record in the Chautauqua movement, in the building up of which he had such a brilliant success, was one of the strongest arguments advanced in his behalf, and it was accepted as a guarantee of a fitting administration of Northwestern affairs. The withdrawal of his name leaves Dr. Robert D. Sheppard as the most prominent candidate.

SCHWAB AS A REFORMER.

Steel Trust Magnate Offers a Former Employe $100 to Quit Liquor for a Year.

Mingo Junction, O., May 16.—[Special.]—"Cut out the booze for a year and I will send you $100," is the promise President Charles M. Schwab of the United States Steel corporation to Alfred Hobson, one of the mill men here, yesterday.

Hobson formerly worked at Braddock, where he knew Mr. Schwab. The latter saw him on the streets here while inspecting the local mills and without the slightest hesitation spoke to him.

As the two shook hands Mr. Schwab noticed that Hobson had been drinking. He did not chide him, but after inquiring about Hobson's family, made the promise to pay $100 if the man quit drinking for a year.

Hobson went before the Mayor and took the pledge. "I'm after that $100 all right," he said today.

CHAPEL IS NOT EXPIATORY.

Official Gazette of Mexican Government Denies Vienna Reports Concerning Memorial to Maximilian.

City of Mexico, May 16.—The Official Gazette of the federal government rectifies a series of press telegrams from Vienna which stated that diplomatic relations with Austria had been renewed because the Mexican government had ordered the erection of an expiatory chapel on the Hill of the Bells, where Maximilian was shot, insinuating that it was a species of repentance. The Official Gazette says: "With respect to the term 'expiatory' which is so improperly applied to the chapel it is sufficient to understand the meaning of that word in order to know that the President of the republic would never have ordered the construction of a monument of such a nature. No such title has been given to the chapel with the authorization of the government."

STRANGER COMMITS SUICIDE.

Middle Aged Man Whose Handkerchief Was Marked "F. Shephard" Shoots Himself at Burlington, Ia.

Burlington, Ia., May 16.—A mystery developed here in the suicide by shooting of a well-dressed, middle-aged man, a stranger, in Crapo Park, this afternoon. His handkerchief bears the name of F. Shephard. An envelope of a Chicago druggist containing morphine was found in his pocket, but not a cent in money or valuables. The first joint of the man's forefinger is missing and may be the only clew to identification.

PLAN TO GIRDLE THE EARTH.

Transportation Project of J. J. Hill and J. P. Morgan, It Is Said, Will Encircle World with Rail and Steam Lines.

St. Paul, Minn., May 16.—Plans for a transportation system completely to encircle the globe are credited to President James J. Hill of the Great Northern and J. Pierpont Morgan of New York. It is stated that but a link to the chain is lacking and that before Mr. Morgan's return from Europe, within a week or two, it will be supplied.

The great factors in the new system are the Great Northern, the Great Northern Steamship company, Mr. Hill's transpacific line, soon to be in operation, and the Leyland lines recently purchased by Mr. Morgan. The acquisition of these lines and the one missing link, a line between Alexandria, Egypt, and Hongkong, China, is said to have been Mr. Morgan's special purpose in visiting Europe.

"This does not mean the organization of a single company to manage an all-around-the-globe line," said a person conversant with the plan. "As I understand it, the relations between Mr. Hill and Mr. Morgan will result in a mutual understanding and traffic agreements, based on common interests, effecting the same thing as if all were under a single ownership."

LONG VISITS MARE ISLAND.

Secretary of the Navy and Congressional Party Inspects the Government Ship Yards.

San Francisco, Cal., May 16.—Secretary of the Navy Long and the members of the Congressional party, together with other invited guests, went to the Mare Island navy yard on the revenue cutter McCulloch. The flag of the Secretary of the Navy fluttered from the main truck of the cutter. As the McCulloch passed the Wisconsin, Iowa, and Philadelphia the sailors and marines stood at attention. Several hours were spent in inspecting the yard and vessels.

Charles Anderson was fined $20 by Justice Mahoney for peddling beer without a license in a prohibition district. J. P. Cummings, the complainant, testified that Anderson had sold his wares to men employed in the construction of new buildings in Lake View, Argyle Park, and the surrounding suburbs.

DOWIE PICTURES A DEATH SCENE.

Head of Zion Callously Tells Coroner How Mrs. Judd Expired in Agony.

Husband of Woman Also Tells How She Suffered Under "Healer's" Treatment.

DOORS BARRED TO DOCTORS.

stomach. She said, 'I'd like to have you pray for me,' a request which she had made many times before. I prayed for her and asked God to heal her and take away that pain. She got some relief, but felt the pain in another part of her body—in her side. I prayed for her again. I asked God to take away that pain.

"Then my wife told me the pain went around to her back. I asked her what I should do, if I should ask Dr. Dowie to pray for her. She said, 'Yes.' That was between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning. I telephoned to the Zion home—I think it was to Deacon Storn."

Dowie shook his head and Judd promptly kept Storn's name out of the inquiry.

"He delivered the message to Dr. Dowie," continued the witness. "I then found my wife still suffering. We thought the pain was caused by pleurisy. The nurse she wanted—Mrs. Speicher, mother of Dr. Speicher—came between 4 and 5 o'clock in the morning. We prayed for her.

"Some time later my wife's eyes opened wide, became set, and she said, 'O, my eyes.' I asked her if she knew me, but those were her last words. She was immediately taken with convulsions. Then we noticed the blood running from her mouth. It was almost impossible to hold her in bed, but I held her.

Woman Writhes; Men Pray.

"After the second convulsion she went almost immediately into another. During the last convulsion Overseer W. Hammond Piper and Elder Fockler came into the room. They are ministers of the Christian Catholic Church. Prayer was offered for her that the blood would stop flowing—it was then gushing from her mouth. Then a telephone message was sent to Dr. Dowie."

As the eyes of the audience turned on the Overseer he stroked his perfumed beard with satisfaction.

"When the doctor came she was still unconscious and suffering from the last spasm," the man continued. "He prayed that she might have deliverance. He prayed again and then said that she would be all right. In the meantime the blood was flowing from her mouth. This was about 11:30 on Sunday morning. I stood over my wife from that time holding a cloth between her teeth. I also held the cloths to catch the blood which was gushing from her mouth. At 3:20 Sunday afternoon the death pallor crept over her forehead and I knew that all was over. Just then Deacon Speicher came in."

"What about the immediate removal of the body," asked Deputy Coroner Buckley.

"I didn't want the funeral held from the home because I knew the curious nature of the neighbors," was Judd's answer. "I knew that wouldn't do us any good. I talked with Deacon Speicher. He suggested that the body be taken to an undertaking shop."

Under a Fire of Questions.

Here Coroner Traeger assumed control. He elicited statements that until four years ago the family had resorted to medicine and physicians. He learned, too, that there were three children, ranging in ages from 16 to 12 years.

"Why was not a physician summoned at the expected birth of your fourth child?" demanded the Coroner.

"Because I have taken God as my healer and my wife had done the same."

"Mr. Judd, what made you change your mind? Whose suggestions influenced you?"

The witness fenced with this question. He refused to charge Dowie, but insisted that his wife "had had a good deal to do with it."

"I changed my mind from what I had read in the Word of God and what I had been taught," he returned finally.

"By whom were you taught?"

"By John Alexander Dowie and ministers of the Christian Catholic Church," came the firm reply.

"You believed that Dowie would pray and heal your wife?"

"I thought his prayer would have more effect. Often when our prayers have failed he has prayed and God has most always answered. Yes, this case evidently was an exception."

"How long did your wife suffer?"

"From 11:30 Saturday night until 3:20 Sunday afternoon."

"About sixteen hours, then," said Deputy Coroner Buckley.

"Less than that—about fifteen hours," broke in Dowie, his eyes flashing. Mr. Judd then asserted that his wife was conscious and "responsible," though in pain, part of the time.

"Did she at any time ask for medical aid?"

"No."

"Did you at any time suggest it?"

"No; she had repeatedly informed me that she didn't want a physician."

Every care was taken by Dowie's attorney to see that this statement was entered.

"We have had no medicines in the house in over four years," continued Mr. Judd, "nor has a physician been at the house in that time."

Admits No Duty to Humanity.

"Did it ever occur to you that for humanity's sake, in your duty as a husband, you should have furnished medical assistance?"

"Not for an instant," came the answer.

"You were ready to stand there and see your wife suffer?"

"Yes, sir; I was carrying out her will."

"Would you have given her poison had she asked it?"

"No."

"If she had asked you to send for a physician, would you have done so?"

"No, sir; I wouldn't have sent. I would have known she was not in her right mind. For four years my wife and I have trusted in God Almighty, and our prayers have been answered in a number of cases."

"You say if your wife had asked for a physician you would not have summoned one?" broke in Juror A. R. Ford.

"No, sir," came the defiant reply.

Dowie on the Stand.

Then "Dr." Dowie insisted on being called. The jurors were becoming restless, even [illegible] the groom trotted them up and down the street. He brushed off his shirt front, fingered a pearl stud, and then defined his occupation as "minister of the gospel, general overseer of the Christian Catholic Church in Zion." His story of the case was marked by his frequent assertions that Judd's testimony was substantially what had been told him.

"At 4 o'clock on the morning of Sunday," Dowie said, "I was awakened by my private attendant, who informed me that a telephone message had been received from Brother Judd saying that his wife was suffering severe pains and asking me to pray for her. I earnestly prayed for her and then retired to rest."

He then told of how another communication had been received about 8:30 on Sunday morning, and how he had sent Speicher to the house. At 11 o'clock the latter telephoned that the woman was in a bad condition.

"I then ordered my carriage," said Dowie. "Exactly at 11 o'clock I left my house for the Judd residence in [illegible], a distance of nearly six miles. I saw Mrs. Judd. I found her well attended, two of our maternity deaconesses being there. She was unconscious during my stay. I saw blood on a small cloth which they had between her teeth. I questioned about this and the deaconesses asserted that Mrs. Judd had bitten her tongue and caused the blood to flow.

"I was a little doubtful as to this answer. I placed my hand on her breast and prayed as I have done millions of times, I believe, in the name of the Lord Jesus, and the power of the holy spirit and in accordance with the will of God the Heavenly Father, that he would mercifully deliver her. The prayer was so far answered that she became comparatively quiet.

"A few moments later I saw the patient again. There was little blood on the cloth which was in her mouth, and beyond a few uneasy motions of the body it was evident she was not in much pain. Yes, that was my opinion. I then left, informing Deacon Judd that I would send Overseer Speicher in the afternoon.

"That's all I know, except that I was told by Overseer Speicher that when he arrived she had departed this life."

"Did you consider her seriously ill?" demanded the Coroner.

"Yes."

"Did you expect her to die?"

Says Nurses "Are Competent."

"These nurses—they were regularly licensed midwives?"

"I don't know; they were competent."

"You made no attempt to ascertain Mrs. Judd's physical condition?" continued the Coroner.

"Not the slightest," was the answer. "I am not a physician and I never attempt to act as one."

"Have your maternity nurses faith in God and prayer?"

"Yes."

"Then experience isn't necessary?"

Dowie hesitated, then in suave tones:

"Yes, experience would be necessary. We require experience."

"Do any of your people ever call in physicians or administer medicines?"

"Never. I advise against it. I am absolutely against doctors and drugs. I advise all members never to have anything to do with doctors and drugs. Yes, I advise against surgery."

"You are an old man, doctor," began the Coroner.

Says He Is Not Old.

"O, no, I'm not an old man," laughed the head of Zion. "I'm only 54."

"Well, in that time haven't you ever found it necessary to call a surgeon?"

"Never; I never found such a case; I don't believe such a case exists. I advise against it."

"Didn't Mrs. Judd need medical attendance?"

"No, sir, not at all. The farther away the better," he snapped, showing anger at the Coroner's persistency. "I have no use at all for medicine or surgeons. They are a great hindrance. No, sir, I do not have a physician for my family. For thirty-seven years I have had nothing to do with doctors. I was cured by prayer when dying. For twenty-one years my wife has had nothing to do with doctors. As to Mrs. Judd's case, hers was different from any other I have ever seen in this country."

"What, in your opinion, was the cause of death?"

"I should say she had burst a blood-vessel. It might have been in the brain or in the stomach. As to our faith, now, I say that we believe in prayer because God declares: 'I am the Lord, thy healer'; because from Genesis to Revelation there are promises that he is the forgiver of our sins, healer of our sicknesses, and we have found him so. The deaths in Zion have been 8 in 1,000 and less. This is due to good living. We don't drink, smoke, go to the theaters, don't gamble, and don't eat pig." Dowie smiled and his followers laughed loudly. "We don't go to secret societies and don't ride goats. We live decent, sensible lives."

There was another roar of laughter, and then, in his softest tones, flicking either hand with his silk handkerchief, Dowie said:

"May I go, Mr. Coroner? I am always at your service. I did not receive my subpœna until almost noon. I have not in any way sought to evade service. I was exceedingly glad to come. I want to tell all I know. I thank you for your courtesy."

In the meantime Undertaker Henry E. Haggard was seeking to explain why he had removed the body without a legal permit. He had tried to get the Coroner and the Health department, he insisted, but it was too late that night.

The inquest on Mrs. Judd's death will be continued next Thursday at 2 p. m., when former "Elder" Stokes and others who have renounced Dowieism and charge that he can effect no cures, will be among those who will give evidence.

Removal Makes Coroner Angry.

When Coroner Traeger learned in the morning that the body of Mrs. Christensen had been removed from Zion home regardless of his explicit command to Undertaker Haggard he was angry. Haggard, it seems, called on the Coroner and was told that he must secure an order from Mr. Christensen before the body could be removed, as the county official would not recognize a certificate of death signed by Speicher. The undertaker asserts he secured the order and not deeming it necessary to see the Coroner again went to Zion home and removed the body to his undertaking rooms.

Yesterday morning Deputy Coroner Buckley summoned a jury and went to Haggard's to view the body. The hearing will begin next Tuesday afternoon at Rolston's undertaking rooms, 22 Adams street.

Dr. M. O. Heckard, who has charge of the burial permits, says he will endeavor to see that the law is enforced against Haggard.

FARMER COMES FROM MICHIGAN PREPARED TO AVENGE WRONGS.

Ezra Barnes, with Arms and Cash, Would Punish Head of Zion Because Wife and Daughter Left Him to Join the "Healers" — Police Persuade the Man to Return Home—Confides His Deadly Purpose to a Friend—Weeps as He Relates Story.

Heavily armed and bringing $2,000 with which to defend himself from the penalty prescribed by the law, Ezra Barnes arrived in the city yesterday to avenge himself on John Alexander Dowie for breaking up his family. Mr. Barnes came from Muskegon, Mich., to look for his wife and two daughters, who had deserted him to become followers of the Overseer of Zion. All he asked of those he met was the location of John Alexander Dowie.

"If you will tell me where to find Dowie I will see that he does not cause another to suffer," he said to John Rashton, an old friend living in Maxwell street. "He has broken up my family and left me childless in my old age. My neighbors say the law cannot punish me if I avenge myself and I intend to do so."

Fearing, from the condition of his friend's mind, that he would do something for which he was not responsible, Mr. Rashton took him to the Maxwell Street Police Station. There he was introduced to Lieutenant Harding. When Barnes began to tell the officer his story tears accompanied his remarks, indicating how deeply he was affected by his misfortunes. The parents of his wife, he said, came all the way from New York to plead with her, but she insisted it was her duty to take up the cross of Zion and follow the leadership of the new Elijah. They left the house, and since then, he told Lieutenant Harding, he had been informed that they were dead. He declared he would end the career of Dowie if it cost him his life as a penalty.

Attiring himself in civilian apparel, Lieutenant Harding accompanied Mr. Barnes to Zion home. Lieutenant Harding asked for information regarding the missing members of the family. They were assured by representatives of Dowie that none of the trio was in Zion, and their names did not appear on the list of the faithful. Lieutenant Harding requested permission to see Dowie personally and secure from him assurances that the Barneses were not in Zion. This, however, was denied them and they returned to the police station, where the Lieutenant induced the old man to return to his Michigan farm and later on write all the information he could obtain.

"The old man cried like a child when he told the story of his wrongs," said Lieutenant Harding. "He begged me to take him where Dr. Dowie was that he might make him answer for the suffering caused by the desertion of his wife and children. He told me he was not the only person who felt that only the death of the wrecker of their homes would appease their wrath. Barnes is 55 years old. His oldest daughter, he said, is 25, and the younger 18."

APPROVES GOING OF GILBERT.

Congregational Organ Says Chicago Theological Seminary Trustees Were Bound to Accept Resignation.

In its current number the Advance, the official publication of the Congregational church in the Northwest, has an editorial approving the recent action of the directors of the Chicago Theological Seminary in accepting the resignation of Professor George Holley Gilbert. The article says in part:

"Professor Gilbert declares that the more he investigated the further he found himself from traditional views. Therefore the directors seemed compelled to this conclusion. They had shown much patience, great charity, great generosity in the matter. No pains or expense were spared to give him full opportunity to develop his views, and, if possible, to bring himself into accord with the theological position of the institution. The directors have taken wholesale action respecting dangerous theological tendencies. How destructive some of these tendencies are has appeared from recent publications.

"It is apparent also that the question of liberty of opinion and of investigation is not involved. The directors have not attempted to suppress perfect freedom of opinion. But no one will deny that in an institution laid upon certain definite foundations and organized for a specific purpose the freedom of those who are conducting it is necessarily limited by consistency with those foundations and that purpose."

Truce in War on Peddlers.

Chief of Police O'Neill, under instructions of Mayor Harrison, has ordered his men not to arrest peddlers for calling out their wares until Corporation Counsel Walker formulates an opinion on the subject. More than 100 of the peddlers were arrested last week.

"MOTHER" LYONS FOUND GUILTY.

JURY DOES QUICK WORK.

In Forty Minutes Reaches Verdict That Prisoner Abducted Jennie Johnson.

EFFORT FOR A NEW TRIAL.

"Mother" Mary Lyons was found guilty yesterday morning in Judge Tuley's court of abducting and forcibly detaining Jennie Johnson in a West Madison street flat. Her punishment was fixed at a term in the penitentiary under the indeterminate sentence law, the maximum service under the statutes governing the case being ten years.

The sentence, say physicians, practically means life imprisonment. Mrs. Lyons, they declare, could not survive a long term in prison. The case will be appealed should Judge Tuley refuse to grant a new trial.

Mrs. Lyons broke down when the verdict was read, and was carried from the courtroom weeping bitterly.

The jury was out only forty minutes. There were two ballots, the first standing eleven for conviction and one blank. The second was unanimous for conviction. No debate arose and the jury would have returned twenty minutes earlier had it not been for a fear that so short deliberation would flavor of undue haste. The jury paid little attention to the letter which caused such a contest during the trial.

The verdict, according to Professor Graham Taylor and Assistant State's Attorney Olson, will act as a spur to the prosecution, and an indictment will be asked against the man known as "Bert Brown."

Woman Hears Jury Charged.

When court was called yesterday morning Mrs. Lyons, dressed in the plain garb she has worn every day, was the only woman present. She took her place at the defendant's table and nervously toyed with her hat as the Judge charged the jury. Across from her and leaning against the pillars of the courtroom sat Professor Graham Taylor, who keenly scrutinized the faces of the members of the jury as they listened to the instructions of the Judge.

At 10 o'clock Judge Tuley had finished his instruction and the jury retired. "Mother" Lyons rose and for the first time since the testimony closed, smiled. Then she was led from the room.

Forty minutes later the twelve men, with Foreman A. E. Featherstone at their head, filed back to the room. Mrs. Lyons was called, as were Assistant State's Attorney Olson and Edgar L. Masters, one of the woman's attorneys. In Featherstone's hands were a bunch of papers, the exhibits of the case, among which was the letter supposed to have been written by Jennie Johnson. Mrs. Lyons fixed her gaze on the papers and as Foreman Featherstone picked a scrap from among them she smiled again and leaned over the table toward the jury.

Bitter Tears Follow Verdict.

As the foreman slowly read the verdict the woman's face blanched and she began to sob. Soon she was crying bitterly. The verdict was:

"We, the jury, find the defendant, Mary Lyons, guilty of abduction in manner and form as charged in the indictment and fix her punishment at imprisonment in the penitentiary."

The jury was composed of unmarried men and was looked upon as the most favorable to the defense. The members were A. E. Featherstone, Julius F. Simon, James Neiter, T. H. Hudell, James J. Williams, Albert Goodwin, Michael J. Ryan, Winfield S. Mapes, Edward Watts, William E. Richardson, Oscar Kluge, and W. H. Bees.

While Attorney Masters was entering a plea for a new trial Mrs. Lyons was led from the room. Her moans could be heard long after she entered the elevator on her way to the jail. In the meantime the jurors were being congratulated by Professor Taylor and Attorney Olson. As the jurors left the room one of them turned to the assistant prosecutor. "I am sorry we did not have 'Bert Brown' here, for we would have settled him, too," he said.

Just Finding, Says Olson.

"I am not a bit surprised," said Attorney Olson. "The case was a clear one and the verdict could not have been otherwise. They did not dare put Mrs. Lyons on the stand, for in her preliminary hearing she made admissions that were too damaging. It was a righteous verdict in a despicable case. Now we are waiting to get at 'Bert Brown.'"

Scanlan Calls It "Dangerous."

"The verdict was a disgrace and as a precedent is dangerous," said Attorney Kickham Scanlan. "I am not defending such actions as those of 'Brown' are supposed to have been, but if this verdict is carried out it will be far reaching. Hardly a man will be able to consider himself safe. It will open the way for endless blackmail.

"Mrs. Lyons was absolutely helpless. She could not appear in her own defense, for a criminal mistake allowed her to make admissions in a justice shop that totally barred her from the stand. Her husband could not testify, and of course 'Bert Brown' could not. Besides, the jury was practically coerced in its course. Two ministers and a lot of women sitting around the principal witness for the prosecution gave the girl a standing she should not have had. We will bring this matter to a court where such things do not have weight."

"We did not use all our evidence," said Professor Taylor, "for we did not need it. We have a much stronger case against 'Bert Brown' and we will push it to the limit."

Mrs. Lyons only would sob and repeat, "It is not right."

DECRIES THE SOCIETY GIRL.

Professor Clark of Northwestern Says She Is a Parasite to Be Avoided.

Professor J. Scott Clark, speaking to his class in English literature at Northwestern University yesterday, said the merits of present day women in no way equaled those of the women of the day of his mother and grandmother. His comment was directed against the society girl.

"The society girl is a parasite," said Professor Clark. "She lives on her father, and in return she gives him nothing. She is of no benefit to the world, and there is no need of our keeping such a weight with us."

Continuing, he told of the failures which society women make as managers of a household, and said they were unable to fill the domestic requirements necessary to make the home an abode of comfort. "They toil not, neither do they spin, yet Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these," quoted the professor, and he continued:

"The young man who seeks a society girl for a wife is on the wrong track. May God help him that marries one of them, for he is tying a millstone around his neck."

A report in a Chicago newspaper yesterday that Professor Clark had advised students not to marry college bred women was repudiated by the professor as absurd and false. He has "coeds" in his classes and has no such low opinion of them as was indicated by the erroneous quotation from him.

INER SEAL

When the Fog Fell the best of biscuit lost their crispness. When germs swarmed, the best of biscuit lost their purity. When dust swirled, the best of biscuit lost their goodness. When odors filled the air, the best of biscuit lost their flavor.

But— now the best of biscuit are sealed in the In-er-seal Patent Package. The fog may fall, the germs fly, the dust swirl, the odor exist and the biscuit come to your table as fresh and crisp as the moment they came from the oven.

When you order Soda, Graham, Long Branch, Milk and Oatmeal Biscuit, Vanilla Wafers, Ginger Snaps and Saratoga Flakes, insist on getting those which come in the In-er-seal Patent Package. Don't take a substitute. Look for the In-er-seal trade mark design at the end of the box.

OLD MAN SEEKS YOUNG BRIDE.

Kentucky Horseman Comes to Chicago in Search of Wife and One of His Trainers.

James Hubbard, horseman, aged 60 years, is in Chicago seeking Carrie Hubbard, bride, aged 18 years. His wife of three months, says Hubbard, deserted him at Covington, Ky., and ran away with one of his trainers, Thomas Jordan. At the same time, the husband relates, $3,000 in cash disappeared.

Hubbard arrived in Chicago on Wednesday, and in the evening he says he caught sight of the elopers as they were leaving a downtown restaurant. Before the horseman could say a word the two were driven away in a cab. Early yesterday morning Hubbard appeared in the Harrison Street Police Station and asked that the police seek Jordan and his wife.

"I am sure that if I could just see Carrie and talk to her she would return home with me," he said. "I don't want her to be arrested. Just let me know where they are stopping, so that I can have a talk with her."

The man was advised to seek the aid of a private detective agency.

ALL WANT THE B. A. DEGREE.

Northwestern Seniors Petition the Faculty After Hint That Wish Will Be Granted.

Seniors at Northwestern University yesterday presented a petition to the faculty asking that every graduate be given the degree of Bachelor of Arts. It is said that the petition was circulated in answer to a hint from the faculty that it would be granted. If this action is taken the other degrees, such as Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Philosophy, and Bachelor of Letters, will not be conferred again by the Methodist institution. The faculty members long have been anxious to have only one degree. The seniors are also circulating a petition asking that they be relieved from the final examinations of the year.

Virgil Garvin's wildness and a bad decision by Umpire Connolly put Milwaukee out of the running in the first inning of yesterday's game at White Stocking Park and gave Chicago's champions an easy victory with which to inaugurate their second home series. The aforesaid combination gave Chicago six runs at the start, deprived the Brewers of the services of Manager Duffy, who was asked to watch the game from the bench, and made things generally one-sided, the final result being 14 to 1 in figures.

After blanking Milwaukee the champions got two men on bases by virtue of safe hits by Jones and Isbell, but there were two men out when the tall sycamore from Texas lost control of his curves temporarily. First he hit Hartman, then gave Shugart and McFarland bases on balls, forcing two runs across the plate and leaving the bases still full of white legs. With three balls and two strikes on Sugden the baserunners all started together, and as the next ball came over the plate Sugden hit it slowly toward Gilbert, who scooped the ball and tossed it to Anderson just ahead of Joe. The big first baseman dropped the ball and smothered it in the dust, but Connolly, who was giving the base decisions, didn't see the misplay and called Sugden out.

Runners Score Unmolested.

Everybody kicked and kicked so vigorously that Connolly asked Mannassau who was umpiring at the plate, and Mannassau said Anderson dropped the ball, whereupon Connolly revised his original opinion and called Sugden safe. But by that time not only the three base runners had crossed the plate, but Joe himself, refusing to be called out, ran around the bases and scored, too, there being no effort to put him out, as the Brewers stood on Connolly's original decision.

The Brewers objected frantically to this mixup and the outcome was that Manager Duffy was ordered out of the game and the six runs scored by Chicago were allowed to stand. It would have been only the fair thing to do if the umpires had put Sugden back at first and McFarland at third, where they would have been if the decision had been given correctly the first time. Shugart had such a lead off second that he could have scored easily on the play any way.

Those two runs might have cut a figure in some games, but not in yesterday's, which Chicago won away off all the way. It would have been a closer contest, however, if that combination had not taken the heart all out of the Brewers. Skopec was wild most of the time, giving six bases on balls, and hitting a batter, but when he did get his curves over they were generally puzzlers, and six hits only were made off him.

He was fortunate, however, in getting out of several small holes. In two innings, the fifth and seventh, there were three on bases with two out and each time the succeeding batsman hit easy little things to Skopec. Twice runs were cut off by chain-lightning double plays, and in two innings, the seventh and ninth, Isbell did sensational stunts which were worse than highway robbery from Milwaukee's standpoint.

Good Plays by Isbell and Hartman.

Once he shot himself out like a telescope, and, falling flat on the ground, blocked a fast hit close to first bag, getting up in time to secure the out. Another time he stuck his mit into a scorching liner high over first and by some occult process of mental gumarabics persuaded the ball to stay there.

"Dutch" Hartman shone with the steady glare of a Roentgen ray, both at bat and in the field. He made four hits in as many chances and played all over the infield as if to atone for some of his sins of the past.

Garvin settled a little after the first inning, but was hit pretty consistently and compelled to retire in favor of Dowling in the seventh. The champions ran bases with almost reckless impunity and made their hits count for all there was in them. In almost every run made after the first inning good work on the bases figured.

Milwaukee's one run was the result of two hits and two errors by Skopec and Sugden. It would have been a lot more perhaps but for Hartman's work in grabbing a fast bounder from Anderson's bat when the bases were full and shooting it home in time to let Sugden relay it to first and complete a double play.

Notes of the Game.

Jimmy Callahan was out in uniform practicing before the game and coaching from the lines after it began.

In the third inning Garvin slipped just as he reached Sugden's bunt and fell flat, but threw the ball to first in time to beat Joe out.

Joe Sugden caught his first game and the Brewers did not try his arm out any by attempting to steal. Skopec kept him jumping around in lively manner after his wide benders.

Hartman made four hits for a total of seven bases, accepted six chances out of six, stole three bases, and scored three runs himself, besides sending three more across the plate with his stick.

Garvin was given a warm welcome by the fans when he went into the game and some of the rooters were in a quandary whether to root for or against him after his hard-luck beginning.

Manager Duffy was put out of the game before he had a chance to get into it. He did not come to bat and played two-thirds of an inning in the field without getting a chance, so his name is omitted from the score.

Manager Griffith gave Henry Reitz his release and the player will probably return to Baltimore. With both McFarland and Mertes hitting well, Griffith was not willing to take chances of breaking a good combination by trying Reitz at second.

Hartman's home run was something in the nature of a scratch. It went on a line to center. Hallman started in on it, then slipped when he tried to "reverse," and the ball sailed over his head to deep field. It would have been a different [illegible] if he had judged it correctly at first.

[illegible] Men Make Errors at Critical Stages, While the Home Team Bunches Its Hits.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—Washington today won the first game of its series with Philadelphia by good batting, with the aid of the visitors' errors at critical points. The home club bunched its hits in the fourth and sixth innings, scoring nine runs. Farrell and Clingman each made sensational running catches of hard flies. Right Fielder Geier was given a diamond ring and a wreath of flowers by his Washington friends. Score:

Michigan Nine Starts East.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 16.—[Special.]—Michigan's twelve baseball men who will represent the varsity in the Eastern schedule left town tonight amid great enthusiasm. A huge crowd of students was on historic Railroad Hill and the din was deafening. Coach Sexton is hopeful, although the team's work has been slow during the last week and the Chicago game proved discouraging. Practice this afternoon was snappy and satisfactory, and Sexton worked his men like cart horses. Harvard, with the formidable Clarkson in the box, is considered by Sexton as the varsity's most dangerous opponent. The men taken are: Captain McGinnis, center field; Condon, first base; Flesher, shortstop; Touhill, second base; Weber, third base; Snow, left field; Davies, right field; Utley, pitcher; Blencoe, catcher; Dillon, Fisher, and Borelli were taken as reserve pitchers. The revised schedule is as follows: May 18, Cornell at Ithaca; May 20, Syracuse at Syracuse; May 22, Yale at New Haven; May 23, Brown at Providence; May 24, Harvard at Cambridge.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—John Doyle returned to his team today and by his nerve and daring upset his erstwhile fellows of the New York club until they broke in panic, falling before Chicago and dropping from first place.

George Edward Waddell was Doyle's principal assistant. Waddell but for an accident would have shut out Davis' aggregation. While Waddell by grand pitching was making Freedman's hired men look like plugged money, Doyle was leading the assaults on the New York pitchers, and when these two had done with the Giants they looked like pigmies and their pennant hopes shriveled. The score at the end was 11 to 3.

As games go, the game was bad. Chicago, led by Doyle, whose presence seemed to have injected new life into the men, went at Taylor, the mute, right at the start and piled up an overwhelming lead before the battle was a quarter of an hour old. Doyle did it. In the first inning, after two were out, he cracked a vicious hit to left, sending Green to third. Then he stole, yelling at Green to go home. Taylor had the ball. He threw to second, but Green scored, beating Nelson's throw to the plate, and Childs, inspired by his captain's spirit, slashed away at the ball and sent Doyle home with a clean hit.

Doyle Scores Three Runs.

That really settled the struggle, but in the second inning, when two gifts, a hit, and an error had filled the bases with Remnants, Doyle, applauded by his old New York friends, came up, and, with a slashing hit to left, sent home three more runs and put the issue out of doubt.

There were times when a hit would have made New York a contender in the game, but Waddell was keyed up to a high pitch, and he allowed no New-Yorker to reach the plate until the eighth inning, when Strang's lucky two-bagger, which fell on the foul line in right field, enabled New York to break the row of ciphers and score two runs. It was Strang's two-base drive to left that gave New York a third run in the ninth.

Taylor lasted just two innings. The fault was not his. A good ball club would have saved him the pummeling he received, but the New-Yorkers, who have been playing far above their normal gait, broke all to pieces when Doyle appeared and looked like the aggregation of minor leaguers they really are.

Doheny Fares Better.

Doheny, who succeeded Taylor, got away without punishment until the eighth inning, when Loftus' men began to bunt, and piled up runs so fast the score board man could not count them all. Errors by Nelson and Strang started that panic. Waddell hit safely. Hartsel bunted safely, Dolan cracked out a single, Doyle bunted safely, and after five runs had been scored Green ended the misery by getting caught at the plate, urged on by Doyle, who was dodging around the bases trying to add to the humiliation of his former companions.

Notes of the Game.

There were some bright spots in the game, but they were few.

McCormick made two beautiful stops and throws and one burlesque error.

Doyle made a wonderful running catch of Nelson's foul fly way down near the bleachers, and then muffed an easy pop-up.

Billy Nash umpired. He gave New York everything, but his decisions caused no trouble for Waddell. They might have affected a close game.

The mistakes of his fellows kept Waddell in hot water all through the struggle, but he kept right on pitching. Many times the crowd roared, expecting the discomfiture of the big left-hander, but his nerve was superb, and in every dilemma he pitched himself into safety.

There is a scandal brewing if the rumors regarding the umpires are true. It is asserted here openly that the umpires are under instructions to made decisions from a gate receipt standpoint, and one umpire has confessed, it is asserted, to having been ordered to favor certain teams. Proof of this assertion is lacking, but from the umpiring this season the story looks plausible.

Brooklyn Players Shut Out for Eight Innings, but Make a Rally in the Ninth.

New York, May 16.—With the score of 6 to 0 against them, Brooklyn went into the ninth and landed on Hahn for three singles, a double, and a triple, scoring four runs. Illinois-Wisconsin Meet Today.

Madison, Wis., May 16.—[Special.]—The Illinois track team arrived in Madison tonight for tomorrow's dual meet. The two teams seem to be closely matched, and some hard fought events are sure to result. The Badgers this year are strong in the long distance runs and the field events, while the short distance events are generally conceded to Illinois. Bredsteen, the Badgers' best long distance man, is just recovering from an operation and probably will not compete. Captain McGowan is far from being in condition. Last year Wisconsin won from Illinois by half a point.

Change in Harvard Crew.

Cambridge, Mass., May 16.—[Special.]—The first change of the week in the Harvard Varsity crew was made today when Captain Bullard was taken from stroke of the first boat and put into the second. Guy Bancroft was put into Blake's place at No. 2 in the varsity. Brownell stroked the varsity.

JACQUELIN WINS FROM TAYLOR.

French Cyclist Defeats the American Colored Rider in Races at 1,333 and 2,000 Metres.

PARIS, May 16.—In the bicycle match today between "Major" Taylor, the colored American rider, and Jacquelin, the crack French cyclist, at the Parc des Princes, in the Bois de Boulogne, Jacquelin won.

Three races had been arranged. The first, 1,333 meters, was won by Jacquelin by a wheel. The second, one kilometer, was won easily by Jacquelin. The third, 2,000 meters, was therefore unnecessary.

One of the biggest crowds ever gathered at a French cycling event was present. About 28,000 persons paid double gate money. The victory of Jacquelin was most popular and caused wild enthusiasm. The crowd invaded the track and Jacquelin was carried on the shoulders of his admirers.

There was no attempt to make fast time. Three parts of each race were done at little better than a walking pace, with a final rush home of about 300 yards. As an illustration of how the race was run it may be said that the struggle seemed to be to see which could go the slowest, and at one point both leaned against the fence for a few seconds. Finally, when entering the home stretch of the second and last lap of the first race, Jacquelin suddenly darted forward and Taylor followed suit. They reached the winning post with just daylight between Jacquelin's hind wheel and Taylor's front wheel. Jacquelin won the second and final race even more easily, winning by ten yards.

The last 200 meters of the first race were ridden in :11⅗, while the last 200 meters of the second race were ridden in :11⅗.

Taylor said the sudden change in the weather from warm yesterday to chilly today had affected him, and partly explained his defeat, and that he had done 200 meters while training in faster time than he did it today. He also objected to the French method of crawling around the track until the home stretch, saying he preferred the American style of dashing off at a pistol shot and going a hot pace until the finish.

VICTORY FOR MISS ADAIR.

British Woman Champion Defeats Miss Whigham in Fifth Round of Tournament by 1 Up.

LONDON, May 16.—[Special.]—Miss Sybil Whigham defeated Miss May Hezlet in the fourth round of the women's golf championship at Aberdovey, Wales, today by three up and one to play. The loser won the British championship in 1899.

In the fifth round Miss Rhona Adair, the present holder of the title and also twice winner of the Irish championship, defeated Miss Sybil Whigham at the twenty-first hole.

The event is the eighth championship of the Ladies' Golf Union of Great Britain and has been in progress at Aberdovey, Wales, since Monday. Miss Adair seems to have a good chance to win the greater title again, although two rounds have still to be played. The Misses Sybil and Molly Whigham are considered the best of the Scotch women players. They are sisters of the American amateur champion of 1896 and 1897. In the fifth round last year at Westward Ho Miss Adair beat Miss Sybil, and she beat Miss Molly in the semi-finals.

In addition to Miss Adair, those who qualified for the semi-final round were Miss Graham, Mrs. Stubbs, and Miss Neville.

KNOCKOUT FOR OSHKOSH FIGHT.

ACTS FOR THE GOVERNOR.

State Executive Sends Personal Representative to Enforce Orders.

TOWN FULL OF VISITORS.

[BY GEORGE SILER.]

Oshkosh, Wis., May 16.—[Special.]—The Jack Root-"Kid" Carter twelve-round contest, which was to have taken place at the rink tonight, was declared off at 7 o'clock this evening by Adjutant General Boardman, who notified Manager Moore of Appleton that under no consideration would he permit the contest to be held.

"I am convinced," he said, "the contest is to be a prize fight in all the term implies, and as the laws of the State prohibit prize fighting I cannot permit it to take place."

His edict, coming so late in the day, was a clean knockout blow to the sports who traveled from twenty to 200 miles to witness the mill. It is needless to say the State authorities, from the Governor down, were roasted by the fight followers.

"We've had boxing contests at the rink all winter," said some of the local sports, "and not a murmur came from the authorities." Others said that raising the limit from six to twelve rounds and the fact that Root and Carter were known throughout the country as pugilists caused the Governor to put his foot down. However that may be, the fight will not take place and that is all there is to it.

Fighters in Good Form.

Both men were in the finest condition possible and also overloaded with confidence. Carter said he has never felt better in all his career as a fighter, and the result, as far as he was concerned, was never in doubt. Root never gave the loser's end of the purse a thought. Clean breaks and no hitting in the clinches, Root said, was his long suit, and therefore Carter to him was "like money from home."

The town is crowded with sports and indications pointed to the largest crowd that ever attended a boxing contest in the State. Betting was limited to small amounts, as Root was selected as a sure winner. The saloons and hotels are crowded. Manager Moore, who arranged the contest, and who, through lack of financial support in his town—Appleton—transferred the contest to this town, tackled the affair with a vigor worthy of a better cause. Single-handed and without a word of encouragement he offered a purse of $1,500 for the bout, which made fight promoters in the State throw up their hands with astonishment.

They all said Moore was crazy, but judging from the crowd that is present, he would have cleared up a neat sum of money had the contest not been interfered with.

Text of Governor's Edict.

Following is the manifesto from the Governor:

> To Carl D. Jackson, District Attorney, and Eugene Potter, Sheriff of Winnebago County: You are directed to take such action as will absolutely prevent any prize fight from taking place anywhere within your country. It will not be held to be a compliance with this order in any respect should you allow a contest to commence and to stop it after a violation of the statute has taken place. No violation of the statute whatever must be permitted, and no mere error in judgment will be accepted as an excuse for such violation. You will be held accountable for strict enforcement of this order.
> The Attorney General of the State will be in Oshkosh to aid and advise you, and the Adjutant General of the State at hand with full authority to support you with all the power of the State.
> General Charles R. Boardman, Adjutant General of the State of Wisconsin, is hereby directed to proceed to Oshkosh to consult with the local authorities and take such steps as he may deem necessary to enforce the law which prohibits prize fighting in this State.
> ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE, Governor.

Oshkosh is pugilistically dead. The last hope of securing rebate money for Manager Moore by friendly exhibition bouts was killed by Sheriff Potter. That official, to make a clean job of it, ordered the doors of the rink to remain closed. Although only exhibition bouts were announced, after the big event was declared off, the out-of-town sports would have patronized the entertainment.

I saw the sheriff after he had ordered the doors closed, and he said he did all in his power to influence the Governor to permit the big contest. "I like the sport," he said, "and would willingly pay for a good front seat to see the fight, but I have to obey the orders of my superior officer."

M'GOVERN TO FIGHT SULLIVAN.

Will Battle Before the Southern Athletic Club in Louisville Some Time During August.

Louisville, Ky., May 16.—[Special.]—The Southern Athletic club announces the matching of Dave Sullivan and Terry McGovern for the featherweight championship. The date will be some time during the triennial conclave of the Knights Templar the last week in August. Sullivan, who is preparing Dan Creedon for his match with Marvin Hart in Louisville next week, claims to have made a special study of McGovern and believes he stands a far better show against him than any of the other featherweights.

Jeffries Going to California.

New York, May 16.—"Jim" Jeffries is not at all satisfied with the way his match with "Gus" Ruhlin hangs fire. The champion is waiting daily for word from "Billy" Delaney, his trainer, who is in San Francisco, but thus far he has not heard from him.

"I have decided to go to California next week," said Jeffries. "My intention is to see the matchmakers of the clubs on the coast and find out what they are really going to do about the encounter. If the battle does not take place as I expect I will return East at once and go to Buffalo. I will go into business there, and incidentally give boxing exhibitions with my brother "Jack." "Jack" Jeffries leaves for San Francisco tomorrow. He is suffering from a sore knee, the result of a wrestling bout with the boilermaker a few weeks ago, which bruised his kneecap. The doctor said dye from a pair of tights got into the wound.

WADDELL FIRST IN MATCH RACE.

Bradley's Derby Candidate Beats H. B. Durham's Operator at Worth Track.

Although Favorite Wins by Half a Length Only He Is Never Strongly Urged.

SLOW TIME FOR THE HALF.

In a race that was exciting because of the interest attending a match contest, rather than because of its closeness, Robert Waddell yesterday took the measure of his 3-year-old American Derby rival Operator at Worth. Only a half length in front at the finish, Waddell nevertheless defeated H. B. Durham's colt decisively and without leaving any possible reason for doubting that he was the better racing animal, weighted and conditioned as the two were yesterday.

It was a good afternoon for horse racing. The weather was clear and warm, a strong breeze from the East being the only thing to retard the thoroughbreds. The attendance, however, was hardly what was expected, and the deepest interest was shown in the main event by the crowd.

After Impromptu's number had been cried as winner of the third race the spectators rushed into the ring to see what the bookmakers posted. Two or three pencilers laid 3 to 20 against Waddell, but the ruling price was 2 to 5, 9 to 5 being the popular figure against Operator. Weller held Robert Waddell out in his book and laid 2 to 1 steadily against the Durham colt. From the ring the crowd set moved out into the paddock, and there the two 3-year-olds were inspected as carefully as Monday bargains are by State street shoppers. Operator had the call on looks. There was no question about that. He is an exceptionally handsome black fellow, with powerful muscles developed in racing lines. Waddell was finer drawn and his brown coat lacked the glossy richness of the other. Yet Waddell is anything but a bad-looking horse.

Bradley Looks Confident.

The owners of the two horses were on hand seeing that every detail in the preparation of their charges was properly attended to. Mr. Durham nodded pleasantly to acquaintances, but was plainly anxious. R. Bradley, the big Virginian, strolled about the ring wearing a look of confidence that could not be mistaken.

The bugle called the horses to the post at 4:20. Winkfield instead of Seaton had the mount on Robert Waddell, which vastly improved the chances of the favorite. J. Mathews rode Operator and had no trouble in making the weight, 102 pounds. Waddell carried 112 pounds, and was therefore conceding his rival thirteen pounds by the scale, Operator being a colt and Waddell a gelding.

The favorite got away from the post with a full length advantage, due to his own running rather than to any design of his jockey. The two horses were practically walking when Dwyer swished his bunting. Waddell bounded away, but was immediately hauled up by Winkfield, who allowed Operator to come along on the inside and take the lead. The pair ran around the first turn with the black colt half a length in front. Both were under a pull and it was apparent each boy had instructions to ride a waiting race. Operator ran with head high in air and Matthews sat upright. Winkfield bent over until his head was almost at Waddell's neck and thereby avoided the wind, a factor of no little help to the horse under him. They turned into the backstretch with no change in the relative positions of the two horses, and the real contest was not yet on.

First Half in :51.

It took them fifty-one seconds to reach the half-mile pole, and all chances of remarkable time were gone. As they swung around the far turn Mathews at last let out a link, and then for the first time the crowd became excited as Operator was seen to draw away until there was nearly a length of daylight between himself and his pursuer. Winkfield was still bending low and had not made a move on the favorite. The gelding, however, increased his pace of his own accord, and when they turned into the stretch Operator was only a length in the lead.

Then Mathews sat down to ride his hardest. Winkfield straightened up, with the whip at his back, and for the first time called on Robert Waddell to do something, and the decisive period had arrived. In no time the Bradley entry was on even terms, then went past the flying black, and it looked as if the race was all over, with more than a furlong yet to negotiate. But here Mathews drew his whip and brought it down upon the flanks of Operator. The response was that of a game, true colt. With bulldog determination Operator came forward once more. He got to Waddell's throatlatch, and his supporters almost went wild with enthusiasm as they saw the gain. But Winkfield had only to make another call on Waddell, and the latter again moved away, merely because he had speed and strength in reserve, and he went past the winning line half a length in front without ever having been vigorously called upon.

The time was 1:41 1-5. It was the fastest mile that had been made at Worth, and yet was far short of what the horses could have accomplished had not the start been so slow and the pace for the first half mile so indifferent. The last quarter of a mile was covered in 24 seconds, a 1:36 gait.

Mathews was blamed by many for not having cut out a fast pace, with his advantage in weights, but it would not have changed the result except in time had he done so. The race raises Robert Waddell still further in the estimation of horsemen as a Derby possibility.

H. B. Durham said after the contest: "My horse was not keyed up to such a race. He will do better than this."

The other races of the afternoon were overshadowed by the match. Every favorite won, with the exception of Aransas, in the first race.

Barring accident Ollie J. would have had a good chance to beat Hosi. She was jammed into the fence and almost thrown at the start and had a rough journey all the way. Dugan on Old Mike was the cause of much interference at the start. He broke on the outside and cut directly across the track, impeding the entire lot with the exception of Hosi. In this melee Frank Ireland was thrown to his knees. Back Phelps and Lew Hopper ran their races early, then retired. Old Mike was jumped on and cut down.

CONTEST OVER NUCKOLS' CASE.

Trotting Men Indignant Over Decision of National Association Punishing Seemingly Innocent Driver.

[BY H. T. WHITE.]

The case of Vance Nuckols, the Cleveland driver who was ordered suspended by the National Trotting association unless he refunds $1,000, won by the trotter Arch W.—that horse having a suppressed record of 2:16¼, which neither the national officials nor the American association knew about—is likely to prove a hard contested one before it is settled.

Nuckols has all kinds of friends, and the ruling of the board, while it may comport with turf law, is unquestionably an injustice. The highest authorities to whom Nuckols could appeal assured him that the record of Arch W. was 2:19¼, and it is absurd to impose upon him the repayment of $1,000 under such circumstances. If anybody owes the money it is the former owner of the horse, who misrepresented the animal's record when he turned him over to Nuckols. It was well enough to penalize the horse, but, inasmuch as Nuckols received written assurance from the track where the 2:16¼ record was said to have been made that the proper mark of the horse was 2:19¼, and then fortified this with the decision of the American Trotting Register association, some way to avoid punishing a man who was not only innocent but who had taken every precaution should have been found.

A well-known turfman writes from Cleveland that indignation among horsemen over the decision is marked, and an effort to secure a reversal of what is deemed an unjust punishment will be made at once. He says: "The association never demanded the money back from Vance. They simply got together their home-made court, branded him as a dishonorable man to the public, and set the price that he must pay to follow his chosen profession."

CROWDS AT MORRIS PARK.

ATTENDANCE AT THE EASTERN TRACK IS UNPRECEDENTED.

Average for the Last Ten Days Excels All Previous Records—King Pepper Leads All the Way and Wins the Claremont Handicap from The Rhymer, Favorite—Colonel Padden Captures the Van Nest Selling Stakes and Is Then Bid Up $2,000.

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—The turf has entered upon a new era of prosperity if the records of the Morris Park meeting in the matter of attendance go for anything. For the tenth day straight, the crowd today numbered not less than 7,000 people, and that aside from the several special days, when the number of visitors was much larger. On the figures reached the average for the term of racing is unprecedented at the big Westchester course.

The chief race of the day was the third of the serial handicaps, the Claremont, at six and a half furlongs, for 3-year-olds and upward, in which seven of the twelve named to start went to the post, King Lief starting the favorite at a price only a fraction shorter than that against the second choice, The Rhymer, while each of the others was backed more or less in one of the best betting races of the season.

The flag fell with The Rhymer off in front, but that colt, a notoriously slow beginner, dropped back early in the race, while King Pepper shot out to the front and went on to make a runaway race of it. At the first furlong pole he led by two lengths, at the quarter by four lengths, and from there on was never in trouble. At the end King Pepper was galloping four lengths before The Rhymer, who closed fast at the finish and landed in second place by a head from Belle of Lexington, who made a rush at the end and beat off the fourth horse, Isia.

For the Van Nest selling stakes for 3-year-olds only four horses ran, with Colonel Padden, owned by Senator T. D. Sullivan, the favorite at odds on. Colonel Padden won after a kaleidoscopic contest, in which each horse led at some point. The winner, entered to sell for $1,000, was bid up to $3,000 by J. A. Bennett, owner of the second horse, Animosity. It took a $5 bid more to save Colonel Padden to his owner, the winning of a stake worth $1,190 thus costing the owner $2,000.

In the opening race the undersized Petra II. started favorite and won handily after Judge Wardell made the running into the stretch.

Embezzlement and Malfeasance Alleged by the Citizens' Association.

The arrest was made at noon on warrants sworn out by Hoyt King, secretary of the Citizens' association.

Lawlor, in custody of detectives, was taken from the Masonic Temple Theater to the Harrison Street Police Station, and then was given a two-hour walk about town to hunt a bondsman. Joseph Hanreddy of 45-47 Wabansia avenue finally signed a bond in the sum of $5,000. Lawlor then returned to his bar.

It had been known for several days that investigation by the Citizens' association would cause something to "drop." The details of the complaints, however, were unknown to Lawlor till they were read to him after his arrest.

Both warrants were drawn by Assistant State's Attorney Blair. One of them charged Lawlor with embezzlement by appropriating $1,000 of South Town funds, about June 1, 1900. The other accused him of having paid Henry H. Fuller, former South Town Collector, $7,989 in settlement of "certain accounts," which payments were not approved by the Town Auditor, and lacked a proper certificate from the Town Clerk. This latter payment was made, according to the warrant, on March 26, 1901.

Troubles Multiply for Lawlor.

Lawlor's arrest follows close upon a suit which was started last week by the Citizens' association against him and the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company, his surety while in office. This suit was for the recovery of money alleged to have been paid out by Lawlor without the proper warrants. Lawlor's bond on which recovery is sought amounted to $160,000. The money alleged to have been wrongfully paid out amounts to $13,000.

A similar suit was filed on the same day by Attorney A. J. Pflaum for the present South Town board, so that there are now standing against Lawlor two civil and two criminal suits, with the guaranty company a party to two of them.

Lawlor declared yesterday that so much litigation all at once is "persecution." There was a hint from Secretary Hoyt King yesterday that "persecution" of the same sort was hanging over the head of another former town official.

When the grand jury meets on Monday charges of malfeasance and embezzlement against Lawlor will be presented and an indictment will be asked.

Says It's All a Mistake.

"I am not an embezzler, and I am not guilty of malfeasance in office," said Lawlor. "It is a case of persecution by the Citizens' association. The embezzlement charge is due to a mistake in the annual report of the South Town board. It simply is an error of figures. It is true that I paid $7,989.80 to Henry H. Fuller, the South Town Collector, without having the account audited and without a certificate from the Town Clerk. There are times when it is impossible to wait for bills to be audited, and this was one of them. The clerk's certificate is not required by law."

The penalty for conviction on the malfeasance charge may be made a fine of $10,000. Should conviction follow on the embezzlement charge, imprisonment for from one to fifteen years and a fine may be imposed at the discretion of the court.

"We intend to push the cases started today, independent of what the State's Attorney will do," said George E. Cole, President of the Citizens' association. "We are likely to proceed against some one else soon."

"We believe that we have excellent cases against Lawlor," said Hoyt King. "The evidence we have in hand is strong."

WORK ON SHAMROCK II.'S HULL.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

SOUTHAMPTON, May 16.—An unobscured view of Shamrock II., which was had in the Prince of Wales dry dock today, confirms previous opinions as to the fineness of its lines and the beauty of its design. It certainly looks to be over twenty feet draft.

The rudder has been unshipped and the riveters are working on the sternpost. The hull is being burnished. Sir Thomas Lipton, Designer Watson, Mr. Ward of Denny Bros., and Captains Sycamore and Wringe were present all day watching the work.

In an interview today Captain Wringe of Shamrock I. said he believed the old boat would beat Shamrock II. in a strong wind and head seas. He said, however, that the challenger would win in smooth water, carrying its jack yard topsail.

LONDON, May 16.—The Yachtsman today says: "The Shamrock I. is quite as much a dark horse as the challenger. It is probable that Monday's hard wind gave it the first chance to show what it could really do. We believe it would have beaten Columbia at Weymouth. Of course, the result does not argue that the challenger is out of the hunt. Probably the cup races will be sailed with jackyard topsail winds. In such weather the challenger ought to beat Shamrock I. ten minutes in thirty miles. In our opinion it is just suited to cup race weather."

It has been found that the weakness in the hull of Shamrock II. is due to defective rivets. It was at first thought the trouble was confined to that portion of the hull near the rudder, but several weak spots in the riveting have been discovered in the bows. Nothing else appears to be the matter with the boat. It will be taken from the dock tomorrow night. Sir Thomas Lipton says he hopes the sails will be bent for another trial Saturday.

TIME FIXED FOR LAUNCHING.

Independence Will Take the Water on Saturday Night—To Be Christened by Owner's Eldest Daughter.

Boston, Mass., May 16.—[Special.]—Independence will take the water on Saturday night about the time of high water, 11:27 p. m. The launching will be private. This statement is confirmed by two authorities, Thomas W. Lawson, the owner of the yacht, and Alfred E. Cox, general manager of the Atlantic works.

Mr. Lawson's oldest daughter, Miss Gladys, will christen Independence. This has been Mr. Lawson's intention for some time, although there has been a possibility that he might change the program. A platform has been erected at the head of the shop running to the stem of the boat, upon which Miss Lawson and the christening party will stand. A flight of steps has been built up to this platform.

Mr. Lawson today announced that he had purchased a fine hurdler and steeplechaser and would make his début as an owner of running horses at the Country club meeting on May 28. His purchases are Draughtsman, bought of William C. Hayes of Westbury, L. I., and Ronkonkoma, bought of H. K. Vingut. The former is 5 years old and this season won three races at Pimlico and the St. Nicholas hurdle handicap at Morris Park. The latter won the weight for age steeplechase at Morris Park on May 4.

ANOTHER CALIFORNIA TRACK.

Young Spreckels Will Build a Fine Race Course to Rival Those of the Williams Syndicate.

San Francisco, Cal., May 16.—[Special.]—Upon what is stated to be good authority, Adolph Spreckels, son of the California sugar king, is the leading spirit in a new venture which involves the building of a fine racing plant in San Mateo County, just over the line from San Francisco. It is asserted that the San Mateo coursing park and land adjoining has been rented and that a racetrack will be built second to none in the country. Fifteen hundred stables will be erected, with all the track buildings and paraphernalia of up-to-date designs. The deal for the last ten acres of ground necessary for the new plant was closed day before yesterday, which removed all reason for longer secrecy in the matter. Union coursing is much more accessible to San Francisco than is Tanforan, being many miles nearer to the metropolis. When the new track is finished the racing situation will once more assume a most interesting phase. It means that the California Jockey club is to have a rival in the field for racing patronage and that visiting Eastern turfmen will not be in the hands of a monopoly.

Banquet to All-American Shots.

Newton, Ia., May 16.—In the State shoot Fred Gilbert still holds the honors. The scores today were: Gilbert, 95; Herr, 90½; Lindemann, 90; Parmelee, 89; C. F. Cole, 88. The Smith cup was won by a new shooter, George Seibher of Newton. He shot twenty straight. Budd, Gilbert, Mott, and Miller tied on nineteen. Hotel Churchill is crowded tonight in attendance at the banquet tendered the All-American team by the members of the Newton Business-Men's association.

Select a New Referee.

San Francisco, Cal., May 16.—[Special.]—A new referee was selected today for the Herrera-McGovern fight, which will be the leading event of this month's pugilistic festivities. The Bakersfield champion objected to Eddie Graney and Phil Wand was agreed upon. Herrera moved his training quarters from San José to the Terminal House in this city today. The reason for the change was on account of its convenience. It was here that McGovern trained for Gardner, but this time the champion will probably condition himself at the Olympic club and Croll's Garden in Alameda.

TRIAL OF HADFIELD BEGUN.

Witnesses for State Testify Defendant Shot and Killed James Jordan on Railroad Train Near Marion, Ill.

Marion, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—The first day of the Hadfield murder trial closed after hearing fourteen witnesses for the people and a few for the defense. X. Davis was the first witness examined, and testified that he saw the prisoner, dressed in the uniform of the Carterville band, advance toward James Jordan on the train with pistol in hand, and saw him shoot Jordan. Dr. Theodore Hudson related the story in much the same way. Officer Green said he saw Hadfield shoot Jordan and within a few minutes arrested him. What the defense will be is unknown, but probably an effort will be made to locate the crime in Jackson County. The train was moving at the time and near the county line, but, owing to the confusion, it may be a difficult matter to tell to a certainty where the shooting took place.

Schlitz is Old Beer

The beer that causes biliousness is "green beer"—insufficiently aged. It is hurried from the brewery to the market before it is half fermented. Drink it and it ferments in your stomach, and the result is biliousness and headache.

Fermentation is expensive. It requires immense refrigerating rooms (ours hold 265,000 barrels) and an even temperature of 34 degrees. Fermentation is a process of months.

No green beer ever leaves the Schlitz brewery. If you wish to be certain of an aged beer, get Schlitz, the beer that made Milwaukee famous.

THREE "L" LINES NEAR A MERGER.

Union Loop, Northwestern, and Lake Street Soon to Be Consolidated.

PREDICT A BIG SAVING.

Economy of Management the Purpose of the Interests Involved in Deal.

EXPECT OTHERS TO JOIN.

WHAT THE MERGER MEANS.

	Bonds.	Stock.
Northwestern	$5,000,000	$10,000,000
Union Loop	4,387,000	5,000,000
Lake Street	6,081,000	10,000,000

Present plans for the consolidation of Chicago elevated railroads involve a combination of companies owned by the Blair-Mitchell interests. It is understood that arrangements have been made to carry this through at once, and a meeting of the persons having the matter in hand will be held here within a week or two to go over the details.

While the three elevated roads controlled by these interests—the Northwestern, the Lake Street, and the Union Loop—are practically under one management now through a community of ownership, it is thought that great savings will result from actual consolidation. Two or possibly all three of the roads will be combined, and the corporation thus formed will be the nucleus of the long-talked-of elevated road system of the entire city under one management.

The negotiations with the Metropolitan and the South Side people, it was said yesterday, ended unsatisfactorily to the interests which had undertaken the deal. The prices named were higher than the New York people thought were warranted. Both companies asked in excess of the market values of their stocks. However, it is expected that eventually all the companies will be embraced in the consolidation.

Gains for Loop Stock.

Union Loop stock has been making steady gains, having risen recently from 108 to 123½, where it closed yesterday. The advance had been traced to a dividend on loop stock, which is due, but it appears now that it was on account of the pending combination. Northwestern Elevated common also has been gaining, and sold up yesterday from 40 to 43, closing at 42. The preferred is closely held and little is for sale. The company's first fiscal year of operation ends with this month. No dividend has been paid on the preferred, but good earnings are shown. Much money has been put into improvements.

The consolidation project is in furtherance of the plans of Charles T. Yerkes, made when Mr. Yerkes' interests were here. He talked of consolidating the three companies first and getting the Metropolitan and the South Side into the combination afterwards. The Lake Street is essential to the consolidation, as it owns the north side of the loop.

Paves Way for Bond Issue.

A resolution of the Board of Directors of the Metropolitan Elevated company authorizing a $5,000,000 bond issue was filed at the County Recorder's office yesterday. The issue will be secured by a trust deed to the entire property of the company, personal and real, given to the Northern Trust company. The bonds are all to be of one issue, of the denomination of $1,000, payable thirty-seven years from July 1, with interest at 5 per cent, and will be known as Metropolitan West Side Elevated railway company extension mortgage gold bonds.

STORAGE BATTERY LINE REPORT

Receiver Shows a Deficit for Last Three Months—Motive Power of Road Changed.

That the storage battery system of operating the cars of the Chicago Electric Traction company is a failure is shown by Receiver Henrotin's quarterly report filed in the United States Circuit Court yesterday. The receiver's statement for January, February, and March shows a deficit of $1,632. This is not regarded as discouraging, however, as the best business of the road usually comes with warm weather. Then, too, the road has undergone repairs, by which the motive power was changed from the storage battery system to the overhead trolley. Judge Kohlsaat recently allowed an expenditure of $250,000 for this purpose.

Edwin Stapleton Conway, New President of National Association, Has Seen Long Service.

Edwin Stapleton Conway, who has been elected President of the National Piano Manufacturers' association, is secretary of the W. W. Kimball company and within a year was made general agent of the firm in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, and Michigan. In 1875 he was made manager of the wholesale department, with headquarters in Chicago, and in 1882 the firm was incorporated, Mr. Conway being elected secretary and General Superintendent. Mr. Conway was a member of the committee which made a strong stand before the State Board of Equalization last year against the increasing of the Board of Review's figures in Cook County.

WOMAN FOUND TIED TO CHAIR.

Housekeeper Says She Was Bound and Gagged by Man—Box Containing $2,000 Missing and Recovered.

Coldwater, Mich., May 16.—Mrs. Anna Williams, housekeeper for Benjamin Stockdale, was found today by a neighbor tied to a chair. She said a man had entered the house, seized, bound, and gagged her, and then ransacked the house. Before leaving he removed the gag. The woman was alone. A tin box, containing $2,000, was missing. Late in the day Stockdale found the money intact under hay in the barn. He refuses to have the woman arrested, and she sticks to her story.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Trimble of Princeton, his only opponent, by a vote of 428 to 254. The next encampment will be held in Rock Island, the choice being made by acclamation. The Rock Island delegation, which has been working hard in behalf of their city, has promised all kinds of entertainments for the old soldiers next year.

Before the roll call for the election of Department Commander began, Major Fred M. Boyer withdrew his name. This assured the election of Captain Thistlewood. The Chicago delegates voted almost as a unit for the winner.

These officers, with others, were installed before adjournment. The veterans this morning voted down a proposition to do away with parades. LADIES OF G. A. R. MAKE DEMAND.

Department of Indiana Wants Explanation of Russell B. Harrison's Dismissal from Army.

Logansport, Ind., May 16.—[Special.]—The twenty-second annual encampment of the Indiana G. A. R. closed a three-day's session here today.

The ladies of the G. A. R. this afternoon unanimously passed a resolution demanding that the War department make explanation as to the causes for the dismissal of Russell B. Harrison from the army. An effort on the part of Harrison's friends to get a similar resolution through the G. A. R. encampment failed before it reached the floor of the convention.

WANT TO MAKE TESTS.

Point Made That Obsolete Materials Are Practically Wasted Even if Used.

NEWS OF NATIONAL CAPITAL

WASHINGTON BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE,
Washington, D. C., May 16.

Army Wants Smokeless Powder for Practice.

Officers of the artillery corps of the army are much disappointed over the failure of the War department to make provision for the use of smokeless powder in the artillery target practice of the present year. For several years the artillery has tried to get smokeless powder for this practice, and it was supposed the order recently issued prescribing regulations for artillery practice would make an allotment of smokeless powder for the year. The order detailed elaborate plans for the regulation of the artillery and making full allowance of smokeless ammunition, but a small note in the body of the order prevents it from becoming effective until next year so far as it relates to the use of ammunition. This means that the same allowance as last year will be made, and that the artillery will not have an opportunity to try the merits of the new nitroglycerin powder recently purchased by the ordnance bureau.

Artillery officers say that target practice with obsolete powder cannot be productive of the best results, as the use of smokeless powder would present entirely different conditions from those to be found in the use of powder which would not be used in case of war. They also declare that only by testing the new powder in target practice can its true value be determined. The ordnance department has objected to the use of the powder for target practice on the ground that the supply on hand is not sufficient to warrant its use in that way, claiming that it be reserved for cases of emergency.

The latest reports from the arsenals show that over 1,000,000 pounds are now on hand, and that deliveries are being made rapidly by the powder firms having the contracts. Little is actually known about this powder except what has been revealed at the trials at Sandy Hook and other proving grounds, where several guns have been blown up with it and others have had the muzzles shot off. An officer of the ordnance bureau is authority for the statement that the War department has not yet succeeded in finding a satisfactory powder, the inability to control the free nitric acid being the cause of the trouble.

The Navy department long ago abandoned the idea of a nitroglycerin powder and has adopted the nitrocellulose powder, of which large quantities, amounting in value to several million dollars, have been purchased.

Secretary Gage said tonight there was no perceptible change in the condition of Mrs. Gage. She rested well last night, and during the day was quite comfortable. Mrs. Gage is still critically ill and is not out of danger, but the Secretary and his friends are somewhat encouraged because of the rest she has secured during the last two days.

Chicago Man Tells of Iron Trade Abroad.

Hermon B. Butler, representing J. T. Ryerson & Co., iron merchants of Chicago, appeared before the Industrial commission today. Mr. Butler said that merchants of Chicago and other manufacturing centers sold goods much cheaper in foreign markets than in the home markets. In his opinion there was no necessity for a protective tariff on iron and steel, as the point had been reached where American manufacturers could undersell their foreign competitors. Speaking of the industrial conditions relating to the iron trade, Mr. Butler said there is now a greater demand for these commodities than ever before, but he did not consider the situation abnormal. He thought, however, that much of an increased demand is apt to be speculative, especially when good times are approaching.

He had no anxiety concerning trusts, as he believed, if they put up the prices so as to insure abnormal profits, competition would arise and thus result in benefiting the public.

In reply to a question as to whether the Standard Oil company benefited smaller concerns, Mr. Butler said the oil used in his house cost less than the water he drank. Rival companies to the Standard Oil were doing well. When asked to name some of the independent oil concerns which are prosperous, the witness hesitated, and finally said he could not recall them to mind.

Governor Allen Starts Back for Porto Rico.

Governor Allen of Porto Rico spent the day in making farewell calls on officials of the administration preparatory to his departure for the West Indies. He leaves tomorrow for Norfolk, where he will board the Mayflower for Porto Rico. Governor Allen said the latest advices from the island showed that everything is satisfactory and that an era of prosperity is at hand. Upon Governor Allen's arrival in Porto Rico, Judge Hunt, the acting Governor, will take a month's vacation, which he will spend in this country. During his visit here Governor Allen secured a new equipment for the insular guard and plans for the organization of a native Porto Rican regiment.

Controller Dawes today granted authority to the Farmers' National Bank of Odebolt, Ia., to begin business with a capital of $25,000.

War Department Wants to Modify Militia System.

The War department is anxious to hear from National Guard officers and authorities in regard to the proposition to reorganize the State troops on a basis which will admit of their employment with the regulars. Secretary Root intends by December to have a bill enacted, providing in the meantime it is possible to adjust the numerous differences which exist in the minds of National Guard officers. Few of them agree on the means by which this may be effected. Some of them are afraid of losing some of the advantages and privileges they now enjoy, and others believe the prospect of actual service for the National Guardsmen will prove a discouragement to those who would otherwise enter the service. It is evidently a difficult problem which the War department has undertaken to solve. The military authorities, however, realize that something must be done to place the State troops on a basis which will admit of their utilization [illegible] without the difficulties and embarrassments which surrounded the transfer to the service of the general government of the State regiments prior to the war with Spain.

Indigo from Philippines Is Unpopular.

Adulteration of indigo by the natives of the Philippines has almost ruined the export market for this product of the archipelago, and has cut the price in half. According to reports received at the War department, years ago indigo was one of the important products of the islands. In quality the Philippine article compared favorably with the best grade of the Guatemalan product. It used to bring from 61 to 65 cents per pound, but in 1875 the price fell to 28 cents. At present it fluctuates beween 30 and 35 cents. The decline in price was brought about by the deterioration in the quality that resulted in a greatly lessened demand. The cause of this deterioration is explained by the fact that years ago the native growers knew and practiced only the most primitive methods of preparing indigo, but with the arrival of large numbers of Chinese in the Philippines, the original process was abandoned and the natives began to imitate the Chinese practice of adulteration. It was found that by the admixture of a small quantity of lime with the indigo the coloring matter could be precipitated and the product prepared for the market in a much shorter period. While the more rapid process provided a source of temporary profit, the effect upon the quality of the indigo was soon discovered by the purchaser, and the Philippine product, owing to its extensive use of lime, fell into discredit in foreign markets.

Berlin to Make Special Test of Electric Roads.

There is in Europe an association for the study of electric rapid transit railroads which has issued its report for 1900. Among other things, it is stated that the elevated track of the military road between Berlin and Zossen, upon which experiments will soon be made, has been carefully inspected and strengthened. It is hoped to attain a speed of 125 miles an hour. Two cars will be employed, which are supplied with the strong machines required and will hold from forty to fifty passengers. The construction of the cars and their equipment differ in order to make manifold experiments. Each car will have four motors, aggregating from 1,100 to 3,000 horse-power, two three-axle movable trucks, and the necessary transmuters, switching apparatus, etc. The cars will be seventy-one and one-half feet long and will weigh ninety tons. The effect of this speed on the elevated track will also be noted. The experiments will doubtless prove of the highest importance for the improvement of rapid transit, although it may be found that the speed contemplated will not be feasible.

South Africa Good Market for Cement.

According to official reports south Africa is a good market for cement. All public buildings, stores, and dwellings are coated with cement. There are few wooden buildings erected. The masons in south Africa are mostly Malays. They are skilled in their trade and do the work neatly. Cement is also largely used in the construction of aqueducts, wharves, chimneys, walls, etc. While the principal import of cement is from Great Britain, considerable quantities are also imported from Belgium and Germany, the latter, on account of its cheapness, increasing. Belgium cement is of good quality and as cheap as the English article. The reports state that American cement could compete well, as transportation from our country is not higher than from Europe. Cement cannot be manufactured in south Africa for lack of raw material.

Postoffices in Illinois Readjusted.

Lord Pauncefote Has Conference at State Department.

Lord Pauncefote, the British Ambassador, called at the State department today and had a conference with Assistant Secretary Hill. Lord Pauncefote sails for England on June 5 and is winding up the business of the embassy with the State department. It is probable that Lord Pauncefote will carry with him some instructions as to the attitude of the State department with reference to the Hay-Pauncefote treaty and the modifications which will probably be acceptable to the United States Senate.

CAILLES SAID TO BE WOUNDED.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

MANILA, May 16.—It is believed that General Cailles, who has been declared an outlaw, has been wounded. He has been negotiating with General Sumner for three days looking to surrender. The federal press and ex-General Malvar are urging him to give himself up.

Preparations are being made to send the Tenth Infantry to reinforce General Kobbe, who, in coöperation with the navy, will immediately occupy the Island of Paragua, which is peaceful and commercially important.

General MacArthur is hastening the completion of the entire scheme for the garrisoning of the various towns. He is now awaiting the arrival of the Ninth Regiment, a portion of which has been assigned to occupy the ungarrisoned ports of Mindoro, where the adventurer, Arthur Howard, who is supposed to be a deserter from the California Artillery, is reported to be acting as Governor. He is said to control 200 outlaws and a hundred insurgent riflemen. The island is unimportant from a military point of view, but it valuable commercially.

General MacArthur declines to define the status of Aguinaldo. He says that though he is in a sense a prisoner, he is enjoying liberty in his residence and the grounds attached thereto. He is, however, under guard. He voluntarily remains indoors. He has not descended to the ground floor of his residence since he occupied the place. His mail grows daily. He receives large number of letters and pamphlets from anti-imperialists and other cranks, both men and women. He has received offers of a large salary from museum managers in the United States, who proposed giving bonds for his safe return to Manila. All his communications are censored.

The Philippine commissioners are considering civil and criminal codes for the civil government of Manila. They have established provincial governments in Surigao, Cagayan, and Mindanao. A meeting of the commission will be held on Monday to consider an amendment to the provincial bill to obtain additional revenue by transferring the stamp tax and the timber and inland revenues from the central government to the municipalities. It is proposed to impose an annual cedula tax of $1 on all males under 55 years of age. The question of amending the municipal code will also be considered.

MYSTERY HIDES A CRIME.

POLICE SEEK IDENTITY OF WOMAN ON FIRE ESCAPE.

Shooting of Young Ayres at a Washington, D. C., Hotel Still Puzzles the Detectives—Several Witnesses Found Who Saw a Female Figure Emerge from the Window and Descend the Iron Ladder to the Parlor Floor, Where She Disappeared from View.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—No solution has yet been reached of the mysterious murder of Ayers, the young census clerk, at the Hotel Kenmore, on Tuesday night. The identity of the woman who was seen descending the fire escape a few minutes after the fatal shots were fired is yet unknown, but other witnesses have been found who saw her descend, and it is hoped from their testimony to secure more accurate descriptions.

William Wolfe, a 14-year-old boy, who was passing the hotel at the time, saw the woman come down the fire escape, and a Mrs. Taylor of Chicago, who is visiting a family living opposite the hotel and was attracted to the window by the firing of the revolver, also saw the woman descend the fire escape from the fourth to the second story.

Sees a Man Running.

Fireman Ryan, who was on duty at the headquarters of Truck A, nearly opposite the hotel, heard the shots fired and saw a man run up the street immediately afterward.

J. S. Ayres Sr., the father of the murdered man, reached here this morning from Grand Rapids, Mich., and will take the body back to his home for burial as soon as the Coroner's inquest is over.

Searching for Evidence.

The detectives have taken charge of the garments of all the women in the house.

One girl who had been mentioned in connection with the case sent her clothes to the laundry yesterday and today the detectives will make an examination of this clothing. A pair of stockings and other garments, freshly washed, were discovered in this woman's room yesterday by the police and were seized. They have not yet been examined.

Miss Woolums, who occupies a room directly underneath the one occupied by Ayres and who was absent from the hotel almost all day yesterday, was examined by the detectives. She said that she was awakened early yesterday morning by a sound as of some one moving furniture in Ayres' room. Later she noticed a shadow on the wall of her room as if made by some one passing her window.

Many Stories Afloat.

There is much gossip to be heard which cannot be authenticated.

One woman, said to be married, had recently written anonymous letters to a number of young women living at the Kenmore. To James A. Nelson, a fellow dental student, Ayres had frequently boasted, it is said, of his friendship with women.

Ayers had intended to move from the Kenmore, as he said, to escape the temptations that beset him there. Some time ago he had arranged to move to a house in K street, but because of a woman at the Kenmore, who seemed to fascinate him, he changed his plans.

SHIPS SINK WITH ALL ON BOARD.

Steamer Federal with 32 Lives Lost Off Australian Coast—The Louise Lamont and 16 Persons Go Down.

Victoria, B. C., May 16.—News has been received by the steamer Moana of the loss of the steamer Federal off the Australian coast during the heavy gale at the end of March.

Thirty-two persons perished in the wreck. Six bodies were recovered, but no wreckage was found and it was believed that the vessel foundered near the coast. Only a few bodies were identified, including those of Captain Coult and Engineer Hills. Fifteen of the lost sailors were married.

The ship Louise Lamont was lost during the same storm, with sixteen lives. Nothing has been heard of any of them.

OMAHA GIRLS HIRE AS "SUPES."

Forty Young Women Want to See Mansfield and Not Feeling Able to Pay Admission Try Other Means.

Omaha, Neb., May 16.—[Special.]—A party of forty society girls combining economy with a lark have hired out as "supes" for Mansfield's performance of "Henry IV."

Under the leadership of a local newspaper woman they applied in a body for employment and were taken on for the great London bridge scene in the fourth act.

The girls after two hours' drill were able to give voice to their greeting in a fairly creditable way.

The girls engaging in the venture belong to a well known set which has given a number of charitable entertainments and is possessed of more or less dramatic ability.

FUNSTON TELLS OF CAPTURE.

Official Report of How the Kansan Found Aguinaldo's Headquarters and Effected His Arrest.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—General Funston's official report of the capture of Aguinaldo has been received by the War department. The story of the capture was told when it occurred, but General Funston's version of it is as follows:

"On Jan. 14 a special messenger from Aguinaldo's headquarters at Palanan, bearing letters to different Generals of his command and to insurgent chiefs asking for reinforcements to be sent him, gave himself up to Lieutenant Taylor of the Twenty-fourth Infantry, who immediately sent him to me at San Isidro. He also had valuable correspondence, which gave us information as to the whereabouts and the strength of Aguinaldo's band at that time. We found among them one in which Baldomero Aguinaldo was ordered to take command of the provinces of central Luzon and requesting him to send as soon as possible 400 armed men to Aguinaldo's camp.

"Then and there I conceived the idea of arming and equipping a number of native troops to pass off as these expected reinforcements and to make an endeavor to trap Aguinaldo in his lair. The expedition was made up of four Tagalos, who were formerly commissioned officers in Aguinaldo's army, and we selected seventy-eight men of the Macabebe scouts, all of whom could talk Tagalo fluently. I obtained a number of captured insurgent uniforms, and ten Macabebes were equipped with rifles.

"We embarked on the gunboat Vicksburg and landed on March 14 at 2 o'clock in the morning. The expedition was nominally placed in command of Hilarior Placido, ex-insurgent Colonel. After marching twenty miles we reached the town of Casiguran. We had sent word to the Presidente of the town through native messengers that reinforcements for Aguinaldo were on the way through his town, so that when we arrived there food and quarters had been provided for us. This notification had been signed by the supposed commander of the expedition. The Presidente was completely deceived. My troop had captured, some months ago, some official paper of General Lacuna, bearing his official stamp and seal. In order to make the deception all the more complete, we succeeded in forging the signature of Lacuna to letters to Aguinaldo. These letters were sent ahead and we followed.

"The trip to Aguinaldo's camp was a most severe one upon the men. Our food supply was entirely exhausted, and my men were so weak that when we reached within eight miles of Aguinaldo's camp we could go no farther. We therefore sent a messenger ahead to Aguinaldo's camp, informing him of our plight and requesting that he send us food before we could go farther. This was supplied us, and the disguise and ruse adopted by us had been complete. As we had told Aguinaldo that we had American prisoners, he sent word that they be given their liberty.

"As the Macabebes approached the town the troops of Aguinaldo's bodyguard, consisting of fifty men, were drawn up in parade to receive the supposed reinforcements. The men who posed as officers of our expedition marched into the camp and paid their respects to Aguinaldo, who received them in a large house built on the bank of the Palanan River. After the exchange of courtesies the officers excused themselves from Aguinaldo and his staff for a moment, stepped outside, and ordered their Macabebe troops drawn up into line and commanded them to commence firing into Aguinaldo's troops.

"The rout of the insurgents was complete. The ex-insurgent officers, the five Americans, and several Macabebe scouts immediately made a rush for the house which was used as Aguinaldo's headquarters and took him prisoner. Aguinaldo, when taken prisoner, at first raved and swore at the deception practiced upon him, but later accepted the situation with dignity."

St. Louis, Mo., May 16.—Mayor Wells today filed his answers to the contests instituted by George W. Parker, the defeated Republican candidate for Mayor, and by Lee Merriwether, the candidate of the Municipal Ownership party. He further submits a list of alleged illegal voters for Parker.

BLOW TO UNION LABOR.

JUDGE BAKER VIRTUALLY UPHOLDS THE "BLACKLIST."

Decides Employers May Agree to Refuse to Employ Certain Persons—Decision in Case Arising from Strike by Girls in Libby, McNeill & Libby's—Plaintiff Contended That Other Packing Firms Refused to Give Her Work Because of That Difficulty.

In a noteworthy decision yesterday morning Judge Baker held the Stock-Yards packing firms had a right, according to law, to agree to refuse to employ certain persons. The decision is important in labor litigation. This is the first time in a Western court the so-called "blacklist," by which a man who leaves one firm and is kept out of employment in his trade by any other firms, has been given the legal sanction of the courts.

The case was one of a series brought by girls employed as labelers and can painters by Libby, McNeill & Libby until the strike of February, 1900. At that time they quit work on account of cuts in their wages. In June they attempted to secure work in other packing factories, but were unable to do so. The plaintiff in the suit was Miss Annie Condon. The defendants were Libby, McNeill & Libby, Armour & Co., Nelson Morris & Co., and the Fairbank Canning company. Miss Condon testified she had applied for work to the Fairbank Canning company and Armour & Co., and at the latter place was informed she could not be employed on account of her connection with the labor troubles at Libby, McNeill & Libby's factory.

The defendants contended that the combination, even if it did exist, was lawful. They did not deny the girls had sustained damages, or that on account of the alleged "blacklist" they were unable to obtain work at their trade in Chicago. The girls showed that where they had been earning $15 weekly at a trade which it had taken them years to learn, since the combination to keep them out of work by the only firms which needed that kind of skilled labor, they had not been able to earn more than $4 weekly.

Attorney William J. Strong, who represented the girls, contended that though one firm might have the right to refuse to employ certain persons, a combination of all the firms engaged in that business to keep certain persons out of work was criminal. Judge Baker held that several corporations acting together had the same rights as a single corporation in protecting its interests. He summarized his decision, saying:

"One has the right to decline to enter the service of another, and several persons acting jointly, in pursuance of an agreement to that effect, have the right so to decline. So one has the right to decline to employ another, and several persons acting jointly in the pursuance of an agreement to that effect have the right so to decline."

Attorney Strong announced he would carry the case to a higher court, and requested the final order should not be entered until on Monday. This was agreed to by the defendants.

TALKS, CANNOT UNDERSTAND.

Colored Woman Made Deaf by Paralysis and Unable to Read or Write.

Melinda Dorsey, colored, although able to talk, finds it impossible to communicate with any of her friends. She is over 70 years old and was born in slavery on a plantation in Southern Tennessee. Recently she has lived with her husband, Alfred Dorsey, at 1407 Michigan avenue.

Mrs. Dorsey never learned to read or write, but this did not cause her inconvenience until several weeks ago, when an attack of paralysis left her deaf. Since then her husband and friends have been unable to communicate with her. She is unable to hear what they say, and her inability to read or write makes it impossible for any one to make her understand.

Yesterday morning the unfortunate woman was arraigned before Judge Pond, in the Court for the Insane at the Detention Hospital, on petition of her husband, who said he was unable to care for her in her present condition. Since she became deaf and unable to communicate with her friends she has brooded over her misfortune, and at times has developed violent symptoms.

"I would not let her leave me," sobbed the husband, "except I am afraid she will do somebody harm. Tenants in the house fear she may burn the building during one of her spells. We have been married more than twenty years and I hate to see her go, but I don't know what else I can do."

By agreement the patient was sent to the County Poorhouse at Dunning.

Evanston Wants Local Consolidation.

The first definite steps toward the consolidation of Evanston City and Township were taken last night when a meeting of the committee of twenty-five having the matter in charge was held in the Evanston Council chamber. EFFORTS TO ADJUST TROUBLES OF THE MACHINISTS.

Leaders of Contending Forces Express Willingness to Confer, and It Is Possible They Will Be Brought Together Today—Members of Union Insist Differences Shall Be Submitted to Arbitration—Metal Trades Have Many Orders They Desire to Fill.

Quiet efforts are being made to bring together the officers of the National Metal Trades association and the International Association of Machinists and effect an amicable adjustment of their pending differences. The movement was started yesterday and its final purpose is to prevent the general strike of machinists called for next Monday. Each side professes willingness to meet the other, but there is said to be a difference as to the method of procedure. It is reported several meetings were held yesterday between some of the machinists' officers and individual members of the metal trades, and a general conference is looked for today.

Among the machinists there is a strong sentiment in favor of arbitrating the wage question. The men placed themselves on record at the mass-meeting on Saturday night by adopting a resolution demanding arbitration. So persistent have they been in urging this principle on their officers that despite the instructions of President O'Connell to strike on Monday morning unless manufacturers post a notice granting a nine-hour work day and an advance of 12½ per cent in wages, the officers are doing all they can to bring about a peaceable settlement.

Members of the National Metal Trades association have their books filled with orders, and anything like a general tieup would result in severe losses to them. They favor an amicable adjustment of the trouble if that is possible. They are committed, however, by the action of Wednesday's meeting of the Chicago Association of Machine Manufacturers not to post any notice of an advance of 12½ per cent in wages.

President Gates of the Association of Machine Manufacturers said yesterday the Metal Trades' association, of which he is a member, was willing to meet the machinists, and as Business Agent Rodrick said the men were willing to meet the employers it is expected a meeting will be held.

In the meantime officers of the union are securing agreements with manufacturers outside the Metal Trades association, and it is said between thirty and forty have signed. The union also is active in organizing the trade, several hundred machinists, it is alleged, having been admitted to the union within the last few days. At present the membership in Chicago is over 4,000.

READY TO QUIT AT MILWAUKEE.

Machinists Refuse to Arbitrate and Serve Final Notice on Their Employers.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 16.—[Special.]—The local manufacturing machinists met tonight to bring about a solution of the impending strikes, but nothing definite was accomplished. Early today the men served final notice they would not work after Saturday unless their demands are granted.

The men take the ground there is nothing to arbitrate, while the manufacturers are anxious to submit the case to arbitration. The action of the Fraser-Chalmers shop committee in deciding to submit their case to arbitration is having an effect among the men here. Many of the union men in the shops are in favor of arbitration, but the leaders say that the ultimatum of President O'Connell must be followed.

Irving H. Reynolds of the Allis plant, Vice President of the Metal Trades association, said that the demands of the men as they stood would not be considered. His firm was willing to meet the shop committee at any time to arbitrate the differences, as is being done in Chicago, but the demands would not be considered offhand.

Machinists Win in Kenosha.

Kenosha, Wis., May 16.—[Special.]—George Mulberry, a representative of the International Association of Machinists, came to Kenosha this afternoon for the purpose of enlisting the 200 machinists employed in the factories in the great strike to be declared on May 20. His mission proved successful, as the men have nearly all agreed to go out if the agreement presented by the machinists is not signed by the managers of the factory. Two of the leading factories had a meeting this morning and the managers agreed to sign the new agreement. The six other plants employing machinists will probably accede to the demands of the association.

PORTLAND MINE SHUTS DOWN.

Trouble Between Company and Unions Causes Indefinite Suspension of Operations in Cripple Creek Property.

Colorado Springs, Colo., May 16.—The Portland mine, employing 700 men, was closed down indefinitely at 3 o'clock this afternoon owing to the trouble between the company and the six miners' unions of the camp over the employment of non-union miners. A conference between representatives of the company and the unions was held in this city today, but no agreement was reached. A few days ago the union officials demanded that the mine be unionized. This was refused at the meeting here today. It is not believed the trouble will spread to other mines in the Cripple Creek district.

LABOR NOTES.

The strike in the lumber yards at Rhinelander, Wis., has been settled, the men receiving the increase of 15 cents a day asked for.

The 6,000 cigarmakers who went on strike at Tampa, Fla., on Wednesday because a bridge over which many of them passed on their way to work was not kept in good repair returned to work this morning. The city authorities threw a pontoon bridge across the river.

The wage committee of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, headed by President T. J. Shaffer and Secretary-Treasurer John Williams, reached Milwaukee yesterday and will hold conferences daily at the St. Charles Hotel, beginning today and continuing until their report is ready for the general convention which meets on Tuesday next.

ALLEGED BRIBERS ON TRIAL.

Jeremiah Cremin and James Connors Charged with Trying to Unlawfully Influence a Juror.

Jeremiah Cremin and James Connors, charged with attempted bribery of a juror in a case recently before Judge Baker, were put on trial in Judge Tuley's court yesterday. The accusing witness is Charles Willard. He was accepted as a juror one evening and the next morning reported to the court he had been offered $50 if he would be a "good fellow" and see the defendant was not convicted. The defendants in the present case were arrested on the strength of Willard's statement.

Colonel Hall Leaves for Manila.

Colonel William P. Hall, for more than a year Adjutant General of the Department of the Lakes, left Chicago yesterday for Manila, where he will become Adjutant General of the Department of the Philippines. He was accompanied by his family. Major C. H. Murray has been appointed acting Adjutant General of the Department of the Lakes.

Ashland, Wis., May 16.—The Cleveland Cliffs Mining company has just purchased the Ashland mine from the Maynes Bros., the consideration being $2,500,000.

REPAIR PAVING OR TIE UP CARS.

Order Issued by Superintendent Doherty to Traction Companies.

MAY BLOCKADE TRACKS.

Mrs. Paul Transferred to Austin and Nine Other Ward Directors Moved.

TWO ORDINANCES APPROVED

An order to the traction companies of the city to repair pavements on their rights of way has been issued by the Street department. To enforce compliance Superintendent Doherty will seek authority to barricade the tracks of the companies until the pavement has been put in good condition. An opinion of the Corporation Counsel has been given in a similar case holding that the city possessed the right, with certain restrictions.

Superintendent Doherty ordered all ward superintendents to report to him the streets in which the different traction companies have rights of way in need of repair. The lists were sent in yesterday and sections of nearly 200 streets were condemned. The order to the traction companies will be sent by Superintendent Doherty and measures will be taken for enforcement.

Nearly every traction company in the city will be concerned in the order. The Chicago City railway company and the Union Traction company will receive most of the notices.

"These repairs will cost a great deal of money," said Superintendent Doherty, "but the traction companies are responsible under their ordinances. If they do not obey the orders I shall get an opinion from the Law department upon our right to barricade the tracks and tie up their cars. I believe it can be done."

Some of the important lines which are concerned in the order and which would be tied up by barricading the tracks are:

Cottage Grove cable.
Indiana trolley.
State street cable.
Wells street cable.
Blue Island avenue cable.
Madison street cable.
Milwaukee avenue cable.
Sedgwick street trolley.
North Clark street cable.
Halsted street trolley.
Van Buren street trolley.
Chicago avenue trolley.

Mrs. Paul Sent to Austin.

Mrs. A. Emmagene Paul has been transferred again by the Street department. This time she goes from the Sixth Ward to the Thirty-fifth Ward. Her first transfer was out of the First Ward. With Mrs. Paul go nine other ward superintendents, moved "for the good of the service," as follows:

J. J. Corbett from Thirty-fourth to Thirteenth Ward.
G. J. Lake from Thirteenth to Thirty-fourth Ward.
F. S. Mitchell from Fourteenth to Twenty-sixth Ward.
J. T. Lyons from Twenty-third to Twenty-fourth Ward.
Frank Monahan from Twenty-fourth to Twenty-third Ward.
George Schoenberg from Twenty-sixth to Fourteenth Ward.
A. J. Creighton from Twenty-eighth to Sixth Ward.
W. J. Cahill from Thirty-fourth to Seventeenth Ward.

Ordinances Recommended to Pass.

The Council Committee on Gas, Oil, and Electric Light recommended for passage an ordinance prohibiting discrimination in rates by electric light companies. According to Alderman Race the ordinance will have special application in Austin to the Suburban Water and Power company.

The Track Elevation committee recommended for passage the Illinois Central ordinance. It will be submitted to the City Council on Monday night. The estimate of the cost of the work mapped out is nearly $4,000,000. The railroads involved are the Illinois Central, the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern, the Pittsburg, Ft. Wayne and Chicago, the Baltimore and Ohio, and the New York, Chicago and St. Louis.

Suit Against Lake Street "L."

Suit was filed by the city against the Lake Street Elevated railroad company for $30,000 damages, representing an amount which the city claims is due on car licenses.

WITNESS ACCUSED OF PERJURY.

George P. Wassweiler, Who Testified to an Alibi for Alleged Murderer, Is Arrested.

George P. Wassweiler, an alibi witness for Thomas Perkins, on trial for murder, was arrested yesterday on a charge of perjury. Perkins, with Otto Christopher, Harry Spread, and James Moran, is accused of killing Nicola Ballatino, a saloonkeeper, on Aug. 29 last. The case is being heard by Judge Tuthill. Wassweiler testified that on the night of the murder he was with Perkins and sat on Perkins' porch until late, when they retired, and that Perkins remained in bed all night. The State says it has evidence that Wassweiler was working in South Milwaukee from July 25 to Oct. 18 last, and lost only four hours' time in that period.

Harriet Davis, Accused of Larceny, Convinces Justice Bradwell of Her Innocence.

Dr. Harriet Davis, arrested two weeks ago on complaint of Dr. L. Zeigler on a charge of larceny, was dismissed on hearing by Justice Bradwell yesterday. Dr. Davis, who is head of the women's department at the Garfield Park Sanitarium, was charged by Dr. Zeigler with taking $60 from an overcoat which he had left hanging in the sanitarium while he performed an operation. The woman called a number of physicians to testify to her good character and proved to the satisfaction of the court that she was innocent.

STOCK SALES ARE LIGHT.

VOLUME OF BUSINESS FOR DAY TAKES LONG DROP.

Market, However, Holds Firm and Calm, While Closing Quotations Give Evidence of Substantial Improvement—Operators Regaining Confidence After Shock of a Week Ago—Weekly Bank Statement Is Expected to Make Good Showing.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, May 16.—[Special.]—The dealings in the Stock Exchange market today showed a contraction of about 25 per cent in the volume of business in stocks, while trading in bonds was only half as large as on yesterday. The movement of share prices was irregular at intervals, owing to profit-taking, but in the main the market was characterized by a firm tone, and closing prices recorded more or less substantial net improvements. In point of fact, today's developments reflected for the first time since the distressing episodes of this day week returning confidence on the part of the financial community at large. The events referred to are so fresh in the public mind that it is not surprising operations on the bull side of the account, except by actual purchasers for cash, are conducted with some caution.

All indications point to a favorable showing by the banks in the statement of averages next Saturday, notwithstanding the exports of gold, approximating $2,250,000. Undoubtedly there will be reflected the heavy liquidation in the stock market and the large receipts of cash from the interior and particularly the West.

The Subtreasury collections on its own account are decreasing, while the payments for pensions today reached the highest rate of the month and will continue large for at least another week. These payments were mainly responsible for a debit of the Subtreasury at the clearing-house this morning of over $1,200,000.

The point is made that the greater part of the money required in connection with the call upon the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy underwriting syndicate will be forthcoming from Boston, at which center money is relatively easier than here.

The early speculation was influenced by encouraging advices from London regarding the situation at that center and by a strong market for American railway securities. After the early trading the general market made further upward progress, which was followed by irregularity due to sales for both accounts. London was a larger buyer of securities in this market than at any time since last week's setback, its purchases being estimated at from 40,000 to 50,000 shares of various stocks.

Union Pacific led the entire market in respect to activity and it displayed considerable irregularity.

After an initial advance of 2½ points, a recession of 5 points occurred, and the stock left off at a net decline of 1½ per cent at a rally of 1½ points from the lowest of the day. In the regularly active railway list the greatest strength was displayed by St. Paul common, which retained at the close 3½ points of an extreme advance of nearly 8 points. The dealings in the stock were not much more than one-half as large as those in Union Pacific.

Northern Pacific common closed a point higher, at 140, at a reaction of nearly 5 per cent from the highest price on transactions of only 500 shares. The extreme advances today from the lowest points in yesterday's forenoon decline, ranged from 2 to 7 points, and were the more pronounced, in the usually active railway list, in Atchison common, Erie common, Metropolitan, Manhattan Railway, Louisville and Nashville, Reading second preferred, Wabash preferred, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, and Southern Pacific.

In the less active shares net improvements were recorded, including those of 6⅝ in Great Northern preferred, 5¼ in Lake Erie and Western common, 7⅛ in Minneapolis and St. Louis common, on reports that the dividend would be increased to a 5 per cent basis next month, Iowa Central preferred 3, New York, Chicago and St. Louis and Peoria and Eastern 4, Third Avenue 3½, and Pullman Palace Car 4⅜.

In the industrial list the more noteworthy net gains were recorded in Amalgamated Copper, which retained about 4¼ out of an extreme gain of 7½ points, on the dismissal of the injunction restraining the acquisition of the Guggenheim properties. Other noteworthy advances included 8½ points in International Power on the announcement that the Atchison had ordered from the company 125 locomotives to be delivered within this calendar year; Consolidated Gas, 3½; International Pump, 3½; Anaconda Mining, 3⅛; American Car and Foundry preferred, 2⅛; 2⅜ in General Electric, and 3¼ per cent on light dealings in Glucose Sugar refining. American and Continental Tobacco common closed 2 and 1 per cent net higher respectively. The United States Steel issues were fairly active.

The railway bond market was irregular, with the greatest activity in Union Pacific convertible 4s at a decline of ¼ per cent from the highest of the day, and Wabash debenture Bs, which displayed strength.

In connection with the movement in Colorado Fuel today it was said that several large interests were endeavoring to market a line of their stock during the day, but were forced to abandon their effort because they found no ready market for their stock. In one case, where an order was given to sell 500 shares of the stock "at the market," it resulted in a drop of two points from the preceding quotation. Western speculators who loaded up heavily with the stock on the manipulative boom that they themselves made are left with large lines of stock that their brokers must sell.

Interests connected with the property here pronounced as ridiculous the report from Chicago today that the earnings of the People's Gas company threaten to show material falling off for the current quarter. To the contrary, it is declared that business was never so good as at present. The buying of the stock today was credited to insiders.

Inquiry among the banks and larger commission houses today disclosed the fact that practically all liquidation for banks and for "carried over" accounts had ceased. This fact, brokers declare, explains why at the high level of prices today there was little pressure to sell as compared with other days since the panic when prices have advanced.

James R. Keene got the credit for the advances in a number of the important stocks today and he was quoted as predicting to his friends that the market was shaping itself for another big upward movement. It was said also that the so-called Western contingent, which in the earlier part of the week was bearish on the market, shifted its position shortly after the opening today and bought the grangers, the steel stocks, and American and Continental Tobacco. Boston was credited with buying Amalgamated Copper this morning and selling it at the high figures of the afternoon on announcement of dissolution of the injunction restraining the consolidation with the Boston companies.

NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

General Tendency of Cash, Bonds, Railway Shares, and Other Securities in Wall Street.

NEW YORK, May 16.—There was a still further lapse of interest in the stock market today, as was shown by the decline in the volume of dealings to below a million shares for the first time since the late boom attained force. The market also gave evidence of further progress towards normal conditions. There was still a rather feverish price movement, but the oscillations showed a lessening tendency.

The ease in the money market was due entirely to the falling off in demand and speculative, as other causes are tending to a steady depletion of New York bank reserves. The bond market was broad and moderately active and prices changes were irregular. Total sales, par value, $2,845,000. United States bonds were all unchanged on the last call.

Money on call steady at 2@3 per cent; [illegible] Mexican dollars, 48½c. Government bonds steady. State bonds inactive. Railroad bonds irregular.

CHAIRMAN GREEN REPORTS LAST QUARTER THE BEST.

Great Increase in Sales—Employes Buying Preferred Stock on Installment Plan—Official Action on the Abstract Consolidation to Be Taken Today—Chicago Brokerage Houses Liquidate More Long Stock in New York, but Local List Holds Firm.

After the declaration of the regular quarterly dividends on the common and preferred stock of the National Biscuit company by the directors yesterday A. W. Green, chairman of the board, said that the business for the quarter had been satisfactory, the sales and the profits being larger than for any other spring quarter since the organization of the company; that one of the most gratifying features was the remarkably large increase in the sale of package goods, such increased sales of trade-marked goods thereby adding to the good will and stability of the company.

On Feb. 21 last the company presented to its employés a plan for interesting the employés of the company more largely in the preferred stock of the company, whereby the employés were enabled to purchase stock of the company on the installment plan. Mr. Green said the plan has been more successful than the officers of the company expected, over 1,000 of the employés of the company having availed themselves of the offer. Some of the employés have already paid for one share of stock on the installment plan and have commenced paying on a second share. Some of the employés also purchased through the company one or more shares outright.

The regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on the preferred stock is to be paid on May 31 to stockholders of record at the close of business on May 21. Transfer books will be closed from May 22 to May 31, both inclusive. The regular quarterly dividend of 1 per cent on the common stock is to be paid on July 5. Transfer books will be closed from July 6 to July 15, both inclusive.

Act on Abstract Combine.

The Board of Directors of the Chicago Title and Trust company will meet today to consider formally the proposition to merge the three abstract companies of the city into one corporation. Prominent interests in the company favor its acceptance. The leading interests in the two other companies, it is stated, have already accepted the offer. Meetings of the persons engaged in the consolidation were held yesterday and progress was made towards the settlement of the details. It is unofficially announced that the stocks of the Chicago Title and Trust and the Title Guarantee and Trust companies will be exchanged at par for the new stock and the Security Title and Trust at 120.

Chicago in the Market.

Chicago brokerage houses sold stocks to some extent in the New York market yesterday, and the belief was expressed generally that the liquidation from here is not over yet. Local houses had early information on the rise in St. Paul stock. The lines of stock carried in most of the offices are much smaller than before the fall in the market.

Chicago stocks held firm yesterday and some made gains. American Can securities were firmer, and, while trading was more limited, they sold for higher prices. Linseed common was a little higher. National Biscuit common made a gain on the declaration of dividends, and the preferred held firm at 98. The bond list was fairly active.

Financial Topics.

New York officials of the American Linseed company say it has been impossible for them to trace the buying of their stock. Indications continue that some one is buying for control, but positive evidence that this is true is lacking.

Union Pacific railroad officials deny that they are considering the issue of $60,000,000 additional convertible 4 per cent bonds, to be secured by deposit of Northern Pacific stock. There are now $60,000,000 of these convertible bonds authorized, but not issued.

The Bank of England's minimum rate of discount was unchanged yesterday, at 4 per cent, although the weekly returns showed a sharp reduction in reserve.

Call money rates became easier before the close of the New York market yesterday. Money closed at 2 per cent, with the last loan at 2½. The ruling rate was 4½ per cent.

The charter of the Northern Pacific railway company provides that the preferred stock may be retired at par in cash on any 1st day of January prior to 1917. There are no securities at present existing for such retirement except a small amount of the 3 per cent bonds, now in the treasury, which are not reserved for any specific purpose. There is a preferred dividend guarantee fund of $3,000,000 cash, which by Jan. 1 next can be applied to any purpose the directors see fit. No mortgage can be issued which would outrank the present general 3 per cent mortgage. There is good reason to think that prior to the contest for control it had been planned to retire the preferred by an issue of common stock and rights thereto to be given to both preferred and common stockholders. No legal obstacle exists to further issues of stock if they should be authorized by the required percentage of the present stockholders of both common and preferred.

At a special meeting of the trust certificate holders of the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad yesterday the plan for the consolidation and refunding of the company's bonded indebtedness was ratified. Considerably more than the required amount of each class of stock was represented, and no opposition to the plan was manifested.

The General Chemical company has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1 per cent on its common stock, payable on June 1.

IN THE BOSTON MONEY MARKET.

General Tendency of Cash, Bonds, Mining Shares, and Other Securities at the Hub.

BOSTON, Mass., May 16.—[Special.]—The favorable decision in the Amalgamated injunction case in New Jersey today was the signal for a liberal rally in the copper shares. Substantial gains were shown in many instances, and, although prices did not stay at top levels, the sentiment of the street was much more favorable than for several days. The coppers to show the greatest improvement were naturally the Standard Oil group, Amalgamated, Butte, and Boston and Montana being easily the leaders. Amalgamated in the local market scored an outside advance of 6, to 116, with later a partial reaction. Boston and Montana rose 29 points, to 439, reacting to 25 later. Butte and Boston made an outside gain of 8, to 112, reaction to 108. At top figures in most of the coppers liquidation of long stock was noticeable, many people who picked up securities at bargain figures during the recent slump taking advantage of the opportunity presented for unloading.

Trading in the arbitrage securities was fairly heavy at times, much attention being directed to the grangers, Steel common and preferred, and Sugar.

Call loans, 4@5 per cent; time loans, collateral, 4@5 per cent; time loans, mercantile paper, 4½@5 per cent; clearing-house loans, 4 per cent.

Manufacturers of Heavy Engines, Mining and Other Machinery.

Seven Per Cent Cumulative and Convertible Preferred Stock.

Offered by the Undersigned for Sale at 105 Per Cent payable, with accrued dividend, at the rate of seven per cent per annum from May 1, 1901.

50 per cent May 24, 1901,
50 per cent July 1, 1901,

with the privilege of anticipating the latter payment. Negotiable receipts will be issued against payments, exchangeable for engraved certificates of stock as soon as they can be prepared.

The Preferred Stock, in shares of $100 each, is preferred in liquidation to the amount of its par value and accumulated dividends.

It is preferred in cumulative dividends to the extent of seven per cent per annum, and has a further preference of one per cent, non-cumulative, after the payment of seven per cent upon the Common Stock.

It is convertible into Common Stock, share for share, at the option of the holder, upon any first day of May until and including May 1, 1921, exclusive of any declared dividends.

No additional Preferred Stock can be issued at less than par in cash, or for property at such cash value.

The certificate of Incorporation confers authority upon the Board of Directors, in their discretion, to declare and pay dividends on the Common Stock concurrently with the Preferred Stock, when earned and applicable thereto.

The fiscal year of the company commences May 1st. The Preferred Stock Dividends are payable quarterly, commencing August 1st, 1901. Application will be duly made to list the Preferred and Common Stocks on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Allis-Chalmers Company represents the consolidation of the property and business of the following builders of heavy machinery:

Fraser & Chalmers, Incorporated, of Chicago, Ill.
Gates Iron Works, of Chicago, Ill.

All property acquired is to be conveyed in fee and free from mortgage or other lien.

No mortgage can be placed upon the property without the assent of seventy-five per cent of the amount of Preferred Stock outstanding.

The expert engineer, Mr. Julian Kennedy, reports, after several personal examinations of the properties, that he estimates "the value of the plants, taking into account the real estate, buildings, machinery, tools, patterns, drawings, and patents, together with the cost of organizing and getting into full operation, but not estimating anything for good will, at $9,935,000."

He further reports, under date of April 5th, 1901, as follows:

"I find the plants all running at their fullest capacity. The great bulk of the tools in all of these are comparatively new, having been put in within the last seven or eight years, and all the works are in good condition and running smoothly."

The security of the Preferred Stock, without any consideration for the advantages accruing from the consolidation, for the valuable good will of the several Companies, so long and favorably known all over the world, or for the earning capacity of the united Companies, will be substantially as follows:

Cash Capital	$10,000,000 of which sum $2,500,000 will be expended in the erection of an additional plant to double the present capacity of the Allis Works.
Valuation as above of existing plants owned in fee and free of lien	9,935,000
Total present value of tangible property	$19,935,000

all of which is issued for cash at par, or, in lieu of cash, for the plants at less than their valuation as above stated, and of which total issue there will be more than 51 per cent in cash, and the balance will be in property that produces much more than the cumulative dividend to which the Preferred Stock is entitled.

Of the total Preferred Stock, $7,850,000 has been accepted by the original Companies in lieu of cash, in part payment for their properties to be conveyed to this Company. The remaining $8,400,000 is now offered for sale to provide for the discharge of existing mortgages and for part of the above-mentioned Cash Capital, the remainder thereof being provided by the sale of Common Stock already consummated.

The accounts of the several concerns have been examined by Messrs. Jones, Caesar & Co., chartered accountants, who certify "that the combined profits of these Companies, in each of the last two fiscal years, after making full provisions for depreciation and bad debts, but without charging interest and management salaries, exceeded the amount required to pay seven per cent. dividends upon $16,250,000 Preferred Stock, whilst for the last fiscal year the profits, as above defined, considerably exceeded such amount." It was not until the last year that the new works of Fraser & Chalmers came into full operation.

The net profits for the fiscal year ending May 1, 1902, are estimated by the chief officials of the respective companies, without any allowance for increase of manufacturing capacity, or for the economies of consolidation, or increase of prices, at sufficient to pay dividends at the rate of seven per cent. on the $16,250,000 Preferred Stock and about four per cent on $20,000,000 of Common Stock. Including the economies from consolidation confidently anticipated by these authorities, the net profits for the same period should exceed the amount required to pay seven per cent. dividends on both classes of stock.

The same officials similarly estimate that upon the completion of the additional Allis Works, now in process of construction, the profits will be equivalent to eight per cent. on $16,250,000 of Preferred Stock and ten per cent on $20,000,000 of Common Stock, with a material addition to the Surplus Account.

The Allis, Fraser & Chalmers and Gates Iron Works plants have been operated night and day during the past few years, and have, from lack of capacity, declined in that period as much business as they have been able to accept.

The business of these concerns, with more than fifty per cent. increase of capacity and ample cash capital, will be conducted by the Messrs. Allis and Reynolds, of E. P. Allis Company; W. J. Chalmers, of Fraser & Chalmers, and Gates & Hoyt, of Gates Iron Works, who have successfully managed their respective works for many years.

The Board of Directors has been constituted as follows:

EDWARD D. ADAMS, New York.	CHARLES ALLIS, Milwaukee.
MARK T. COX, Orange, N. J.	WILLIAM W. ALLIS, Milwaukee.
HENRY W. HOYT, Chicago.	JAMES H. ECKELS, Chicago.
JAMES STILLMAN, New York.	EDWIN REYNOLDS, Milwaukee.

CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, New York.

The regularity of the incorporation of the Allis-Chalmers Company and the validity of the issue of its securities are certified to by Messrs. Strong and Cadwalader of New York, and Messrs. Pam, Calhoun & Glennon of Chicago.

The accounts of the Company will be regularly audited by Chartered Accountants.

SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR THE ABOVE-DESCRIBED PREFERRED STOCK WILL BE RECEIVED AT THE OFFICES OF THE UNDERSIGNED UNTIL THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS ON TUESDAY, THE 21ST DAY OF MAY, SUBJECT TO THE RIGHT RESERVED TO REJECT ANY OR ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS, AND TO CLOSE THE SUBSCRIPTION AT ANY TIME WITHOUT NOTICE. The entire amount of this issue has been underwritten.

AFTER PERSONAL INVESTIGATION WITH THE ASSISTANCE OF EXPERTS IN THEIR RESPECTIVE LINES, OF THE PROPERTIES, BUSINESS, AND EXECUTIVE ADMINISTRATION TO BE REPRESENTED BY THE ALLIS-CHALMERS COMPANY, WE RECOMMEND ITS PREFERRED STOCK AS A MANUFACTURING INVESTMENT, IN THE SECURITY, EARNINGS, AND MANAGEMENT OF WHICH WE HAVE ENTIRE CONFIDENCE.

CORN SHORTS REPRIEVED.

Phillips Pays Little Open Attention to the May Deal, Allowing a Reaction of Three and One-Half Cents, but Is Active in July — Wheat Easy on Southwest Rains, but Held by an Improved Cash Demand—Reaction in Prices of Oats.

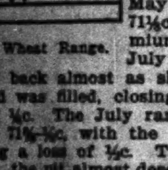
There was a lull in the May corn campaign, a respite for the harried shorts, who are still uncertain when, where, or how they may be able to fill their contracts. No new record breaking price was set by the bull leader; no beating of the bushes done to scare up stop loss orders. The May range was from 58c, the previous close, down to 53½c, resting at the close at 54½c, easier for the day by 3½c. Phillips took no open interest in the market beyond bidding 58c at the opening and selling about 150,000 bu. Sundry small short lines were covered, and one big line of over 100,000 bu liquidated at 55c by a broker close to the bull leader, but not for him. July suffered a little through the relaxed tension of the May deal, but some nervousness on the part of shorts was still manifest at the opening, and the price was bid up promptly to 45⅝c, a bulge of ⅜c over night, falling off from that notch to 44⅞c, and closing a split above the bottom at a loss of ⅜-½c. There appeared to be buying for both Patten and Bartlett early, with selling by Phillips brokers and by Pringle and Page. Later Phillips gave the market support.

Contract Receipts Light.

There was nothing in the receipts to threaten the success of the May deal, the proportion of contract growing smaller, 45 cars out of a total of only 224, a bare 20 per cent. There were 64 more cars and 8,000 bu out of private houses, a total of about 115,000 bu, which is less than the contract contributions have been running for some days. The longs are inclined to believe that the bulk of the corn in the country which will grade contract has already been rushed to this market and that there is not likely to be any increase in the last half of the month. The possibility that the May deal might be closed before the end of the month, as was that of November, by the submission of the outstanding shorts, has been an incentive to speed in getting the corn here. Primary receipts were 414,383 bu, compared with 249,141 bu last year, and clearances 474,985 bu. Cash sales were 100,000 bu No. 2 by Phillips and 25,000 bu No. 3. The seaboard reported sales of 64,000 bu.

Rains Depress Wheat.

Generous rains in Kansas dampened the ardor of crop damage wheat bulls, and there was a selling rush at the opening, but a sharp demand for May on cash business provided a counter irritant and probably saved a worse break in the active futures. May sold up from 71½c to 72¼c, a premium of ¾-⅞c over July at the best, but settled back almost as sharply when the demand was filled, closing at 71½c, a net loss of ¼c. The July range was narrow, 71c to 71⅝-½c, with the close at 71⅛-¼c, showing a loss of ½c. The trade was as narrow, the pit almost deserted much of the time, as the general public had not become interested in the crop scare. Commission orders were few, and a scalping trade against Milwaukee puts helped hold the market. The May demand was from elevator interests and shippers, based on cash business, which was finally put at 325,000 bu. There was a theory in the cash trade that the demand was largely to fill long railroad and ocean freights, as seaboard houses reported inquiry from the other side dull, but some of the business was for direct export. Seaboard sales were only 88,000 bu.



July Wheat Range.

The rains in Kansas were general, nearly an inch at several points, and were continuing during the session. Oklahoma, Texas, and Missouri were also favored. Farmers and dealers in the Southwest, who have been selling nothing for some days, showed their relief by acceptances of over-night bids of over 100,000 bu to arrive in Kansas City. A strong feature of the situation was the shipment of 2,000,000 bu from here in four days, with the probability of 1,000,000 bu more going out the rest of the week. Primary receipts were 315,248 bu, compared with 340,187 bu a year ago, and clearances 244,265 bu. Liverpool futures were steady ½-¼d higher.

Reaction in Oats Prices.

Closing prices in oats found May ⅜c off, July about ¼c lower, and September ¼ to ⅜c off. The big trade of the day was in the two latter deliveries, Cudahy being a big seller of September. The earlier trade was somewhat of a disappointment to the bears, inasmuch as they expected a decidedly easier opening on Southwestern rains, but the market failed to respond to the influences which were expected to be of a weakened character. Phillips is believed to have been a liberal seller of July, letting go in the neighborhood of 200,000 bu through brokers. The cash market was not as active as heretofore, but there was a steady and at times moderately active inquiry for the property. Cash sales were 150,000 bu of white clipped. Receipts are not running especially heavy, the inspection sheet showing 144 cars, of which 17 were contract. No export sales were reported at the seaboard, where clearances were 229,400 bu. These figures were admitted to indicate an active export inquiry and the known shipments will, it is said, make decided inroads on stocks in store. Shipments of oats were nearly three times as large as receipts.

In the provision list there was moderate activity in pork, but not a large business was done in any other product. July pork made a net advance of 12½c, ranging between $14.67½ and $14.80, closing at $14.70. The trend of the market was higher early, the opening being at $14.80. This was largely on a higher hog market, receipts being but 26,000, where 31,000 had been expected. Pit talk was that Armour was on the buying side of both September lard and ribs, operating through Rolsson, Wolff, and Chapin-Edwards. Western packing points were not liberally supplied with hogs, having 52,000, against 74,000 last week and 93,000 a year ago. The Price Current reported packing to date at 430,000, against 415,000 last year. The shipment of cured meats were larger, 2,543,-600 lbs, against 1,483,000 lbs last year. Lard shipments were also heavier, 1,596,000 lbs, against 673,000 lbs last year.

Small Grain Without Feature.

Only a nominal market existed in rye, although a little more business was done than on the day before. There were 3 cars on the inspection sheet and sales of May were made at 52c, this being bid at the close, with sellers asking 52¼c. July was nominally 51c. In the cash market No. 4 sold in store at 47c and No. 2 free on board at 54½c to 55c. Barley was steady and moderately active, without special change in prices. Receipts were 6 cars, all of the lower grades. Skimmings sold at 36½c, with common to fair malting barley quoted 48@52c, good 53@56c. Timothy seed was easier all around, with rather more stuff offered than there was a demand for. Cash sales of country lots ranged from $2.00 to $3.20; September sold at $3.25 to $3.27½.

Flaxseed was steady for spot and a little lower for new crop futures. No. 1 Northwestern and No. 1 were quoted $1.73½. Part of a car of rejected sold at $1.68. May was unchanged at $1.72. October sold early at $1.25½, closing $1.26 bid. Receipts at the three points were 25 cars. Argentine shipments were 304,000 bu, against 221,000 bu a year ago.

Trade Gossip on 'Change.

Some of the traders in the seed crowd are becoming zealous advocates of the rigid enforcement of the rule requiring operations on the floor to cease promptly at 1:15 o'clock. A case where the strict letter of the law was not observed the day before was the cause of more or less comment yesterday. A seller was in the market with a couple of cars of September timothy. He worked one car a minute or so before the close at $3.30, and was offering the other when the closing bell was sounded. The reverberations of the third stroke were still dying away when a buyer made a bid of $3.32½, which was accepted. The work necessary to close the transaction consumed possibly half a minute, but this was sufficient time for one of the seed men to make a vigorous protest again a "violation of the rules." THE TRIBUNE alone quoted the sale, which a majority of the trade considered clearly within the rules, the seed having been repeatedly offered before the closing bell tapped, all the regular traders present, and the whole transaction between parties whose observance of both the letter and the spirit of the rules has always been of the strictest character. The sale was reported yesterday, with an explanation, in the official organ of the trade. In all the speculative articles there is decidedly less trading after the closing bell than a month or so ago, and the cash side of the house is where it has always been the least. Largely for this reason the present cry against the "violation" of the rule excites comment.

The Cincinnati Price Current, in its weekly crop summary, says: "Dry weather in the Southwest caused a moderate decline in wheat promise. General rains needed. Elsewhere wheat crop fine. Oats and corn crops only fair. Farmers' deliveries of grain light."

About the only Kansas crop news not of a jubilant character, due to the heavy rains, was a report to Richardson from Rawlins that in Pratt and Kingman, counties just on the edge of the wheat belt, "some fields have already been plowed up because of the drought, and some are being pastured."

A St. Louis house wired: "Longs selling their wheat, crop news all favorable, only a few crop killers circulating damage reports. And only a short day before the crop killers were held in great esteem in St. Louis."

Wheat Shipments Big.

Two million bushels of wheat will be shipped from Duluth this week and as much more have been loaded here in four days. One house alone has 400,000 bu still to ship before Monday, and the week's total here is almost certain to pass the 3,000,000 bu mark. It will not take much more at this rate to justify the prediction of sundry veteran shippers that contract stocks will be cut in two by June 1. The same prophets expect to see May at a premium of 1c to 3c over July. Any scarcity of contract stocks would apparently justify a higher price for July on old crop future than for May, as supplies would naturally be still further depleted, but the splendid crop promise will probably keep speculative interest out unless something besides cash demand develops as a buying incentive. A country bull campaign in wheat might stir up some excitement, in connection with which suggestion it is worthy of note that Phillips has been picking up good lots of July for several days and apparently not parting with any of it. It would be interesting to the man on the fence if Phillips and his following should recoup on wheat the losses made in that cereal, which were the only losses made in their bull campaign in the three grains. His invariable and apparently natural antagonist, Patten, is believed to be short a big line of July wheat.

The commercial agent of the International and Great Northern railroad company has compiled a large number of reports on the Texas wheat, corn, and oats crop, from Grayson, Dallas, Tarrant, Kaufman, McLennan, Ellis, Rockwell, Collin, Lampasas, Johnson, and Eastland Counties, nearly all of which admit the oats crop is practically a failure, and that wheat is cut down in many sections 20 to 30 per cent. All the correspondents agree that corn will be an immense yield, the acreage being increased 10 to 25 per cent as a general thing and in some counties 50 per cent. All crops are said to be needing rain.

Phillips Gives Shorts a Rest.

There was no gunning for May corn shorts yesterday. Even a successful bull campaign like the present May deal is rather wearing on the nervous system, and the "longs" probably take only less relief than the unlucky shorts in a brief resting spell in the corn war. Phillips told a friend yesterday that he did not believe there were any more shorts who would be driven in. "It looks," he said, "as though shorts who would not scare at a 60c advance must expect to deliver the goods, and I don't care if they do. It has been a long, hard fight, and, with a big profit assured and possible receipts of contract corn well hedged by sales of July, there is no chance of the deal going amiss in any particular." But the outstanding shorts might err in assuming that there will be no more fireworks in the game. It is still possible for the bull leader to appear with his fighting clothes on and try the experiment of a 65c or 70c figure on the endurance of his shorts. Some commission houses, it is understood, still hold speculative short lines and it may require increased receipts of No. 2 to enable all the Eastern hedgers to break even. The local elevator interests still short undoubtedly count on being able to deliver the goods.

Robert Lindblom says of the May corn campaign: "Attention has been riveted on the corn deal and the prospects of Phillips' success in his undertakings. Few now doubt his success, and it would be a real calamity to the trade if he should be defeated, for he has pursued legitimate commercial lines and has been frank and fair. The average bull gets into a fit as delivery day approaches and allows the bears (who have no grain to deliver) to 'shoo' them like scared chickens. Phillips has revised this insane practice. He buys the grain and pays for it, and, instead of being at the mercy of the bears, they are at his mercy. I have advocated trading in cash grain for many years and am pleased to see my theories put into practice. It will revolutionize grain values, and Phillips may yet turn out to be a pioneer in bringing the grain trade back, from the illegitimate channels into which it has drifted, to legitimate commercial ethics."

The Northwestern Miller says: "Wheat seeding in the Northwest was practically completed last week, and in southern Minnesota and South Dakota the early sown grain is six to eight inches in height and in splendid condition. Reports from the fields are to the effect that the crop was put in under the best possible conditions in every way; that the seed was good, and that the weather since has been perfect."

Charters were for 250,000 bu wheat and 75,000 bu oats. There was a better inquiry for vessel room at 1⅞c to Buffalo for wheat and 1⅝c for corn.

A customer of Eschenburg & Dalton's at Hardin County, Ia., says: "Farmers are fully two weeks late in seeding of wheat and oats. The seed is poor, and a great deal of it does not sprout. I have driven over parts of our county within the last few days and have seen a number of wheat and oat fields plowed up for corn."

Exports of wheat and flour from this country for the month of April, corrected by the Treasury department to May 11, were 22,584,454 bu, compared with 18,781,591 bu in April, 1900. Exports of corn in April were 10,063,338 bu, compared with 15,506,340 bu in April, 1900.

VEGETABLES ARE COMING IN.

First Green Peas of the Season from This State Arrive—Produce Generally Sells Well.

Green peas from Illinois made their appearance on South Water street yesterday, the first shipments of the season. There was a moderate demand for them at prices ranging from $1.60 to $1.75 a bu box. Otherwise no new product appeared. The volume of business was about the ordinary, and former prices well maintained, except in the case of potatoes, which were easier and slightly lower on an absence of demand and prospective heavy receipts, two boats being due today, one with nearly 10,000 sacks. There was a slightly better inquiry for chickens, which were quoted ½c higher. Strawberries moved freely at unchanged prices. Receipts were about 5,000 cases. Asparagus was in large supply, with holders generally willing to make concessions.

HOLDS MT. VERNON VOTE LEGAL.

Demurrer of Mayor in Contested City Election Case Upheld by the Circuit Court.

Mount Vernon, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—In the quo warranto case of J. Houlihan against A. C. Johnson, Mayor of Mount Vernon, Judge E. D. Youngblood of the Circuit Court this morning gave a decision which virtually decides the case in favor of the defendant. The suit was brought to test the legality of the vote on the license question in the late municipal election, and the chief point of contention raised by the plaintiff was that the names of the candidates for the various city offices and the proposition on the dramshop license were printed on the same ballot instead of on separate ones, as provided in the revised election laws of 1899. To this counsel for the defendant demurred, holding that the law referred to was directory and not mandatory, and that a failure on the part of the city clerk to provide separate ballots did not invalidate the election so held. Judge Youngblood sustained the demurrer, which virtually settles the question in favor of the defendant to the suit.

Range of Cotton Prices.

Cotton—Operations in cotton futures from start to finish today were conservative and mostly in the way of settlements by room brokers. Shorts were the market's chief supporters. On the opening the tone was quiet, with prices unchanged to one point higher. Soon afterwards prices began to settle under room selling and Southern selling, with July finally off to 7.55c. The new crop positions also followed a contrary course to influences, and after slightly sympathizing with the weakness in near months turned strong on room buying and worked up to above last night's closing. This strength was quite out of line with reports of heavy rains in part of the Southwestern belt. Liverpool quickly conformed to the near month prices here, and at the close was a trifle below the previous day's final bids. In the afternoon pit shorts became nervous, and in an effort to cover sent July rapidly to 7.69c and October to 7.14c. There was nothing in the way of news or outside buying orders to cause this change on the part of room brokers. Before the close a slight reaction had occurred under fresh selling for both accounts, based on belief that the short interests had been evened up and a long account created. Again, it was feared that Liverpool would be sensitive tomorrow to the wet weather forecast from the Southwest. The close was steady, with prices 2@8 points net higher. Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 8 1-16c; middling gulf, 8 5-16c; sales 113 bales. Futures closed steady; May, 7.59c; June, 7.63c; July, 7.67c; August, 7.35c; September, 7.20c; October, 7.12c; November, 7.08c; December, 7.08c; January, 7.10c; February, 7.10c.

IN THE NEW YORK MARKETS.

Current and Closing Quotations on Dry Goods, Coffee, Poultry, Butter, and Metals.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Dry goods—The home demand has been of about late average proportions in this market, but reports from retailers here and elsewhere are more encouraging. There has not been any change in the tone or price of any department in staple cottons. Print cloths inactive. Fall River manufacturers meet tomorrow to consider the situation. Prints quiet and easy. Staple ginghams unchanged. Fine ginghams scarce. Cotton linings quiet and irregular. Hosiery and underwear in rather better demand than of late.

Santos firm at unchanged prices. Receipts, 6,000 bags. Stock, 783,000. Interior receipts, 11,600. The trading in coffee was light at a small advance, due as much as anything to smaller receipts at Rio and Santos. There being a holiday at Havre and Hamburg, the market was not unnaturally more quiet than usual.

Metals.

Developments in tin in the local metal market today were somewhat of a surprise to many of the trade. Despite the fact that in London an advance of 15s was scored, putting spot up to £122 10s and futures to £119 10s, our market at the start showed weakness and was lower by 5@10 points. Following this, however, the market become exceptionally active, and prices quickly reacted under an avalanche of buying orders, sending prices to a level 25 to 40 points above last night's close before a breathing spell was taken—in fact, the market closed strong and held the advance, as the final quotations were $26.50@26.75 for spot tin. Copper was dull at $17.00 for Lake Superior and $16.62½ for casting and electrolytic. Values abroad were unchanged, spot closing at £69 10s and futures at £70 1s 3d. Lead and spelter were once more without change. Iron markets ruled dull and heavy at old prices. Glasgow warrants, 54s 4d and Middlesboro, 45s 10½d.

IN FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

General Tendency of Cash, Bonds, American Railway Shares, and Other Securities in London.

NEW YORK, May 16.—The Commercial Advertiser's London financial cablegram: Business on the exchange here today was on an insignificant scale, but the tone was rather more cheerful, and only one small failure was announced as the result of the difficult settlement recently completed. It is confidently hoped now that all other troubles of this character have been averted.

American department was particularly idle, the arbitrageurs doing little. On the street nothing was done. Prices, however, moved within a much narrower range, about 1½ points on the average. There was some liquidation for the account of defaulting dealers and more wreckage of this kind is expected. The opening in New York hoisted Eries, which were further helped by talk here of a dividend in July on the 1st pfd. This strengthened the market generally. Union Pacific relapsed on local sales.

Call money ranged from 2½ to 3½ per cent and bills were steady. The bank return showed unexpectedly heavy public borrowing of £6,000,000.

The copper fortnightly statistics showed stocks down 459 tons and supplies 784.

The weekly statement of the Bank of England, shows the following changes: Total reserve, decreased, £250,000; circulation, decreased, £66,000; bullion, decreased, £315,678; other securities, increased, £5,925,000; other deposits, increased, £6,745,000; public deposits, decreased £1,059,000; notes reserve, decreased, £178,000. Government securities unchanged.

The proportion of the Bank of England's reserve to liability is 43.69 per cent. Last week it was 49.44 per cent.

The rate of discount unchanged at 4 per cent.

Mathias Dencer transferred to the M. Dencer company, a corporation, the title to and the improvements on the premises on the southeast corner of Twenty-fourth street and Butler street, 175x125 feet. The consideration named was $40,000.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Dumping Filth Near the Shore.

Chicago, May 15.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In August, 1899, a controversy arose between Health Commissioner Reynolds and Major W. L. Marshall of the United States army here in regard to dumping dredgings from the Chicago River into the lake, the result of which was the abatement of this nuisance as contrary to law and a menace to public health. The contention of Commissioner Reynolds which brought about this result was actively supported by the press and met the hearty approval of the public, and we had hoped would have settled the question for all time. I notice, however, that within the last two weeks this practice has again been actively resumed. Almost daily I have observed during that time between the hours of 8 and 9 in the morning from one to three tugs, each having in tow from one to two scows deeply laden with dredgings, dumping their contents into the lake off shore, say from one-half to a mile, between Thirty-ninth and Forty-third streets.

The citizens of Chicago have spent over $30,000,000 in building the Drainage Canal to secure a supply of pure water, and the Drainage board has just been authorized by the Legislature to spend an additional $5,000,000 on the ditch, which we taxpayers must patiently submit to, although it is my humble opinion that every dollar so spent might as well have been stuffed into the fire so far as procuring pure water for domestic purposes is concerned. The dumping of all this filth into the lake will prevent the possibility of procuring pure water from Lake Michigan for years to come, as every time we have a strong northeast storm this filthy sediment is stirred up, polluting the water to such an extent that it is positively nauseating and totally unfit for human use in any form. Those of us who live in the southern part of the city have scarcely been able to use the lake water all winter, and have been forced to buy water from outside sources at 10 cents a gallon, notwithstanding all we pay the city and Drainage board in the shape of taxes and water rates. Why is it that our city authorities permit this pollution of our source of water supply in direct violation of law, when, as I understand, no dumping of this kind is permissible within eight miles of the shore? TAXPAYER.

NEWS OF THE RAILWAYS.

RATE WAR MAKES POSSIBLE EXTENSIVE SCALPING.

Competitors of the Wabash Refuse to Make Peace Except with Abolition of Differential from Kansas City to New York — Pacific Mail Earnings Fall Off Under Harriman Control—St. Louis Southwestern Gain Under Recent Traffic Agreement.

The fight between the Wabash railroad and its competitors over the differential fares from Kansas City to points in the East has reached a stage where wholesale scalping of local rates is made possible. The through rate from Kansas City to New York is only $2.40 higher than the rate from Chicago by the Chicago-New York lines. This makes possible a big scalp in the rate between Kansas City and Chicago and between Chicago and New York.

The Eastern roads are making every possible effort to prevent the fight from spreading any further, fearing that the rates from Chicago to Eastern points will become involved and general demoralization will follow. The General Passenger Agents of these roads have arranged to be in Chicago on May 24 and attend a conference with the General Passenger Agents of the West, with the view of reaching some kind of a settlement.

The competitors of the Wabash say they will not make peace on any other terms than abandonment by the Wabash of its claim for a differential rate from Kansas City to the East. Having the short line and the best facilities from Kansas City to New York, the Wabash, they say, has no right to a differential. As it is, the Wabash is getting the bulk of the east-bound business from Kansas City.

Beginning next Monday the passenger fare on the Wabash in Michigan will be only two cents a mile. This is the result of the increased earnings of the company, which bring it within the two-cent classification. The company has notified Commissioner Osborn that it will make the reduction next Monday.

Coal and Oil in Wyoming.

The Union Pacific in digging the Aspen tunnel in Uintah County, Wyo., struck a heavy flow of oil that impeded the work. Of course, the oil is of more value than the tunnel but it spoiled the plans of the engineers. A little farther on they bored on to get water for a watering station on the new cut-off and oil was struck again. The flow of oil in the tunnel is being piped, and the new oil well is now furnishing a large quantity of a good quality of petroleum. A big rush has begun to the locality. The whole country there is government land as yet. Evanston, which is the nearest large town, twenty-seven miles away, is filled with strangers, and capitalists are on the spot figuring on new wells.

So much oil has been struck in building the Aspen tunnel that explosions frequently happen from the accumulated gases. Not only is there oil, but coal of the finest quality, the Union Pacific having already opened several mines in the vicinity of the tunnel. The Burlington is also figuring upon getting into that territory by the extension of its Guernsey line to Salt Lake City. It is reported that agents of the Burlington continue to file on rich coal lands in Carbon County. To this date the company has secured 28,000 acres of these lands. Vast beds of hard and soft coal are said to have been discovered.

Pacific Mail Earnings Decrease.

It is claimed that since E. H. Harriman bought the late C. P. Huntington's holdings in the Pacific Mail Steamship company his investment has not been proving profitable. For some reason the earnings have fallen off materially. Last year's figures were far below those of 1899. In March the deficit was $55,285, against a surplus for March last year of $26,898. For the eleven months ended March 31 gross earnings were $376,062 less than for the same period a year ago. The surplus available for dividends for the eleven months is $207,658. The company has $20,000,000 stock, so that in eleven months the current fiscal year about 1 per cent on the stock has been earned, compared with over 8½ per cent in the same period a year ago.

Excursion Rates Granted.

Excursion rates at a fare and one-third for the round trip have been granted by the Central Passenger association roads for the following occasions:

National Electric Light association, Niagara Falls, N. Y., May 21 to 24.

Catholic Total Abstinence Union of Illinois, Dwight, May 26 and 27.

Illinois State Undertakers' association, Rockford, June 11 to 14.

National Eclectic Medical association, Chattanooga, Tenn., June 18 to 20.

Transportation Notes.

Since traffic agreements were entered into between the St. Louis Southwestern and Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroads the earnings of both roads have been showing material improvement. Dividends on the former are looked upon as a possibility soon. The directors met during the Wall street panic last week, but postponed the expected action on account of the financial scare. A special meeting will probably soon be called and the anticipated action taken.

The Globe Construction company of Chicago has secured the contract for the construction and equipment of seventy miles of the extension of the Des Moines, Iowa Falls and Northern railway from Iowa Falls to Des Moines. Work is to commence within ten days.

WILL REFUND 'FRISCO'S DEBT.

Plan to Issue More Shares and Increase Capital Stock to $100,000,000 Ratified by Holders.

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—At a special meeting of the trust certificate holders of the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad company, held today, the plan for the consolidation and refunding of the company's bonded indebtedness was ratified. More than the required amount of each class of stock was represented, and no opposition to the plan was manifested.

The proposition voted on was an increase in the second preferred shares by $15,000,000 and in the increase of the total capital stock to $100,000,000, the balance above the $16,000,000 new preferred shares to be in new common stock. An issue of a new refunding mortgage for $85,000,000 was also authorized.

It may be stated on good authority that the controlling interests in the Union Pacific railroad are not at present considering the advisability of issuing bonds to finance the acquisition of Northern Pacific stock. The report was circulated today that it was intended to issue the $60,000,000 of convertible 4 per cent bonds which still remain unissued out of the $100,000,000, the issue of which was recently authorized.

It was estimated today that at noon about two-thirds of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy stock had been deposited for exchange into Northern Pacific bonds.

A general mortgage was filed today with Register Fromme in the shape of an agreement between the Continental Trust company of New York as trustee and the Wabash railroad company which provides for an issue of new equipment obligations amounting to $3,000,000. The obligations are for $1,000 each, payable on March 1, 1921, or sooner, with interest at 5 per cent. The additional equipment consists of 3,000 box cars, 500 coal cars, 40 locomotives, and passenger and combination cars, valued at $3,300,000.

Representatives of Western railroads that have been cutting east-bound passenger rates have assured Eastern trunk lines of their intention to get together speedily and settle their differences. Recent fighting over passenger rates has been caused by the attempts of certain Western roads to apply the Wabash railroad's differential to standard lines. Such efforts have been resisted by the Eastern roads, and the Western railroad men now agree to cease rate cutting and submit the questions involved to arbitration.

There is semi-official authority for the statement that the dividend on Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad common stock will be increased to a 5 per cent basis at the June meeting of the directors. Other important developments are expected at the annual meeting.

FRIDAY, MAY, 17, 1901.

The Pontiac Reformatory. The State Reformatory for Boys at Pontiac is looked on as one of the best institutions of the kind in the United States. It owes this creditable position largely to the zeal and intelligence of Major McClaughry and of his successor, George Terrance, who is the present superintendent. The high standard of management set by the former has been maintained by the latter. There have been no Pontiac scandals. The institution has been conducted in as economical and businesslike a way as if it were a private concern. It has at the same time been quite successful in carrying out the purposes for which it was established. Of the boys sent there the majority have gone out into the world to lead honest and useful lives. As everything has gone on so satisfactorily under the present superintendent a failure to keep him where he is will lessen the efficiency of the reformatory unless as good a man or a better man shall be put in his place. Presumably the trustees know how difficult it is to find a person who has all the qualifications a good superintendent of an institution like the one they have in charge should possess. Presumably they know how quickly the best of institutions runs down under bad management and becomes a public scandal. It must be assumed that they will make no hazardous changes in officers.

Welcome to Jules Cambon. Chicago felicitates itself on the fact that for the next few days it will have the honor of entertaining M. Jules Cambon, the distinguished Ambassador of France to the United States. This is the first time M. Cambon has ventured West since he came to Washington, and, with all modesty, it may be anticipated that he will find much to interest and entertain him. If he should notice that in many ways Chicago is a contrast to his own beautiful Paris he will know how to make allowances for time and temperament, and will look at the city's shortcomings with a prophetic rather than a critical eye. It is, of course, unnecessary to remind a man of M. Cambon's scholarly attainments of the fact that Chicago should possess a peculiar interest for a Frenchman. A French priest first visited and described the present site of the city nearly 250 years ago and a French fur trader made the first map of the region of which Chicago is now the center. If M. Cambon is taken to look at the drainage channel, a big ditch of which Chicago is perhaps overproud, he will remember that his compatriot, Father Marquette, first made the passage from Lake Michigan via the Chicago River to the Mississippi, unless some other Frenchman preceded him, and that Joliet was the man who first suggested that the canal should be dug. In the city itself M. Cambon will find many splendid memorials of the great Frenchman who gave all this region to the civilized world. He may walk down La Salle street, he may visit a great skyscraper which bears the name of the heroic priest who spent a lonely winter on the site of Chicago more than 200 years ago, and he will find in the house of the Historical society French maps and letters which are cherished as part of the earliest history of this region. More than that, M. Cambon will find for himself and for the nation which he represents a modern and a hearty welcome. Chicago will be disappointed if after this first trip the French Ambassador does not find himself moved to make frequent and lengthy visits to the West.

MUSIC AND AVOIRDUPOIS.

Judge King of New Orleans has decided that fatness in a female opera singer justifies a manager in breaking a contract. The case in question was that of Gabrielle Sterval against Henry Berriel, manager of the French opera. Mlle. Sterval went to New Orleans from San Francisco under what she asserts was a contract to sing, but M. Berriel declined to allow her to do so upon the ground that she was too fat. "If Mlle. Sterval were cast as Urban in the 'Huguenots' or as Siebel in 'Faust,' both of whom wear tights, it would create an uproar of laughter in the audience however fine her voice might be," said the manager. The court agreed with him, and the fat contralto left the courtroom melancholy at the loss of a contract as well as of damages, and grieving over the possession of so much of "this too solid flesh."

The decision of the court looks like hard usage of this unfortunate lady. The court should at least have fixed some standard of avoirdupois not to be exceeded, and that standard should have been fixed by precedents. From what is stated of Mlle. Sterval's bulk she is less ample than was Parepa of glorious memory, and yet Parepa appeared as Arline in "The Bohemian Girl" and exchanged parts with the little Valleria in the last act of "The Marriage of Figaro," and no one thought her appearance incongruous. Alboni, hugest of all contraltos, sang both as Urban and Siebel, and no one thought of her bulk once that marvelous voice was heard. Lablache, bigger that Parepa, Alboni, and Sterval together, so big that he could not get into an ordinary coach, frisked about the stage as Figaro and no one thought of his amplitude.

If Mlle. Sterval is blessed with a good voice it may be assumed her audiences would have been gallant enough to overlook her appearance even in tights, as they would in fact that of any lean and scrawny soprano. It is to be hoped her case will not be made a precedent by managers and that they will not paste on the walls of apply," for scrawny artists always have scrawny voices.

RAISING VAIN HOPES.

In 1890 the population of Chicago exceeded that of Philadelphia by 53,000. The excess in 1900 was 405,000. During the decade the number of inhabitants in Chicago was increased by 598,000 and in Philadelphia by 247,000. There is nothing in these figures calculated to make Chicagoans nervous or to inspire Philadelphians with the hope that their city is to become again the second city in population in the country, nor will the former be seriously disturbed by the statement in the Philadelphia Press to the effect that, "judging from present tendencies, it would not be surprising to see Philadelphia forging ahead during the present decade and recovering its position as the second city of the country in 1910."

To do this it will be necessary to make a larger gain than the 500,000 or 600,000 which the Press says it is not improbable will be secured during this decade. Chicago has not been idle during the last year and will not be idle during the next nine years. This city will have in 1910 fully 600,000 more inhabitants than it had in 1900. This is a modest estimate. Of course, the percentage of increase will diminish, but the total gain will increase. The Press speaks hopefully of "a resurging wave of population toward the East" because there are no more free farm lands to be had in the far West. If there is to be such a "resurging wave" it will drop here the people it carries along and they will go to work here in shops and factories.

This is a great manufacturing city, even as Philadelphia is. It has ceased depending exclusively on grain and cattle. It will continue to grow rapidly in population because it is to be the great industrial city of the country. It is quite true that Chicago has not as yet the foreign commerce which Philadelphia has and the steamship which has sailed from here for England is not making satisfactory progress. Nevertheless, foreign commerce may come to Chicago in time. If it does not, the city will manage to grow without it and to keep its present lead.

This is rather early in the decade to begin speculating on the next census. This is the best time, however, the Press could choose to flatter its constituents with false hopes. Nine years hence, when the next census is taken and the city shown to be farther ahead of Philadelphia than it is now, nobody will remember the predictions of the Press. It is safe to say that it will make no such predictions just before the census is taken.

ARCHITECT COBB'S HALLUCINATION.

The architect of the Chicago government building, sitting in his office at Washington, says "work on the Postoffice Building is going on beautifully." With a fine disregard of facts he remarked that "the vicinity of Adams and Dearborn streets"—meaning the unfinished government building—"is humming with industry." In this instance the man at a distance sees something which men on the ground cannot see. It is an event in the lives of the men who have offices looking out on the deformed, unsightly Postoffice Building when they see more than half a dozen men at a time working on it. As a rule, there are not so many workmen there as might be employed in the construction of a good wood shed. So manifest is the lack of inclination to finish the structure that it is not strange Chicagoans are incensed against the architect, who is paid $4,000 per annum, and the contractor. Every intelligent man knows it is not necessary for the work on the government building to drag as it does. If it were being put up for private parties there would be no such dilatoriness. The building would indeed "hum with industry" then. It would be a swarming hive of labor. The metallic music of the hammer, the chisel, and the trowel would be incessant, and would be loud enough to drown all other noises.

There is no dearth of men on the structures which the contractor for the Postoffice Building is erecting on private account. His employers would not stand anything of that kind. There is nobody, apparently, to look after the interests of the government in this case. How its interests suffer every Chicagoan knows. Why they are allowed to suffer to the extent they do is a mystery as yet, but it will not be forever.

CHAFFEE AS A DIPLOMAT.

During the early stages of General Chaffee's service in China he said or wrote some things which created the impression that he was abrupt and undiplomatic in his ways. If this idea was correct General Chaffee must have been learning diplomacy recently through his daily intercourse with the officers of European armies. At any rate, he seems to be developing into an accomplished diplomat. A few days ago he paid a strong compliment to the English and expressed his faith in the continuance of fraternal relations between the two branches of the English-speaking race. Now he has distinguished himself further in the field of international amenities by paying a graceful tribute to the Germans at a farewell banquet given in his honor at Pekin.

In reply to the compliments of the German Minister, Count von Schwartzenstein, General Chaffee said that some of his most pleasant memories of China would be those of his association with the Germans, adding that he should always esteem himself fortunate in "having been able to meet and admire that grand old man, Count von Waldersee." A trained diplomat from one of the oldest courts of Europe could not have turned a national compliment more gracefully. By adding a cordial wish that the German Field Marshal might be able to visit the United States on his return journey General Chaffee gave his compliment another neat turn that lends it an international scope.

The wish thus expressed will be indorsed cordially by the American people. General Chaffee's fraternal feeling for the Germans and his admiration for the noted German military leader are shared by Americans. If one may judge from General Chaffee's progress as an after-dinner speaker, the international campaign in China has been a good school of diplomacy as well as of military science.

Libel in a Dictated Letter. Persons who are inclined to write slanderous or abusive letters will do well hereafter not to dictate such utterances to stenographers. The Maryland Court of Appeals has handed down a decision—the first in which any State court of last resort has passed upon this point—declaring that a slander, when dictated to a stenographer, is "published" as effectively as if it had been printed in a newspaper, and hence the writer becomes liable to punishment under the libel laws. The confidential nature of the stenographer's position does not alter the case. The theory that the amanuensis who receives a libelous dictation and reduces it to typewriting is a mere impersonal machine is set aside by the Maryland court. By a long se-of publication does not depend upon the number of persons to whom the matter is communicated. Blackstone says the communication of a libel to one person is a publication in the eye of the law. Another old definition is to the effect that the publication of defamation consists in communicating it to a third person. The laws of the different States vary somewhat in their definitions of libel, but it is probable that the Supreme Court of Illinois or of any other State would reach the same decision as that of the Maryland court on this point. The principle laid down is sound. The widespread employment of stenographers makes this legal point one of importance. The Maryland decision should have a deterrent effect upon everybody who is tempted to write scurrilous letters through the medium of an amanuensis. It will be safer for the offender to write such letters with his own hand, or, better still, not to write them at all.

THE RIOTS IN ALBANY.

The riotous scenes accompanying the street car strike in Albany do not differ in any essential point from the similar disturbances in recent years in St. Louis, Brooklyn, and Chicago, except that the militia has been called out with less loss of time than usual, and has been most efficient. There have been bloodshed, smashing of cars, tearing up of tracks, intimidating of non-union employés, and similar acts of violence by thousands of lawless persons along the whole line of the street railway. This strike, like all others of its kind, has seemed to be the signal for an outbreak of popular hostility in the whole region traversed by the company's cars.

It would be interesting to know why a strike on a street car line almost invariably results in more violence than a strike in any other industry. The question is one that might be studied with profit by the traction companies. It would be well for their managers to inquire whether or not the traction lines are accustomed to give any cause for such spontaneous hostility whenever there is an opportunity for displaying it. A strike in a steel mill or in a factory employing a similar force of men does not lead to such rioting. This is partly because the public does not come in contact with a private manufacturing enterprise as it does with a street car line which it is using continually. It is partly because the tracks of the latter traverse miles of streets, making the property vulnerable to attack at an infinite number of points close to the homes of riotously disposed persons. A sympathiser with street car strikers never has to go far to show his sympathy. But if traction companies made friends instead of enemies of its patrons these causes might not be so effective. Probably the abnormal violence can be traced in most cases to bad service and to the habitual disregard of public rights on the part of the traction officials.

A PROCURESS SENTENCED.

The trial which was concluded yesterday by the sentence of "Mother" Lyons to the penitentiary for procuring, detaining, and all but delivering a 17-year-old girl to be the mistress of "Bert Brown" opened a window into the realm of events which one would gladly believe never occur. That they do occur, however, is no less true than it is that their frequency is by no means indicated by the convictions therefor in court.

Indeed, the rescue of the young girl in this case, which was accomplished through a bold combination of strategy and force, took place only an hour before she was actually to have been delivered to the man for whom she had been procured, and all the circumstances of the case indicate how subtly and successfully the game of the procuress can be played even against virtuous girls—who are of course her chosen victims.

The details of this case—the original trap of an advertisement for a woman's companion, the gradual disclosure to the unsuspecting applicant of her "employer's" real designs, her introduction to the proposed purchaser, her close confinement, the cry for help sent to her friends by the cook, the instant discharge of the latter, the entrance of the rescuer through a door momentarily opened to let the expressman take away the cook's trunk, the actual force required even then to release the proposed victim, the final whispered plea to her not to "tell about Bert Brown," the immediate disappearance of this individual, the menacing demonstrations made against the girl and her protectors prior to the trial, and the fact that the procuress was well known to the police and is alleged to have caused the downfall of many other girls, though she has never before been convicted—all these details should serve at least to make young girls more wary against such pitfalls and to deepen the public indignation against men willing to buy such crimes.

Credit is due to Professor Graham Taylor, who has taken the financial and other risks of this prosecution; to the State's Attorney, who aided it; and to his assistant, Mr. Olson, who conducted it with energy.

WOES OF THE COLLEGE PROFESSOR.

The profession of college professor is fast becoming one of the most dangerous occupations in which a man can engage. Hardly a day passes but some occupant of a college chair is pilloried in the newspapers as the author of some more or less ridiculous or sensational speech which, if true, would stamp him as a man unfitted to teach young men and women to live wise and rational lives.

There was President Hadley of Yale, for instance, whom almost every paper in the country has quoted as predicting that within twenty-five years the United States would become an empire. What President Hadley did say was that if certain conditions continued and certain tendencies were not checked the logical outcome would be the eventual formation of an empire.

There was the utterly unfortunate Professor Crook of Evanston, who has had his picture printed all over the world as the "Unkissed Crook" because of the published statement that he had said he had never "kissed or hugged a girl" in his life. The mere fact that Professor Crook has asserted that the statement he made several months ago was distorted in recent publication has accomplished nothing except to furnish proof of the fact that if you give a lie five minutes' start the truth will never overtake it.

Similar instances in which college professors have been misunderstood or misrepresented might be multiplied, but to no avail. It is sufficient to call attention to the latest story of the kind which represents Professor Clark of Northwestern University as advising young men never to marry college bred young women and expressing the strength of his convictions on this subject by the pious ejaculation, "God help the man who marries the college bred woman." Professor Clark is further quoted as denouncing the Methodist Church because "a good many of its rules are too narrow for a broad-minded man to follow."

It is perfectly safe to say that in these alleged quotations Professor Clark has been [illegible]. He is a college professor of experience and culture and it is not conceivable that he could have said what is attributed to him. He is simply another victim of what appears to be an epidemic of misrepresentation of which college professors are the victims.

EXTRA De Wet Taken EXTRA

Our Correspondent's Daring Project at Last Accomplished.

In the Air, May 16.—[By Wireless Special.]—I have captured General De Wet, and shall take him at once to Kitchener.

It was really very simple.

When I dropped into the Boer camp at Troop Dam, I was surrounded instantly by the Boer army, and placed under arrest. As I expected this I made no resistance, and after seeing that my balloon was securely fastened to a hitching post in the public square, I accompanied my captors to the headquarters of General De Wet. Gretchen, of course, went with me, and, thanks to her beauty, was treated with the utmost deference by the soldiers, who for the most part are old enough to be her father.

"Who are you?" demanded General De Wet.

"Professor Wiener Schnitzel of Berlin," said I. "By profession an aeronaut and botanist. Allow me to present Frau Schnitzel."

"Frau Schnitzel," said he, "looks remarkably like the daughter of Mynheer Van Decken of Einzweifontein."

"You flatter the daughter of Mynheer Van Decken," said I. Whereat Gretchen blushed prettily. "And pray," I went on, "who are you?"

The Boer commander smiled grimly. "Have you ever heard of Christian De Wet?" said he.

"That I have," I replied; "and a swifter-footed man never lived to fight another day."

"Well, I am he."

"I am delighted to meet you, my dear General," I cried. "I calculated to drop in on you at dinner time. I trust I am not too late."

"We shall dine at once," said De Wet. And we did.

After dinner the General expressed a desire to see my remarkable balloon, concerning which I had told him many curiosity-whetting things, and we repaired to the public square. He climbed into the basket, and I pointed out the various devices by which I was able to control the movements of my airship.

"Here," said I, "is the little motor that drives the ship laterally."

The General got upon his hands and knees to inspect the motor, and I gave Gretchen the signal. Leaning over the basket edge she cut the rope and we shot cloudward. JOSH SLINGER.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S WHAT.

WILL REVOLUTIONIZE INDUSTRY.—If the claims of its discoverer and the predictions of those who have seen it may be given credit, Dr. Ludwig Mond, the distinguished German scientist, has recently made a discovery which will, in time, create a revolution in manufacturing and other lines of industry. For several years Dr. Mond has been working to discover a combustible gas which could be made and sold to manufacturers for use as fuel at a rate which would pay a profit both to the customer and the gas company. At last he has succeeded, a statement in which he is backed by the indorsement of some important scientific bodies. He is now able to produce a combustible gas which can be sold profitably in large quantities as low as four cents a thousand feet, and which is already being used by a few manufacturers. The new gas is a coal gas, made by forcing the ordinary coal gas through the incandescent coal, together with other processes which are too technical to be easily understood. With this new gas for use as fuel, manufacturers of all kinds will be able to make great reductions in the cost of production, with a corresponding decrease in the cost to the consumer of their products.

HOW GAMBLERS WORK AT SEA.—During his recent trip to Europe J. Pierpont Morgan is said to have caught and exposed one of the many cheating gamblers who make a business of crossing and recrossing the ocean for the purpose of robbing the passengers with their dishonest games. Since Mr. Morgan made the discovery and, by the magic of his name, lent interest and importance to the subject, the English papers have been full of descriptions of how these international gamblers get the better of rich transatlantic passengers. They have discovered, for instance, that a marked deck of cards is most frequently used. The deck shown in the illustration is backed with a design of Cupid, and the shading on the body of the Cupid varies with each card, so that by glancing at the hand of an opponent the sharper can tell exactly what he holds. Another favorite trick is to have a confederate, who holds in his hand a pipe, at the bottom of the bowl of which a mirror is set. During the game the pipe is so held that the mirror will reflect the cards in the hand of the victim. It is expected that when Mr. Morgan gets ready to come to this country the gamblers will leave the steamer on which he sails as rats desert a sinking ship.

OLDEST AND UGLIEST OF INDIANS.—A unique double distinction belongs to "Zeeke," an old Indian woman who lives at Neah Bay, Wash. She is said to be not only the oldest but also the ugliest person of her own or any other race on the Pacific coast, if not in the world. As to her great age, there are no positive proofs, but a single glance at her photograph is sufficient to establish her rightful title to the second distinction. She was born at Neah Bay, where she has lived ever since, and Indians who are now more than 70 years old say that when they were born "Zeeke" was already an elderly woman with grown children. She is a good-natured old person, and always attempts to kiss and hug people of both sexes who strike her fancy. Whenever she meets a stranger she immediately asks for tobacco, and, if it is forthcoming, she at once eats it greedily, thus setting at defiance all known rules of health. She is nearly blind, and she has never seen herself in a mirror, so that she has never had an idea of how striking is her appearance. She is supported by the government, and in excellent "chinook" announces that she intends to live thirty years longer, or until she reaches the ripe old age of 150 years.

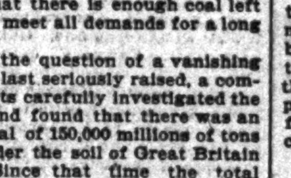
ENGLAND AND ITS COAL SUPPLY.—Ever since the United States began to export coal to England, and more especially since the export tax of a shilling a ton was put on the coal mined in Great Britain, Englishmen have been much excited over the question of their coal supply. The English papers have now taken the matter up from a patriotic standpoint, and are doing their best to prove that there is enough coal left in the islands to meet all demands for a long time to come.



Fifteen Thousand Tons of Coal Mined Every Ten Minutes Weigh More than a Battleship.

In 1870, when the question of a vanishing coal supply was last seriously raised, a commission of experts carefully investigated the whole subject and found that there was an approximate total of 150,000 millions of tons then resting under the soil of Great Britain and Ireland. Since that time the total amount of coal mined reached 5,000 million tons. At the same rate of consumption the last of British coal would not be consumed for something like 900 years. But the fact is that the amount of coal consumed increases rapidly each year, and at the present rate of increase the coal supply would be exhausted within four or five hundred years, even if it should all prove to be available.

At present there are 730,000 men regularly employed as coal miners in Great Britain, and they raise coal to the surface at the rate of 15,000 tons every ten minutes.

CONNECTICUT CLAIMS MOST STUBBORN MAN.—Connecticut lays claim to the possession of the most stubborn man on record in the person of "Stub" Carter, a brass molder of Ansonia, who has just been released from the county jail at New Haven after spending a few days less less than two years inside its walls. Carter showed his stubbornness when he was called on to pay the tax of $1, which the State exacts from every citizen for the support of the militia. Carter said he saw no use in having any militia, and he didn't propose to pay for it. He refused to meet the assessment of $1 made on him, and after a trial was sent to the county jail, protesting that he would stay there the rest of his life rather than [illegible] ple of Ansonia thought it was rather a good joke on "Stub" Carter, and served him right for his stubbornness. But every week "Stub" staid in jail it cost the taxpayers of Ansonia $2.50 for his board. Finally after they had spent nearly $300 in a vain effort to make "Stub" relent they decided it was useless to make any further attempt. An attorney was sent over to New Haven, and he finally persuaded the brass molder to take the poor debtor's oath, after which he was released. Meanwhile "Stub" takes pleasure in announcing that he hasn't paid that military tax yet, and, what's more, he doesn't intend to pay it.

SURVIVOR OF A FAMOUS CLASS.—Perhaps the most famous class which ever graduated from West Point was that of 1843, which included General Grant, and almost every member of which rose to the rank of a Brigadier General. There are now but three living survivors of the class. One of them, the Rev. Father Deshon, resigned from the army in 1851, and is now a member of the Paulist Fathers, stationed in New York City. The second, General William B. Franklin is living in retirement, and the third, General Samuel G. French, lives at Pensacola, Fla., a hale and hearty old man, who still takes an active interest in public affairs. General French won his spurs in the Mexican war. Though a native of New Jersey he cast in his lot with the South when the rebellion broke out, and he was one of the few men of Northern birth to win high rank in the rebel army, eventually becoming a Major General. It was General French who commanded the confederates at the night attack on the Army of the Potomac at Harrison's Landing, when the federals were thrown into much confusion. He planned and directed the construction of the defenses around Petersburg, and took part in many of the hardest fought battle of the war.

FOR FIRST AID FOR DROWNING PEOPLE.—The United Volunteer Life Saving Corps, which now numbers more than 8,000 members, has just placed on each of the bridges in the City of Brooklyn a medicine chest containing supplies necessary for the resuscitation of drowning people. In each chest is also a book of directions for the use of the bridge keepers and others. Each of the chests contains a bottle of smelling salts, a bottle of aromatic spirits of ammonia, a bottle of chloroform, a bottle of ergot, a roll of bandages, a towel, pair of tweezers, two rubber bands, a roll of cotton, a package of court plaster, and two ounces of brandy. With each chest is also a can life buoy and a life line. All the apparatus and supplies are kept ready for instant use, and are left in the charge of the bridgetenders. Similar chests are to be placed at every station maintained by the corps. Since its establishment eleven years ago this volunteer organization has established 734 life saving crews, and has distributed among its stations many thousand aluminium, cork, and rubber buoys and life saving rings. Members of thee association have saved 2,811 lives.

ARTIST AS A DETECTIVE.

A lively story is in circulation at the expense of one of the cleverest artists and illustrators in town. To this effect: Not many nights ago he was working pretty late over a "pen and ink" for one of the big magazines. His apartment was remote from the main rooms of the house, and the suspicious sounds he presently heard were remote, too, but distinct enough to convince him that something odd was in progress down-stairs. The block of paper on which he had been working out a detail was in his hand as he stole down to investigate, and behind his ear was carelessly thrust a well-sharpened pencil.

Through a door by chance ajar he saw that which justified his suspicion. Two well-dressed men were actively engaged in a piece of practical inside work. The artist had no sword, but he did have the pen, its substitute, anyway, reputed to be mightier far. To sketch these cracksmen for the benefit of the discriminating police was the thought that flashed instantly through his cool brain.

Ten, a dozen, strokes of the pencil sufficed for each man; on the pad of paper his likeness should endure forever. Our friend then proceeded to make a hideous clamor, a coal scuttle and a tin pan aiding. That the midnight visitors vanished like shadows goes without the need of telling.

Ten minutes later the drowsy sergeant at one of the up-town police stations came to life with a bound. The machinery of the entire Police department creaked and revolved.

That evening the artist got a message by telephone: "We have got your men," it ran, "and by your sketches; come up and identify them."

Alas! the police dragnet had gathered in two respectable and worthy citizens of a neighboring suburb. They fitted the sketches, but not the picture in the artist's mind. And these two men, I understand, after saying things uncomplimentary of art, cursed the police also, and departed. The spoons and forks are still sought, but the sketches are called in.—Boston Advertiser.

Only Sunburned.

Last summer two little girls in a College avenue family were repeatedly remonstrated with by their indulgent mother for playing bareheaded in the sun. "You will be burned so badly," said she to them finally, "that people will think you are black children." Her warning had little effect, however, and she gave up trying to keep their hats on.

One day she sent them to a neighbor a block or so distant to make some inquiries concerning a washwoman. Mrs. S., the neighbor in question, mistook them for the children of a Mrs. Black, who lived in another street nearby.

"You are the little Black children, are you not?" she asked.

"O, no," came the prompt response from the elder. "Only sunburned."—Indianapolis News.

"Why did you terminate your interview with that professional politician so abruptly?" asked the confidential man.

DR. H. C. MINTON IS NEW MODERATOR.

BOTH GIVEN HIGH PRAISE.

Dr. Charles A. Dickey in Retiring Delivers Long and Carefully-Prepared Address.

"PEORIA PLAN" IS TESTED.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 16.—[Special.]—The unexpected frequently happens in the General Assembly elections. It happened today, when the Rev. George T. Purves of New York, the pastor of one of the leading churches of the Presbyterian denomination, in many respects the greatest in membership, wealth, history, and influence, was defeated for the highest honor in the gift of the church by the Rev. Henry Collon Minton of San Francisco, Cal., a professor in one of the smaller theological seminaries of the church, who, it is said, receives nominally a small salary and only secures about one-third of that.

The wealth of the Eastern church with its gifts to the mission boards, was placed against the needs of the home mission field and the Western coast especially, and the West won.

For weeks it has been known that Dr. Dinsmore of San Jose and Dr. Minton of San Francisco were rival candidates. The Dinsmore people came here determined to run their man whether he succeeded or failed, but they saw a light and withdrew their candidate, presenting a solid front against the East. The speeches were as usual complimentary of the men, both of whom have done splendid work in the church, and judged by their representatives each was admirably qualified for the position.

Other things being equal it was said by the advocates of each man that the other candidate might probably be chosen, but each insisted that other things were not equal, and that, therefore, the one for whom he spoke should be selected.

High Praise for Dr. Purves.

The Rev. Dr. W. C. Roberts of Danville, Ky., the President of Center College, placed Dr. Purves in nomination. Dr. Roberts was on the most intimate terms for years with Dr. John Hall and leading men in the Fifth Avenue Church in New York, and he spoke out of a full heart in behalf of the church which has done so much to carry on the work of the denomination, especially in the home mission field.

He also knew, he said, the work of the home missionaries, towards whom his heart turned with the deepest affection. Representing, therefore, the men on the field who do the work, and the men in the city who furnish the money which makes the sacrifice of the missionaries possible, he urged that the two classes should unite and choose as their moderator the pastor who so nobly succeeds Dr. Hall.

Dr. James Moffatt of Cumberland, Md., seconded the nomination, as did also Dr. Herrick Johnson. Dr. Moffatt had been a brother pastor of Dr. Purves in Baltimore, while Dr. Johnson had been the pastor of the church which Dr. Purves attended as a boy.

He therefore spoke with tenderness, not unlike that of a father for the one whom he had known as boy and man, as student and teacher and pastor. He declared that Dr. Purves was so constituted that it would be absolutely impossible for him to be unfair or prejudiced. Like Zaccheaus, the New York pastor is small, but unlike the man of Jericho, he does not need to climb a tree to see things.

The only argument, Dr. Johnson said in closing, that could be brought against Dr. Purves was one of locality, an important argument if there were no other considerations, but he declared that between Dr. Purves and any other candidate that could be named there was no such thing as equality. He was preëminently fitted to preside over the present assembly.

Western Man Is Urged.

Professor Minton was placed in nomination by the Rev. Dr. Hugh K. Walker of Los Angeles. His argument was the East did not need a Moderator, least of all did the Fifth Avenue Church need one. That church had done noble work and would continue to do so, Moderator or no Moderator. The West did need the help which would come from having one of its men at the head of the assembly. He hoped also that the commissioners would see fit to strengthen the hands of their brethren in the West by deciding to hold the next assembly there, for not only had residents of California offered free entertainment for all the commissioners, but also thousands of dollars towards the railroad fares.

Dr. Walker was pathetic in his references to the sacrifices which Dr. Minton has made by remaining a professor in the San Francisco seminary on an extremely small salary, while he might have secured a much larger one by yielding to the calls that come for his services as a pastor in Eastern fields. But he loves the West and stands there, Dr. Walker said, against all the "isms" with which the West is infested. The speaker caused a laugh by his reference to the Episcopal convention with its Bishops and other dignitaries, which is to be held in San Francisco this fall.

"Make Dr. Minton our Moderator," he said, "and we will place him alongside the whole Episcopal convention and say, 'Here is your equal.'"

President James D. Moffat of Washington and Jefferson College and the Rev. Dr. Edgar P. Hill of Portland, Ore., seconded the nomination of the Western man. Dr. Moffat gave a logical review of the situation and showed that in the spirit of fairness the Pacific coast should secure the honor. Dr. Hill also pleaded for fairness.

Decisive Vote for the West.

Dr. Purves voted for Dr. Minton and Dr. Minton for Dr. Purves. The candidates then retired and the roll was called. Of the 613 votes Dr. Purves received 276 and Dr. Minton 337.

An exciting debate took place just before the hour of adjournment, Dr. Niccolls of St. Louis making a motion that the assembly should not concur in the rule for the election of standing committees adopted a year ago, known as the Peoria plan, by which the commissioners themselves and not the Moderator decide who shall be members of the standing committees. Dr. Johnson of Chicago opposed the motion, which was laid on the table in order that this assembly might have a chance to see how the plan would work.

The entire morning was occupied with the delivery of the sermon by the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Dickey, the retiring Moderator, his subject being "The Kingdom of God."

The women interested in home missions had an all day session in the Witherspoon Building, where interesting reports were given and addresses bristling with enthusiasm were made.

SHOCK FOR PHYSICIANS.

DR. M. R. SEVERSON TELLS MEETING MEDICINE IS A HUMBUG.

Protests in Paper Read Before Congress of Tuberculosis in New York Against Legislation to Prevent Spread of Consumption, Declaring It Is Not an Infectious Disease—Gathering Refuses Him a Place on the Record and Condemns Essay.

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—Dr. M. R. Leverson of Brooklyn stirred up considerable feeling in this afternoon's session of the Congress of Tuberculosis, which is being held at the Hotel Majestic. The sedateness which had hitherto marked the proceedings of the congress gave way to an animated scene when Dr. Leverson, after protesting against any effort to deal with the spread of consumption by legislative action, passed some severe strictnures upon those members of the medical profession who favored the enforcement of measures restricting the liberty of the individual. In the course of his remarks he said:

"Under the enormous powers so wickedly obtained by the New York Board of Disease from the framers of that monument of learned ignorance, the charter of New York, the board has set itself to correct a piece of bad manners whereof many persons riding in the public cars were habitually guilty. I refer to the practice of spitting upon the floor. Bad manners undoubtedly, but certainly not to be punished by association with thieves.

"Medicine a Great Humbug."

"One hundred years ago Professor Magendie, addressing his graduating class in the great medical school of Paris, but warning them not to tell it outside, said: 'Gentlemen, medicine is a great humbug. I know it is called a science. Science, indeed! It is nothing like science! Doctors are mere empirics when they are not charlatans.'

"I tell you emphatically that what Magendie told his students confidentially 100 years ago is still true of the dominant school of medicine, the one which arrogates to itself the title of 'Regular.' To declare tuberculosis infectious in the face of so many facts conclusive to the contrary will be to repeat the blunder of the English Royal College of Physicians, which declared in 1754 that the inoculation of smallpox was a highly salutory practice."

Dr. Leverson then went on to denounce any legislative interference with tuberculosis diseases "at the bidding of ignorant official doctors, always anxious to augment their power, place, and pelf."

Dr. Leverson's Paper Condemned.

Dr. Leverson, however, was allowed to continue, but when he ended his reading Dr. Charles K. Cole of Helena, Mont., moved that the paper be not printed on the records of the congress. Only four members voted in opposition to him, and then, by way of still further expressing the indignation which the Brooklyn delegate had aroused, Dr. Cole proposed that Dr. Leverson's paper be formally condemned. This was carried.

"I think the gentleman has achieved his purpose—that of getting himself noticed by the press"—a member remarked as Dr. Leverson left the hall.

Resolutions were adopted by the congress urging certain executive precautions for halting the spread of tuberculosis. The remedies recommended were the dissemination of literature by boards of health, efficient and proper care of patients, the establishment of free sanitariums, regular sanitary inspections of all public institutions, and the adequate inspection of all milk and food products through which infection might be conveyed.

NASH POISONED BY OAK TREE.

Ohio's Governor Ill in San Francisco and Plans for His Entertainment Abandoned.

San Francisco, Cal., May 16.—The programs for the entertainment of Governor Nash and the Ohio visitors were declared off tonight on account of the illness of Governor Nash. While attending the christening of one of the big trees in his honor near Santa Cruz on Monday last he was poisoned by poison oak. While his affliction is not serious, it prevents him from participating in any of the festivities arranged in his honor. Today was Ohio day at Golden Gate Park. The coach rides and the banquet were given, but the open air reception was abandoned. At the banquet the party drank to the recovery of Mrs. McKinley in impressive silence while standing.

The trip was made under the direction of Mrs. Sarah A. Hubbard of Chicago. Among those who were present were Mrs. J. E. Thorndyke, Mrs. F. H. Mudd, Mrs. J. W. Broughton, Mrs. S. E. Stearns, Mrs. J.

LORIMER QUITS THE GAME

WILLIAM KENT STARTS AS CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS.

Former Alderman of Thirty-second Ward Announces His Candidacy in New Second District, While Ex-Congressman Declares He Is Out of the Political Field — Says His Office-Holding Days Are Over, Despite Senator Mason's Predictions.

There were ripples in the local political pond yesterday when William Lorimer, held to be a seeker for public office, announced that he will not make another race for Congress nor will he seek to grab Senator Mason's seat two years hence. On the heels of this statement, however, came the formal notice from William Kent, ex-Alderman of the old Thirty-second Ward, and for several years connected with the Municipal Voters' league, that he will try for the Congressional plum in the new Second District next year. Last night Mr. Kent started his boom with the following announcement:

> Through the courtesy of the newspapers of Chicago I should like to make announcement to the Republicans of the Second District of my candidacy for the Congressional nomination in 1902.
> The Second Congressional District comprises all the territory south of Forty-third street and west of State street, with the addition of that part of the Thirty-third Ward which lies west of State street. It includes part of the Sixth and all of the Seventh, Eighth, and Thirty-third Wards.
> I have lived in this district for eleven years, in which I am a property-owner, and with the people and needs of which I can fairly claim acquaintance. In this district, created by the new apportionment, there is no Congressman resident. It would be my ambition to represent it honorably and creditably if nominated by a Republican convention and thereafter elected.

There may be a hard fight in this district before the nomination is settled, for "Dr." T. N. Jamieson still has his oar in in this territory, and A. R. Porter and President Hanberg of the County board are expected to have something to say. It is even said that Congressman Mann may remove from the First District into the new Second and seek support for another term.

Mr. Lorimer made his statement while on a visit to the County Building, during which he was closeted with President Hanberg, seeking to prevent James H. Graham's removal from the Wardenship of the County Hospital.

"I shall not run for Congress next year, despite all this talk of a district being cut out for me," said Mr. Lorimer. "No, I won't try for the Senatorship, either, if I retain my senses. I see Mason says I will. Well, I'm sorry to disappoint him, but I have no intention of going after his place. No, sir, my office-holding days are over. I shall pay some attention to politics, of course, but my time will be devoted to business—to making money for the eight little Lorimers who constitute my family."

Mr. Lorimer had a long conference with Mr. Hanberg, and, it is said, that he demanded Graham's retention despite the County Hospital Investigating committee's request that Graham be removed.

"I have paid much attention to this investigation," said the former Congressman after the conference. "I do know, though, that Graham has made a good Warden, and I do not see why he should be removed."

President Hanberg stands by his promise that a new man, "a business-man," will be named on May 27 to succeed Graham.

BIG OIL COMPANY IS FORMED.

H. C. Frick and Others Incorporate a Concern in Texas with a Capital of $15,000,000.

Austin, Tex., May 16.—The largest oil charter ever incorporated under the laws of Texas was filed today with the Secretary of State. The charter is that of the J. M. Guffey Petroleum company of Beaumont, with a capital stock of $15,000,000. This is more than $10,000,000 greater capital stock than any of the oil concerns filed in the State.

It means a consolidation of the Guffey-Galey holdings, which are the most extensive in the Texas oil fields. All of the stock, it is said, has been paid in. The incorporators are H. C. Frick and J. M. Guffey of Pittsburg, Pa.; A. F. Lucas, B. F. Drexel, Perry Wiess, H. W. Greer, and R. A. Greer of Beaumont. The holdings of the Guffey company embrace more than 10,000,000 acres of land scattered over eastern and southern Texas in large tracts, lying in thirty counties.

The company owns five flowing wells in the Beaumont field, has put down a pipe line to Port Arthur, where storage tanks are located, and is under contract to sink wells at a number of points within the next ten months. Several derricks are now being erected at selected points in the country tributary to Houston.

BUSINESS FREE OF PANIC.

JOHN J. MITCHELL SAYS ONLY STOCKS WERE AFFECTED.

General Conditions Outside Speculative Field Said to Be Healthy—Thinks Northern Pacific Situation Will Be Settled Amicably, and Looks for Adoption of Community of Ownership Principle by Railroads—Denies Steel and Fuel Friction.

John J. Mitchell, President of the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank, returned yesterday morning from New York, and in answer to a question regarding the Northern Pacific situation expressed confidence that without doubt it would be settled amicably. Mr. Mitchell said further he believed the original purpose of the controlling interests in the railroad systems of the country to introduce the community of ownership principle would still be carried out.

Mr. Mitchell said general business conditions were not affected in the least by the condition of the stock market. "The trouble last week," he said, "was simply a stock panic. I think we will have an unsettled stock market until accounts are adjusted. The general situation is a healthy one, but the wave of speculation had grown until every butcher, baker, and candlestick maker was in the market, and they have been cleaned out.

Money Seems to Be Easy.

"The general condition of the market is better than at any time during the last thirty days. Money seems to be easy and the industrial situation is most satisfactory. As to the course of stocks I know nothing and will not make predictions.

"I think the difficulties of the Northern Pacific situation will be settled amicably, and the results anticipated from the introduction of the community of ownership principle will be realized. Concessions will be made on both sides, and the original purpose, formed when the community of ownership principle was framed will be carried out, notwithstanding the Northern Pacific situation."

Fuel and Steel at Peace.

Mr. Mitchell said the report the Colorado Fuel and Iron company would fight the United States Steel corporation was "all bosh." Blair & Co. of New York and the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank have underwritten the $10,000,000 of 5 per cent convertible bonds which the Colorado company will issue, and these were all placed before Mr. Mitchell left New York. The arrangements are subject to acceptance by the directors of the Colorado company, but as the principal officials have agreed there is no doubt the plans will be indorsed. Part of the bonds will be put out to pay for the tinplate, wire, and other mills which will be built, and $6,000,000 of bonds will be left in the treasury.

"The relations between the Colorado company and the United States Steel corporation," Mr. Mitchell said, "will be cordial and close and there will be no combination of the kind reported against the large corporation. It is an advantage to the United States corporation to have a strong company like the Colorado in the field. The fuel business of the company is sufficient alone to pay interest on the new bonds, all fixed charges, and the dividend on the preferred. Strong parties have been buying into the Colorado company, and the common stock will be on the dividend list on July 1."

Harry F. Atwood.

Harry F. Atwood, the newly appointed Assistant State's Attorney, has entered upon his duties in the Criminal Court Building with energy and enthusiasm. His motto is: "Let no guilty man escape." He studied at the Illinois Military Academy and at the Morgan Park School, and then was among the first to enter the University of Chicago when that institution opened its doors in October, 1892. During his university course he took a lively interest in the literary and political societies of the institution, and in his last year was President of the Oratorical association. In an oratorical contest in 1894 Mr. Atwood won first honors.

In the Spanish-American war Mr. Atwood was a sergeant in the First Illinois Cavalry. Since his return he has been engaged in the practice of law, having offices in the Equitable Building. He is a Republican, and during the last campaign made a number of speeches.

At the invitation of the Union Veterans' association he will deliver an oration at Oakwoods Cemetery on Memorial day.

These instruments have been thoroughly repaired in our own shops, and we are now displaying in our warerooms the greatest lot of genuine bargains ever shown in Chicago.

They are all reliable instruments and are marked at prices which will close them out quickly.

SATISFACTORY SHORT STORIES IN THE "CARNABY STYLE."

Ellen Thorneycroft Fowler Proves More Entertaining in "Sirius" and the Score of Tales Published with It than in Anything She Has Previously Written—Character Sketches of Easily Recognized Types of Men and Women—Abundance of Epigrams.

ELLEN THORNEYCROFT FOWLER'S latest production, "Sirius" (Appleton), has richer sources of entertainment than any one book she has yet written, inasmuch as it has more characters, more conversation, and more epigrams. It consists of a score or more of short stories, each of which is a character sketch of some particular type of man or woman, and so faithfully are they done that the reader will have not the least difficulty in recognizing the types, and will involuntarily place them where they belong.

There is the "second-best woman," who imagines herself the ideal type. She believes that, to her, love is of supreme importance, and that she "could forsake the comfortable high road of life for the ladder that is set up from earth to heaven," and all the days of her life live up to her ideal. Her awakening is cleverly managed in "Sirius," the first of the stories. Then there is the first-rate woman, who discovers in time to grasp some happiness, that she is not second best; there is the scoffer, whose scoffing is turned, through tribulation, to prayer; there is the self-righteous man, who was so sure of his footing that he did not take heed, and, therefore, fell; there is the cad and the egotist, and the two or three saints of so many kinds; there is the woman who would have been good if other people had done what they ought, and if fate had given her the right sort of husbands and friends. One of the most charming stories is of Phil Maysfield's wife, who was a loveable little woman, with a tender heart and a quick wit; and one of the most pathetic is "The King's Fool."

It will be seen that Miss Fowler's people are all familiar types, but her portrayal is clever and original. It shows a deep insight into human nature and a keen discernment in catching just the points that mark her types, and withal there is a friendly indulgence, born of a full knowledge and wide observation of life.

There is a great deal of philosophizing, some of which may be more or less fallacious, but it is seriously given, and, like the pages and pages of bright and witty dialogue, abounds in such epigrams as, "A woman may be happy without being a fine lady, but a fine lady cannot be happy without being a woman," and "Love is a pastime for one's youth; marriage is a provision for one's old age."

Miss Fowler's fondness for metaphor, simile, and citing of example or established precedent has not abated, and in this volume she reverts to the Bible for these to such an extent that the reader will find, on finishing the book, his scriptural knowledge and phraseology considerably increased.

There are many criticisms one might offer, such as an obvious straining at times for effect, the sacrificing of a character for the sake of a keen retort, and a sameness in the use and in the turning of a phrase, but in a book so engaging these seem as trifles.

"Mr. Chupes and Miss Jenny" (Baker & Taylor Co.) is the odd title chosen by Miss Effie Bignell for "The Life Story of Two Robins," as the subtitle discloses. It is a sympathetic account of two birds, one of which came accidentally to the author, and were brought to confidence and friendliness by humane treatment and loving attention. Mr. Chupes fell from his nest in a high tree when a mere infant, and was rescued and tamed; Miss Jenny was found in a baker's shop, caged, wild, and unhappy. It speaks volumes for Miss Bignell's ability to gain the heart of her fellow-creatures that Miss Jenny was willing to eat out of her hand within four hours after being purchased and brought home. The bird was taught to take her daily bath with Mr. Chupes' excellent example always before her, and she soon cast off the evidences of inattention which had so nearly blighted her. But Miss Jenny never overcame a habit acquired earlier, of eating as fast as possible, generally with both feet in the dish. This in itself is a lesson in good manners.

There are some charming instances of intelligence brought forward in the book. While in the country one summer a terrible storm arose, during which a birch tree near at hand was struck by lightning. A large piece of the bark was brought home at the end of the outing. The two birds, which had shown great terror during the storm, always connected the bark with the sense of fear, and a small bit was sufficient to prevent trespassing thenceforward. Mr. Chupes lived five years in captivity, and his mate survived him a month or more, finding ready consolation in a wild bird close at hand. The book is one for all bird-lovers to read.

Few books were better calculated to bring enjoyment and instruction into a family than Garrett P. Serviss' "Astronomy With an Opera-Glass," published ten or twelve years ago. The information with which that popular work was stored has been utilized again in "Pleasures of the Telescope" (Appleton), thoroughly worked over and adapted, with numerous additions, star maps, maps of the moon, and many other illustrations. A better book for practical work in observing the heavens can hardly be imagined for amateurs.

The telescope which Mr. Serviss recommends is discussed at considerable length in the opening chapter, with the preference expressed for a rather large instrument, one five inches in diameter. The warning is given that a good telescope can never be cheap, and this seems, regrettably, to limit the use of the book to persons of considerable means. But much that is written applies to an ordinary marine glass, such as may be found in many families, and this gives the book its real value. With the instructions before him, the amateur observer can find the planets and identify them, search out any number of double stars, and those of vivid colors, gain a sight of the star groups, star clusters, and nebulae, and generally extend his knowledge of creation in a manner otherwise impossible.

The importance of this study of astronomy can hardly be overestimated. No man, with the astounding evidences of his own insignificance overpowering him can fail to learn humility and, as a corollary, brotherly sympathy for his fellow-midgets on this earth.

Marquise de Fontenoy Letter.

Copyright, 1901, by the Marquise de Fontenoy.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA is the latest convert to the motor car fad. After fighting shy of this form of locomotion for a considerable time—for she is intensely conservative—she has at length succeeded in overcoming her prejudice, and has lately become possessed of a motor driven by electricity and combining all the latest improvements with elegance and comfort. As yet she has not ventured on the public high road, and has restricted her drives to the Sandringham estate, which comprises several miles of beautifully laid out carriage roads, on which she may be often seen speeding about driving the car herself.

In course of time, when she becomes an adept in the management of the motor car, she may take to driving it about London, and we may possibly live to see the strange sight of both King and Queen driving through the streets of the British metropolis in a state automobile, followed and preceded by the customary escort of Horse Guards, who, in order to be in keeping with the royal equipage, should be mounted on motor cycles, instead of on horseback.

Prince Adalbert of Prussia, the third son of the Kaiser, who has just entered the navy, and commenced his duties as a naval cadet on board the training ship Charlotte, is being subjected to a much more severe course of education and mode of life than his brothers. The only concession made to his rank as a Prince of the blood is that he is allowed the privilege of a private cabin and of a bunk, instead of being forced to sleep in a hammock between decks with all the other naval cadets. Moreover, he is permitted to wear the cap and the sword of a Lieutenant, but in all other respects is subjected while on board to the discipline and treatment of a naval cadet, whose uniform he wears when on board.

Along with the other cadets he is aroused at 5 in the morning by the boatswain's whistle, and, while his messmates have to roll and stow away their hammocks, he is obliged to make his own bed. All hands are then ordered to wash, the Prince among the rest of them, and after that half an hour is devoted to running up and down the rigging, up one side and down the other as fast as possible, there being so much rivalry and competition among the cadets that this form of exercise develops into full-fledged races, attended by much horse play, and all sorts of extraordinary gymnastic feats in connection with the attempts of the boys to get ahead of one another in the rigging. Breakfast follows, and after that there is an hour's instruction. Roll call takes place at 10, and instruction follows again till 12, when dinner is served. The afternoon is devoted to drill of one kind and other, which lasts till 6, when supper takes place, and by 8 every cadet is in the arms of Morpheus, thoroughly worn out by not merely the mental but likewise the physical exertions of the day. The effect of this system of training will be to convert young Prince Adalbert into the same manly, self-reliant, and resourceful naval officer as his uncle, Prince Henry, who knows everything in connection with his profession from A to Z.

It is difficult to conceive anything more ridiculous than the announcement published far and wide in the English newspapers, according to which young Leonard Brassey has been elected President of the English Jockey club. There is no such office as President of the English Jockey club, and it is to the position of junior steward of the club that the grandson of old Tom Brassey has just been appointed. There are always three stewards of the Jockey club, who constitute its Executive committee and its representatives in determining all issues and questions that may be submitted to the judgment of the club. In fact, the three stewards of the Jockey club may be regarded as constituting the supreme tribunal of the British turf, from whose decision there is no appeal, save to the entire club. Young Brassey takes the place of the Hon. Reginald Fitzwilliam as third and junior of the three stewards, and may esteem himself singularly fortunate in thus acquiring, despite his lineage, his youth, and the fact that he has been but three years a member of the club, one of the three most eminent positions on the turf not alone of England but of the entire racing world.

Married to a daughter of the Earl of March, who is heir to the Duke of Richmond, he is the son of the late Henry Brassey, who was a brother of the present Lord Brassey, and in spite of the preposterous assertions of the latter that he is descended from a mythical Sieur de Bresci, who came over with William the Conqueror to England and helped that monarch to win the battle of Hastings, nearly 1,000 years ago, he is far from possessing such aristocratic ancestry. For Lord Brassey's father, that is to say, the grandfather of the new steward of the Jockey club, was honest old Tom Brassey, a man utterly devoid of education, who, starting life as a day laborer, worked himself up by his own efforts to the position of one of the most important railroad contractors of the old world, leaving to his three sons, the present Lord Brassey, Albert Brassey, and the late Henry Brassey, not only a wonderfully lucrative business but likewise fortunes independent of the business, bringing in to each of them $400,000 a year.

Old Tom Brassey, the contractor, was never ashamed of his humble beginnings, and used to delight in relating the manner in which he first made the acquaintance of his lovable and equally sensible old wife, who, when she was a bare-footed match seller of 15, had found him starving and in rags wandering about the streets of Liverpool, and had saved him from perishing of hunger by forcing him to accept the handful of pennies that constituted the proceeds of her day's sales.

KAISER'S SISTER HAS SIX YOUNG SONS.

Princess Frederick Charles of Hesse and four of her sons are shown in the picture above. The two other sons are the twins born to her at Frankfort-on-the-Main on Tuesday. This is the second time the Princess has become the mother of twin sons. She is the youngest sister of the German Emperor and only 29 year old. Her mother is the Dowager Empress Frederick, the oldest daughter of Queen Victoria of England.

She was married on Jan. 25, 1893, to Prince Frederick Charles of Hesse, who was born in 1868. On Nov. 23 of the same year she bore him his heir, Prince Frederick William, and on Oct. 24, 1894, she bore Prince Maximilian. It was on Nov. 6, 1896, that Prince Philip and Prince Wolfgang Maurice were born to her.

The father of these two pairs of twins is the younger brother of the Landgrave of Hesse, Prince Alexander Frederick, whose heir-presumptive he is, the Landgrave being 38 years old and unmarried.

The Tribune Amateur Gardeners' Contest.

HINTS FOR AMATEURS. NO. 27.

FOLIAGE PLANTS FOR BEDS AND DARK CORNERS.

The heart's desire of the amateur gardener, naturally enough, is for bloom and blossom. It is color, however, which the amateur gardener really desires, although this fact is not always self-recognized. Disappointment, keen and biting, therefore utter disgust, often follows upon the realization that bloom and blossom, for some reason, cannot be attained. Foliage plants, however, may be secured in such a wealth and variety of form and color that the lack of actual flowers may be somewhat compensated when it must be endured. Even when this is not the case there is no nook or corner of the garden likely to give greater, more varied, or more enduring satisfaction than that produced by the foliage bed. There are many kinds of foliage plants also which are rich in blossom as well.

Some varieties of the begonia, for instance, boast foliage more lovely than many flowers; these varieties will flower also, as a rule. There are many shaded and tinted geraniums which come under the same category, practically speaking. Variegated verbenas and variegated ivies are all admirable and prolific. The variegated leaved dogwood is no less admirable in a number of ways. Salvias, golden leaved and prolific, may be depended upon for the most delightful of effects. Hardy palms, ferns, and other "green things growing," while not properly included among the foliage plants, are indispensable for the creation and production of artistic color harmonies. Cannas, iris roots, and other spire-leaved growers should be planted near the foliage bed for the sake of contrast. The leaves of tulips, lilies of the valley, and similar bulb producers may be made to serve if nothing better can be provided. In such case plant the foliage growers as near as possible to the spot where the bulbous roots are spending the summer.

Ricinus, bronze foliaged and handsome, will contrast delightfully with the variegated box, holly, and dogwood, which are so satisfactory and pleasing as standard shrubs. The variegated creepers, which cover neglected or unattractive ground space so quickly, may form a foreground for the variegated geraniums, which are so sturdy and long enduring. The feathery foliage of the cosmos will constitute a delicate foil to the brighter and deeper toned leaves and branches. The yellow-green of the musk-plant may be made to serve and fulfill a similar purpose. And there are new and less standard foliage beauties to be had of the florist in plenty.

A word of caution is necessary in regard to the arranging and growing of the foliage plants; because less commonly used than their sisters of bud and blossom, their habits are less generally known. Foliage plants of different families and orders, such as the rubber plants, umbrella plants, and the hardy palms on the one hand, the salvias, ricinus, and dogwood bushes on the other, while the variegated ivies and better known foliage plants of the lawn and pretentious garden may be considered as a third and separate group, need different treatment. The umbrella plants, for instance, need much water; they will thrive on the edges of ponds and streams, and are admirably fine and effective for the edging of the garden lily pond or cress bed.

The palms must be watered with equal generosity but careful discrimination; the rubber plants cannot stand too much of water. There are foliage plants which need an abundance of warm sunshine and foliage plants which wither in too much heat. The study of their various needs and conditions is quite as interesting and pleasure productive as any other branch of amateur gardening or floriculture, and the foliage corner, once attempted—and enjoyed—will never again be allowed to lapse into a foregone delight.

Mrs. ALPHA FULLER contends she still makes good pies

Mrs. Alpha Fuller of the Hull House Woman's club, who succeeded in making an excellent lemon pie on her forty-second wedding anniversary this week, in spite of all that had been said about the superiority of the New England pastry of fifty years ago, consented, in the interests of humanity, to give her recipe to the public. She will not guarantee that the recipe will make a good pie, however. Mrs. Fuller does not cook according to books or free baking powder recipes. Like the true and successful artist she is original.

"There isn't any particular recipe for my lemon pie," said Mrs. Fuller yesterday. "I cook from my head and never did pay much attention to recipes. Modern cooks have improved in some ways on the old way of doing things. My mother would have made a lemon pie with two crusts. This pie was what you call a "lemon cream pie" with frosting instead of a crust.

"Since I do not cook by recipe I couldn't well tell any one else how to make a lemon pie just like mine, but this is the way I made it as nearly as I can tell:

"Take flour, three cups; cotosuet or cottolene, one cup; salt.

"Mix with cold water, using as little as possible. Bake into a shell, which may be set aside until another day if desired.

"For the filling, take juice and grated rind of one lemon; one cup of water; one cup of sugar; yolks of two eggs; one tablespoonful of corn starch.

"Cook until thick and pour into shell of crust. Beat the whites of two eggs stiff, with three tablespoonfuls of sugar, and cover."

If this recipe does not make a successful pie for any one who tries it, Mrs. Fuller says, it is because cooking is like other arts. The painter who produces an artistic picture is able to tell what paints he used, but he could neither tell nor show any one how to make a picture like his. Mrs. Fuller has had long experience. She learned to cook when a girl in a New England home, and at one time in later life kept a hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Fuller now have a store at 37 Blue Island avenue.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

Why Edna May Was Booed in London.

Julian Mitchell, under whose direction all of Weber & Fields' productions are put upon the stage, has come quietly into town, surprising associates who were not aware he had left London. Although he reached here two days ago, he did not come into general view until last night.

Mr. Mitchell, with the consent of Weber & Fields, went to London to stage Edna May's piece, "The Girl from Up There," at the Duke of York's theater, and he remained there for three weeks after the first presentation. He brought with him the explanation of the "booing" of the opening night. He said that Manager Frohman, through taking bad advice from his London advisers, gave the excuse for the disturbrance.

"Mr. Frohman," said Mr. Mitchell, "not altogether unwittingly, but without a clear understanding of what he was doing, gave offense to the class of playgoers who fill the pit and the gallery. This class has privileges we do not know about in America. It prides itself upon its ability to pass first night judgments, and it is jealous of its prerogatives. The members of it belong to a number of clubs of play-goers, among others, the Gallery club. Mr. Frohman knew the power of this element, and, as every other London manager does, he feared it. 'The Girl from Up There' is a good entertainment as it stands today, but it is a bad piece of work on the part of both the librettist and the composer. The hope of such a show is in the performers and the specialties, and we believed—and as time has proved—Miss May and her associates would please the London public. The attempt to direct that taste should not have been made, however, even indirectly.

"Mr. Frohman did not pack the pit and gallery, but he gave orders that only a certain proportion of the gallery first-nighters should be admitted. When these parts of the house were no more than half full the box office refused to sell more tickets, saying that capacity had been reached. This was known to be untrue by those who were refused admission and they soon let their friends inside know how matters lay. I have heard that some persons with passes were brought in at side entrances but I do not think the number of them could have been large.

"The feeling of the gallery occupants was bitter before the curtain rose and I expected an outbreak, but it did not come. The first act passed without a sign of booing. I gave orders that no encores should be taken, for I did not want to appear to be forcing the piece. The curtain calls after the act were hearty. The first symtom was after a song, 'Sue,' sung by Miss May. The gallery began to sing the chorus of another song popular in London music halls, 'Nothing New,' to show they believed the one too nearly resembled the other. An American, Richard Carle, is the author of it and is singing it. Quiet returned soon and the last curtain went down with no further move.

"I sent Miss May out and she received honest cheers. Then I sent Virginia Earl out, and when she came back we heard the first 'boo.' Then there were calls for the manager, but I did not lift the curtain again. The 'booing' continued just the same and lasted for nearly fifteen minutes.

"But it did not kill the piece nor have any effect upon it. When I left it was being played to capacity houses.

"I think I may confirm the report that Alice Nielsen will be under Charles Frohman's management next season. The success of 'The Girl from Up There' has determined him to continue in the comic opera field. Of Miss Nielsen I can say that no American player, man or woman, ever has taken London the way she has. The Londoners rave about her personality and her voice and are flocking to see her. Through it all she and Manager Frank Perley are holding no communication with each other and would not speak if they met.

Miss Earle is likely to return soon to America. To my surprise she has not pleased London."

Rohan-Heinrich Concert.

Steinway Hall contained a fashionable audience of fair proportions last evening, the occasion being a vocal concert given by Mlle. Marie de Rohan and Max Heinrich for the benefit of St. John's Home, the deserving South Side institution for boys.

Mlle. de Rohan proved to be a young woman of attractive stage presence and pleasing manners, gifted with a soprano voice of ample range and good volume. Her vocal training has been of the ultra-Italian school, and the voice is therefore of a pronouncedly "white" quality, but is under good control and enables its possessor to sing florid passages with clearness and with a fair degree of brilliancy. The lack of color-variety in the voice causes her interpretation of songs and arias of a lighter character to be more satisfactory than is that of those of a strongly dramatic nature, and her best achievements last evening therefore were the Bemberg "Nymphes et Sylvaines," Massenet's "Amoureuse," Schumann's "Frühlingsnacht," Nevin's "'Twas April," and Tschaikowski's "Jeanne d'Arc" aria. The singer's pronunciation and enunciation were admirably exact and distinct in each of the four languages she used last evening, and her work in its entirety may be regarded as possessing merit far above the ordinary, and as qualifying her for the holding of a desirable place in the song world.

Mr. Heinrich not only sang three groups of songs, but also played all of the accompaniments for Mlle. de Rohan's numbers. That these accompaniments were among the chief artistic delights of the evening goes without saying, for all who have heard him know what an inimitable accompaniment the genial baritone plays. Mr. Heinrich sang only selections which he has given previously here this season, but their repetition was entirely welcome, for the interpretative completness that characterized them the first time they were heard suffered no diminution last evening.

WANT A GIRL IN "TRIG" PLAY.

Freshmen of Northwestern University wish to introduce an innovation at the ceremonies incidental to the annual "Trig Cremation," but may come into conflict with the faculty. They want one of the women members of the class to take a part in the "Trig" play. Emily Greenman, a member of the class which always chooses green as its class color, is the one urged for a rôle. The play is entitled "Trigobolus," and was written by W. C. Levere and W. R. Prickett, former students at the institution. During the progress of the play there is considerable requirement of the costume usually worn by ballet dancers. The plot is being carefully kept secret. The presentation will take place on May 31. A girl is represented in the ceremonies every year, but a young man always has taken the character.

SHORT STORY OF THE DAY.

A Cloak of Cynicism

BY F. E. HOWSON.

[Copyright, 1901.]

"MAY I come in, Agnes?"

There was no answer either to her words or knock, so Mabel opened the door and went in.

"What is the matter? Something always is wrong when you march up and down with that tragic air. Tell me all about it. Charlie is coming for me at a quarter to 8, so I have a half hour to spend with you." And she sank into a cosy seat beside the fire.

Agnes Rutherford started as though awakened from a dream, and a shade of annoyance crossed her handsome face. She moved over to the fireplace, and resting her arms on the mantelpiece looked down at the small figure in the chair.

"Nothing is wrong," she said. "I had intended going out this evening," glancing at her silken skirts, "but an idea occurred to me, and I was just working it out as you came in."

"Pity I broke the thread, then," said the other, making, however, no movement to go. "How I wish I could write stories, make money, and dress well, as you do."

"If I had no money but that which I make by my pen, I fear I would not dress well," said Agnes, wearily. "You forget my aunt's legacy."

"By the way, do you ever write for the Unicorn?"

"The Unicorn occasionally publishes my things."

"I will tell you why I asked. I was talking last night with an Englishman I met at Mrs. Brant's about American literature. He seemed much interested in an anonymous story published in last month's Unicorn. It was an unfinished sketchy thing about a voyage. There was a man on board the passengers nicknamed the 'Cynic.' He devoted himself entirely to the heroine, Edith. He wooed her with a stream of cynical talk which half frightened and wholly fascinated her. There were times, too, when she fancied his cynicism was only a cloak to hide deep feeling. Therein lay his charm."

Mabel paused a moment, and Agnes, shading her eyes with her hand and looking into the fire, said:

"How did it all end?"

"He asked her to spend the last evening on the deck with him. She was afraid of what might be coming, was not sure of her own heart, and staid in the saloon with some musical people. He was proud, took the rebuff to heart, and they parted coldly the next day. She never saw him again, but—she couldn't marry any one else."

"Very sketchy and unfinished, as you say," said Agnes, indifferently. "What could your Englishman see to admire in such a story?"

"I don't know. He asked me if I knew the writer. I referred him to the Unicorn office. I was almost going to tell him it was yours—a phrase or two reminded me of your style. It is well I did not."

"Ah, there is Charlie's step on the stairs; I must not keep him waiting. Good-night, dear," holding up her cheek to be kissed. "Come to see me soon."

When the door closed behind Mrs. Cartwright, Agnes turned to the mirror and gazed long at the reflection which looked back at her with dark, sad eyes.

"Am I much changed? Handsomer? Yes. But not the girl he knew. It was for this then I wrote." A burning blush overspread her face, and she turned away from the glass as though ashamed to meet her own eyes. Then she paced restlessly up and down the room, starting at every sound, at every footstep on the stairs.

When at last there came a knock at the door, she trembled so that it was with difficulty she could control herself sufficiently to reach and open it. A tall, fair man stood there. As she did not speak, he said in a tone of gentle reproach:

"Miss Rutherford, have you then forgotten me?"

"No, Mr. Ainsleigh," her agitation made her voice sound cold. "Come in. I had scarcely hoped to see you again."

They moved towards the fireplace and paused before the mirror facing each other, she looked down, he studying her face.

"You are changed, and not changed. More beautiful, yet still the same."

"Do you think so?" raising her eyes, and drooping them again.

"That story—but for that I would not have found you, and it seemed to tell me you had penetrated the mask bitter experience had taught me to wear. Was it presumptuous to think it was meant for me?" taking her hands.

She withdrew them quickly. "O, we writers—we must not be held responsible for what we print. Some of us would make copy out of anything. When imagination fails, one must draw on one's memory, you know."

His faced changed. The love, the look of expectant happiness left it. The expression which had helped to win him the name of "Cynic" returned.

"I understand. Women have many ways of making money by playing on the feelings and passions of men. This is yours. I had imagined you possessed of a heart in which I held the place which, until this moment, you held in mine—fool that I was! You have deceived me. I thank you. Good-night."

The girl's hands twisted and untwisted themselves, her burning face drooped until it rested on the cold marble of the mantelpiece. Just as his fingers touched the door-handle, she said, obeying an irresistible impulse:

"Harold—you—will not leave me a second time?"

He turned back quickly, joyfully.

"You wish me to stay? You mean it? You are not acting a part?"

"O, can you ask? I—I—" then she hurried through her confession: "I wrote that story hoping you would see it and understand. When you came tonight and spoke, the unwomanliness of what I had done came over me. I was ashamed, and said——"

"What was not true. My darling, my wife that is to be—is it not so?"

But he did not wait for an answer. After a pause, she said:

"And you do not despise me?"

"For making a miserable man happy? For turning a cynic into a human being? Well, I should say not."

MAY APPOINT WOMAN RECEIVER.

Judge Chetlain to Decide Whether Miss Orthena Little Shall Administer Affairs of Insolvent Bank.

Miss Orthena Little may succeed to the receivership of the Dime Savings Bank. Receiver Ralph Metcalf resigned some time ago, and Miss Little, who had been his clerk, and who is said to be thoroughly familiar with the affairs of the bank, was agreed on by creditors as the proper person to succeed Mr. Metcalf. However, there has been some criticism of the old receiver's work, and it is argued the appointment of Miss Little would be a continuation of the same service. Judge Chetlain will pass on the question on May 25.
